

What is Woman's Beauty but Health

And the Basis of Her Health and Vigor lies in the Careful Regulation of the Bowels.

If woman's beauty depended upon cosmetics every woman would be a picture. But it is health, the deep-seated health, the health of the bowels, and the cause of sickness can be traced to the bowels.

The headaches, lassitude, the sallow skin and the listless eyes are usually due to constipation. So many things that women do to "beautify" conduce to this trouble. They do not eat carefully. They eat indigestible foods because the foods are very attractive and they do not exercise enough. But whatever the particular cause may be it is important that the condition should be corrected.

Dr. Caldwell's remedy for women, and one especially suited to their delicate requirements, is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which thousands of women endorse highly, among them Mrs. C. S. Vance, of 511 S. Ray St., New Castle, Pa. At times she had spells of indigestion so severe that she thought she would die. Syrup Pepsin regulated her stomach and bowels, and she attributes her excellent health today to this remedy.

All the family can use Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, for thousands of mothers give it to babies and children. It is also admirably suited to the requirements of elderly people, in fact, to all who by reason of age or infirmity cannot stand harsh salts, cathartics, pills or purgatives. These should always be avoided, for at best their effect is only for that day, while a genuine remedy like Syrup Pepsin acts mildly but permanently.

It can be conveniently obtained at any drug store at fifty cents or one dollar a bottle. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded. You will find it gentle in action, pleasant in taste and free from griping, and its tonic properties have a distinct value to women. It is the most widely used laxative tonic in America today and thousands of families are now never without it.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 419 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

Correspondence of The Robesonian.
Old Fork (Maxton, R. I.), Oct. 27.—We are having ideal weather nowadays, just crisp and cool enough to be pleasant. I am sitting out on the sunny front veranda enjoying the health-giving air. From all predictions, we are to have a long, cold winter, and I want to take advantage of the outer life as long as possible.

There is a large water oak tree situated just at one corner of the veranda, and the birds are busy in it, after acorns, I presume, of which there is an immense crop this season; but only the larger species of birds can swallow them.

An old sly cat came in just now, called her kitten and gave it a poor little bird of unfamiliar variety and one of the most beautiful I ever saw. Its plumage was black, splashed with large spots of white, and its dear little head was crowned with a tuft of bright crimson. Mrs. Olmstead who is a great lover of animal life, took the little victim away from its cruel captor, saying it was too pretty to be torn up, and she wanted to discourage the habit.

There is just in front of me a cotton field, which a few days ago was clothed in green but "Jack Frost" came last Monday night and with his withering touch, changed the face of the landscape to a mass of brown and withered leaves. The present cotton prospect is discouraging, and I have heard several of our farmers say since the frost that they will not realize more than half a crop this season. So much of it is unopened, and it was a short crop before the freeze came; but they are getting good prices for it and I hope that the final results will be better than they anticipate. The hay crop in this section is abundant, and most of it well cured. There will be an unusually large quantity of oats sown, but the pea crop is a partial failure, also sweet potatoes, which suffered from too much wet weather.

I attended the grand centennial at Center church on Tuesday, the 13th, saw a large assemblage of Scotch Presbyterians, many old friends and a small remnant of former class and college mates of Old Floral, heard splendid addresses, enjoyed a most bountiful and elegant dinner, and had a "good time" generally. I met Mr. M. G. McKenzie, our worthy Scotch treasurer, and the only representative from your town whom I knew. The address of Rev'd. Angus R. McQueen, on the works, progress, and ministry of Fayetteville Presbytery during the last century, was intensely interesting and delivered in splendid style as was also those of Revs. Alex'r Martin and Watson Fairley and Elder J. W. McLaughlin.

What has become of Happy Jack? It is seldom that I find his breezy letters in The Robesonian these days. It may be possible that he is otherwise engaged, and that he is in pursuit of "fairer game." If so we wish for him all manner of success, and that "he may live happily ever after."

The wedding bells are beginning to "tinkle" in the Fork; and it is possible that one of our neighbor boys will soon bring home from a sister county a "bonnie bride."

