RUN-DOWN WOMEN

Find Health in a Simple Tonic.

How many women do you know who are perfectly well, strong and healthy as a woman should be? They may not be sick enough to lie in bed—but they are run-down, thin, nervous, tired and devitalized.

Women are so active nowadays, and so much is expected of them, that they constantly overdo and suffer from headache, backache, nervousness and kindred ills.

Such women need Vinol, our delicate cod liver and iron tonic without oil which will create an appetite, tone up the digestive organs, make pure blood and create strength.

Mrs. Walter Price, Biloxi, Miss., says: "I was in a run-down condition for months. I had taken several medicines but they seemed to do me no good. Finally Vinol was recommended, and from the first bottle I began to improve until I am strong and well as ever."

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you

CURRENT COMMENT.

SINCLAIR DISGUSTED.

One gathers from an interview given the Fayetteville correspondent of The Wilmington Star one day last week that Solicitor N. A. Sinclair is disgusted with recorders' courts and will not be a candidate to succeed himself as solicitor. That leaves the field clear, so far as is known at present, for Mr. S. B. McLean, who announced his candidacy some time ago.

The Robesonian wanted to notice Mr. Sinclair's announcement in its issue Monday but was so crowded that it had to wait.

Mr. Sinclair in that interview talked like a man peeved. Listen: "He declared that the recorders' courts had made a patchwork of our judicial system and rendered the office of solicitor so far from lucrative that it was not worth the time necessary to devote to it." Unh-huh. Looks like reducing the salary of the solicitor is the main crime of recorders' courts. "Over against this," the Statesville Landmark points out, "may be set the prompt trial of cases, saving the feeding of defendants in jail to await a regular term of court; the disposition of numerous small cases which would consume time and increase the expense of the Superior Courts."

Referring to salaries for solicitors, Mr. Sinclair says: "But you cannot get a salary bill through the Legislature. Every little cross-roads paper which happens to be down on the lawyers and all the ignorant demagogues in the Legislature stand up and say it is a bill to benefit the lawyers. And some people will kill anything they think is going to help a lawyer. As a matter of fact most of the solicitors would have lost by the salary bill they proposed last winter, which provided for a minimum salary of $1,600." Seeing as how nearly every newspaper in the State has favored salaries for solicitors in time past and the solicitors themselves have defeated it every time it came up, that read queer. The Statesville Landmark again puts in an or and sets Mr. Sinclair right as follows:

"Mr. Sinclair's statement will bear correction. As a matter of fact most of the newspapers of the State favor the salary system for solicitors and all other officers. Up to very recent years, all attempts to place solicitors on a salary have been defeated, not by the 'little cross-roads papers' and the 'ignorant demagogues in the Legislature,' but by the self-seeking lawyers—the solicitors themselves, who knew they could make more money by the fee system. Since the recorder's courts have cut down the business for the solicitors they have become strong advocates of the salary plan. We've in mind one solicitor who some years ago wrote letters opposing the salary bill before the Legislature—the letters can be produced. A little later after a number of recorder's courts had been established in his district and cut out much business, this same solicitor appeared as a strong advocate for the salary system. Solicitor Sinclair is either poorly informed or he thinks the public doesn't know or doesn't remember some things."

AGGRAVATING MISTAKES.

Among the things that a newspaper man does or leaves undone that makes him want to kick himself around the block, one of the most aggravating is to neglect to mention somebody in some connection when you were so sure you could not forget that you failed to make a note of it. Once there was a newspaper man who failed to make mention of the fact that his wife had left town, failed to mention it simply because he neglected to make a note of it in his notebook as he was so sure he could not possibly overlook so important an item. You could not say he forgot it or that it was unimportant to him and not worth mentioning or—why, confound it, you don't know how it happened. Just so. But that is another story, to use Kipling's classic phrase.

The above was written as preliminary to an explanation of a certain unaccountable omission of a name by The Robesonian man recently, and blessed if the explanation of what could not be explained did not run on for more than half a column. So when the paper was being made up last Monday it was found something had to be left out and The Robesonian man was obliged, much against his will, to write a very brief explanation and cut out the long one—of which long explanation he was rather proud, because it proved that the omission of the name was made simply and solely because of the fact that the man whose name was omitted was the most important man in the bunch—paradoxical as that may seem.

