

OLIVER-BOWLES.

Marriage of Miss Pansy Bowles of Hickory and Mr. W. McD. Oliver of Marietta.

Correspondence of Robesonian. Hickory, Oct. 6.—In all the history of the First Baptist church of Hickory, there has never been a more beautiful nor a more brilliant and largely attended wedding than was the marriage on last Thursday evening, October 1st, of Miss Pansy Bowles, oldest daughter of our esteemed townsman and affluent merchant, Mr. J. W. Bowles, to Mr. William McDuffie Oliver, a prominent young business man of Marietta, Robeson county. The church was artistically decorated for the occasion. Ferns, palms, potted plants, with long leaf pine and quantities of goldenrod, carried out the color scheme of yellow, white and green very beautifully. Over the arches the chandeliers shined with yellow cast a soft glow. Mrs. A. M. West, presided at the organ. As a prelude to the ceremony, she played "Humoresque" by Devorak, and Mrs. George Bailey sang, "O Promise Me," followed by "Because." Immediately following these solos the strains of Lohengrin's bridal chorus, sung by a double quartette composed of Miss Esther Shultz, Mesdames George Bailey, J. D. Harte and J. H. Shuford, and Messrs. C. J. Gamble, C. W. Ellington, O. M. Sigmon and L. H. Warlick announced the approaching bridal party.

Misses Mildred Bowles, and Ellen Carrier, dressed in white lingerie dresses with yellow sashes opened the snow-white gates at the ends of the aisles. They were followed by the ushers, Messrs. C. S. Stephenson of Hickory, Rufus Parlier of Raleigh, J. H. Bowles of Hickory and E. G. White of Statesville. The bridesmaids and groomsmen as they entered the church down opposite aisles were: Miss Mable Cherry of Lenoir with Mr. Ernest B. Ward of Rowland; Miss Rachael Oliver of Marietta with Mr. Abram Bray of North Wilkesboro; Miss Louise Martin of East Bend with Mr. Ray A. Oliver of Atlanta, Ga.; Miss Annie Stephenson of Hickory with Mr. Marion J. Oliver of Dillon, S. C. Then came the flower girl, little Miss Kathryn Bowles Whitehead of Hickory. The ring bearer, Master Jack Conley of aTolsonsville, carried the ring on a silver tray. He was followed by the maid of honor, Miss Clara White Bowles of Hickory.

All eyes were now alert for the lovely bride, who was ideal as she walked with her father to the altar. They were met there by the groom with his best man, Mr. L. McD. Oliver of Marietta. They were united in holy wedlock by Rev. J. D. Harte, the bride's pastor, who used the impressive ring ceremony. Mrs. West played "Berceuse" during the ceremony and Mendelssohn's wedding march was used as a recessional.

The bride was never prettier than in her beautiful gown of ivory satin and lace with trimmings of pearl and tulle veil. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses showered with lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore a beautiful model of green charmeuse which was extremely chic and effective draped with tulle with trimmings of crystal. It had a tiny vestee done in crystal beads. She carried white carnations. Miss Stephenson wore an elegant crepe de chine dress of yellow. It had a deep full tunic of accordion plaited chiffon hanging in pretty folds. It was finished with draped bands of satin messaline. Miss Martin was gowned in white crepe de chine of exquisite texture with a tunic and waist drapery of white tulle. It was trimmed with skunk cut. Miss Oliver wore an elegant dress of yellow crepe de chine. The waist drapery and tunic of her dress displayed an artistic design of beautiful brocaded tulle with gold trimmings. It was finished with a gold beaded vestee set with rhinestones. Miss Cherry wore a charming dress of white crepe de chine with an effective drapery of real lace trimmed with satin rosebuds. The maid of honor and bridesmaids wore short tulle veils caught with tiny rosebuds. The bridesmaids carried bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums.

Both bride and groom are very popular throughout the State. Miss Bowles will be pleasantly remembered, having taught music in the Marietta high school for two years. She holds the fondest esteem of all classes of people, no less for her bright cheerful disposition than for her manifold accomplishments.

Mr. Oliver is the oldest son of Mr. J. S. Oliver, one of the most influential citizens of Eastern Carolina. He is engaged in the mercantile business in Marietta and is highly esteemed by his friends for his uprightness and fidelity to business.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver left for a trip North. On their return they will make their home in Marietta. On the night previous to the wedding a reception was held for the bridal party.

WAR NOTES.

The defeat of the German army which invaded Russia from East Prussia appears from Russian accounts to have been even more decisive than previously stated. According to the Russian Ambassador at Rome, the Germans were routed completely with a loss of 70,000 men and have been forced to abandon everything.