Miss Sadie Stewart narrowly escaped a dangerous accident one day last week when lighting a fire in the kitchen range with kerosene, it blazed up, singed her beautiful hair and slightly scorched her hand and face. I read of serious accidents of this nature and very often of loss of life. I sometimes use this method of lighting, but am very careful to place wood in stove, pour a little oil over it, and then apply the match, which obviates all danger.

Miss Janie Stewart of John's Station also met a painful accident recently. She and her brother were returning home from Laurinburg, when a tap on the shaft became loosened, the shaft dropped and the horse ran away. Miss Janie jumped from the buggy sustaining an injury to her foot and ankle, from which she has since been confined to the house. I have been twice in my life a victim of runaways and it is a frightful experience. On both occasions I was thrown from the buggy but escaped serious injury, physically, though it was some time before I recovered from the mental anguish. A few years ago I was visiting an old school mate, whom I had not seen in several years. I soon discovered that she was limping right badly and inquired as to the cause. "Oh, Belle," she replied, "don't you know the mule ran away with me and broke my leg just above the ankle, and it is shorter than the other, and and," continued she, "I believe it was foreordained that horses and mules were to be the death of my family. It began during the war, when Dick McLean's old mule kicked Duncan Archie (her husband) breaking several of his ribs, and it all wound up at last in his being killed, and I crippled, by a runaway mule." And it really did seem as though they were attended by some strange fatality.

It is a very humane Lumberton lady who is having a hospital built for sorehead chickens. If she wants additional patients, just let us know, as there are some scattered about up here, though the disease is now abating. It attacked us in the month of June, in violent form, killing out many of the early brood. Mrs. Olmstead, who looks after the poultry department, tried various remedies, and thinks that kerosene oil, mixed with vasoline, or meat grease, is probably the most efficient remedy. The disease in itself does not cause fatality, but blindness and consequent starvation. It is a fearful thing, when it takes good hold, and the first safe guard is to completely isolate the first ones effected from the balance of the flock, and give salts and sulphur to purify the blood.

Mrs. Alexander Stewart and little son of Maxton spent last week at the home of her father-in-law, Mr. D. M. Stewart. Miss Rachel Hamer of Douglas, Georgia, spending some time among friends and relatives in the Fork.

I received recently from my kind kinsman Mr. A. W. McLean of Lumberton a lot of fine literature, in the way of standard periodicals, etc., which we appreciate and are enjoying to the full.

It is clouding up this p. m. and I fear the beautiful weather is about at an end.

Some of our young people attended Little Millionaire play at Laurinburg and were well pleased with the performance.

There is considerable building going on in the Fork, consisting mostly of barns and tenant houses, except the nice new residence of Mr. D. R. Caddell, which nears completion.

Mrs. W. C. Hamer, Mrs. E. L. Olmstead, and son Angus, drove up yesterday p. m., to the old Stewartville cemetery, to inspect the graves there, many of which are very ancient, and the inscriptions mark the last resting place of many who emigrated from Scotland, and died over a century ago. Among others of the old Scotch, the great-grand-parents of your townsmen Messrs. A. W. and A. T. McLean and the children of the late Col. N. A. McLean, are buried there. These were the grandparents of Mrs. Robt. Chaffin and Miss Namie McQueen, and great grandparents of the Dick family. It is a beautiful spot located in Scotland county between the towns of Maxton and Laurinburg.

On Sunday p. m. of last week I attended the funeral of my faithful old "black mammy," at Pine Grove church in sight of our home. She was born and reared at old Queensdale, and was in her 83d year. From my infancy, throughout the succeeding years, she was my true and loyal friend. Always on hand in sickness and trouble, in joy or sorrow, to serve and minister with cheerful alacrity, and efficient hands. She carried beneath her dusky skin a golden heart, and when it ceased to throb I lost one of my most devoted friends, whom I will sorely miss. A few days before her death I visited her and found her calmly awaiting the last summons, in "that perfect peace of the Christian whose heart is stayed on Him." She was far above the average of her race in natural intelligence, honor and fine character and was the last of the elder set of the family negroes, between whom and their former owners existed those close bonds of friendship and sympathy, which are rapidly passing with the extinction of owner and former slave. She was also an aunt of the late Wash McQueen of your town. Her funeral was largely attended, and my last act of loving appreciation to her loyal fidelity was performed when I placed above the pulseless heart a cross of sweet flowers.