'Twas ever thus. As Tommy Moore once remarked—
I never had a dear gazelle
To glad me with its soft dark eye,
But I let it fall upon the floor
And always on the buttered side.
Even so. And if you know how a body mixes up a verse like that you ought to know how it is that the mistakes one makes are the very mistakes he could not possibly make. But you don't—so what's the use!

Our Parkton correspondent tells about the authorities of that town getting bloodhounds the other day to trace robbers and though the trail was only an hour or so old the bloodhounds failed to make good—didn't seem to know a thing about it; and our correspondent naively observes that he is forced to believe that the dogs are either untrained or are no good. Tell you what you do next time, you get some groundhogs, or some rabbits or some pussycats; or if none of these is handy, go to a store and buy a picture of a dog. Anything or its picture will do as well as bloodhounds.

We have not seen it but understand that a petition is being circulated for commutation of the sentence of McKenzie, who killed his deceased wife's brother in Scotland county, from electrocution to life imprisonment. A jury of 12 Robeson county men heard the evidence, listened to the argument of counsel on both sides, and rendered a verdict of guilty. The Supreme Court has said there was no error in the trial. If the sentence is commuted to life imprisonment, after the man has served a few years of his term another petition will be circulated to have him pardoned, and no doubt he will be pardoned. The Robesonian goes not pass upon the man's guilt, but if he is guilty he should pay the penalty. Else why not be frank about it and say that the death penalty is only for the poor and the friendless?

In remitting for his paper Mr. W. J. McLeod of Red Springs writes in friendly fashion as follows: "I notice that your city is having some trouble with its water supply. I would suggest that your city fathers put down a pipe to our town, where we have much more than we can use of as fine water as there is in the State; and to know that we were sharing this blessing with our city friends would give our people great pleasure." Much obliged. We wish we could connect with the excellent water supply of Red Spring, but as that is impossible we may have to ask Red Springs to quit polluting the only source of a water supply for Lumberton by dumping its sewage into Lumber river.

"L. T. T.'s" plaint about distracting early morning whistles has brought a friendly invitation from "I. B. T." for him to "spend the Twentieth of May in the Celebration of Independence Square, where peace and unity of spirit will prevail." Do it, "L. T. T.," but before you go you must solemnly promise not to let "I. B. T." do anything to you that will make you think Independence Square is a brook-gladdened meadow dotted o'er with kind-faced cows standing knee-deep in clover, is a quiet and peaceful spot, is Independence Square, if one is quiet and peaceful inside—as what place is not?

Prof. H.L. Edens of Lumberton had an article in Thursday's issue of The Robesonian about some problems confronting the Indians of Robeson county that will repay thoughtful reading. Prof Edens was formerly superintendent of the Indian Normal School at Pembroke and understands the thoughts and aims and purposes of this race as few men of any other race do understand them. Patient and sympathetic study of problems that confront the Indians in their struggle to educate their children and maintain their racial integrity will help.

It is the best sort of news that the Civic Association has been revived. The ladies did some mighty good work when this association was active and it will do good work again. The fault was never with the ladies anyhow. They did all they could. The trouble was that the men did not give them the support that they deserved in their efforts to make Lumberton a cleaner, more healthful and more beautiful place in which to live. The Chamber of Commerce has pledged its support and the ladies will go to work again with a will.

When asked for a statement about his election to the Senate Mr. Underwood said he gave his friends all the credit and if any was due himself it was that he stayed on the job and that the people showed by their votes that they wanted a man to stay on the job. That's what. That's what the people of North Carolina showed last year when they re-elected Senator Simmons.

It is surprising the number of people who can tell positively where each Federal reserve bank should be located, and why. A lot of time and worry and money would have been saved if these learned ones had been requested to name the cities and districts some moons ago.

A mighty good meeting of the Chamber of Commerce that was held on the 9th inst. Those who missed it missed a treat. The talks by Dr. Stiles on domestic problems and malaria—two different addresses—were fine, entertaining as well as instructive.