An official report of the fifth from German army headquarters states that in the siege of Antwerp three forts of the outer circle of forts had been taken, rendering an attack upon the inner circle of forts and the town itself possible.

Pistols That Kill at a Mile. Paris Dispatch to Central News.

Much interest has been aroused by a new type of Mauser revolver which is being supplied by the German officers.

It is asserted that it will kill at a mile. It is sighted for 500 yards and fires eight cartridges. It is provided with a leather arm rack, which enables the officer to rest his left arm and take careful aim. It is regarded as a miniature machine gun. Only 500 of these revolvers are now in use.

WITH THE AID OF SORCERY

Women of Sardinia Thought They Had a Chance to Recover a Buried Treasure.

An old Sardinian woman named Anna Romano has been arrested at Sassari charged with obtaining money under false pretensions.

The Italian penal code has no provision dealing with magic and consequently when Anna Romano was surprised at midnight by the police surrounded by several women holding torches over a hole she had excavated in the courtyard of a house, despite the fact that the women was openly engaged in magical practices, she was accused of swindling money from the credulous torch bearers.

The women admitted that they had given the sorceress money and all opposed her arrest, as they were convinced she was on the point of discovering great treasure. The police do not believe in treasures, however, and very likely Anna Romano will be sentenced to a long term of imprisonment.

Strange as it may seem, the existence of the treasure is corroborated by fact. Anna Romano is in possession of a document written in the sixteenth century in which it is related that a wealthy woman of Sassari, fearing a French invasion, hid all the money, jewels and plate she owned in a secluded place.

This woman was subsequently murdered and her body was buried in the courtyard of her house. A faithful servant knew that her mistress wore around her neck a locket containing the document, with the description of the place where the treasure had been hidden.

When Anna Romano was arrested she had just discovered the corpse of the murdered woman and the locket with the secret document. The police found the locket but not the document. —New York Sun.

FOUND COCA LEAF A CURE

Habit So Prevalent in South America Indorsed by a Travelling Sufferer.

On my journey through the cold uplands of the South American mountains, I came upon the natives chewing coca leaves. Peter MacQueen writes in the National Magazine. The habit is almost universal in the valleys of the high Andes. Seeing the people look so happy with coca leaves in their mouths, I tried to chew some leaves myself. I found them tasteless, just like hay. But when I swallowed some of the juice from them I found it a most delightful stimulant to the stomach. For a long time I had been suffering from an ulcer of the stomach which was very painful. The coca leaves reduced the pain at once and left no ill effect. I continued this for a month, and it did more for the cure of the ulcer of the stomach than any medicine that I had taken in Europe or America for this trouble. I mention this particularly. The doctors of Bolivia and Peru last summer were in a hot dispute about the evil effects that chewing coca leaves had had upon the natives. One-half of the medical fraternity avowed that the habit was not injurious, while the other half maintained that the coca leaves had such a bad effect upon the natives that it held them back from civilization influence. What shall a layman do when doctors disagree?

Some Mushroom.

Epicures in the United States, who love mushrooms will long for a time in the Austrian Tyrol, where real mushrooms grow. A traveler writing of the region says: Bordering the road that led up the mountain were Italian chestnut trees, so large that it took from three to five of us to span the trunks of most of them. Under one of these one evening I saw crouching what I took to be a small, dark gray kitten. Stooping, I found that it was not a kitten, but a mushroom. Our good peasant neighbor, hurrying toward me, begged that I would not disturb it, saying that she depended on this every year. After a few days of rain, what had seemed a kitten now looked a stately cat, and when it reached the weight of six pounds it was gathered and eaten.

Somehow Good.

A lecture by that brilliant craftsman and poet, William Morris, was not always a season of rare enjoyment. Sometimes, according to Morris' recent biographer, Mr. Compton-Rickett, his lectures were dull, as on that occasion when he turned to one of the ladies in his audience, and asked her how she had liked the lecture.

"Not at all!" was the unexpected reply. "But I thought the color of your blue shirt charming."

Morris was delighted, for he had taken great pains to find the right dye. His love of color, particularly indigo blue, was as keen as his delight in Gothic Art.—Youth's Companion.

Law of Sanitation.

Sanitation is a natural law. Nature will not tolerate disease and decay in her own domains. She buries the dead in her forests with leaves and vines. She cleanses impurities and overcomes pollution in her fields and streams, and she demands the same effort of men. When men fail to obey these natural laws they pay the penalty, declares the Healthologist. They suffer or die. When they do obey, no effort brings surer returns. The ability, peace of mind, and healthiness means health, ability, peace of mind, and healthiness.
