Miss Bonnie Barker Becomes Bride of Dr. Gordon Ross Hennigar—A Brilliant Church Wedding. Reported for The Robesonian.

A wedding characterized by unusual beauty and impressiveness, in accord with the bride's individuality, was solemnized at the First Baptist church here, on last Thursday evening at 7 o'clock when Miss Bonnie Barker became the bride of Dr. Gordon Ross Hennigar, Rev. C. L. Greaves, the bride's pastor, being the officiating clergyman.

The sacred edifice was transformed into a sylvan bower and an exquisite bridal setting was affected with cut flowers and greens, the semi-circular rostrum being banked with ferns and palms, interspersed with white and yellow chrysanthemums.

Previous to the arrival of the bridal party a musical programme was given, Miss Lina Gough at the organ and Miss Christine Gower at piano. The prelude, Massenet's "Duo," an organ and violin duet, by Miss Gough and Mr. Woodberry Lennox, was rendered. Miss Mildred McIntyre of the music faculty of Meredith College, sang very sweetly "My Heart at Thy Dear Voice," after which the bridal chorus from the Rose Maid was sung, all of the voices being in splendid accord. Miss Iva Pearson, also a gifted vocalist, sang beautifully and impressively "Love's Coronation," with piano and organ accompaniment. When the deep tones of the organ vibrated Mendelssohn's Wedding March the bridal party entered in the following order: Misses Anna Lawrence and Annie Grace Williams, Rosa Lee Caldwell and Mary Mack Riggs, ribbon girls, daintily clad in white with yellow ribbons, advanced down the aisles, two in each aisle, and took their places at the altar, followed by the ushers, who were Messrs. Elwood Whaley, Roney High, H. J. Singleton and E. J. Barker.

The two bridesmaids, Misses Lillie and Bertha Barker, cousins of the bride, wearing white imported gowns with plaitings of yellow tulle, carrying yellow chrysanthemums, entered singly with their attending groomsmen, Dr. Russell Beam and Mr. S. K. Nash, after whom came Mrs. Ernest Jerome Barker, of Rowland, sister-in-law of the bride, who acted as matron of honor. She was attired in a creation of lavender charmeuse en train and her flowers were white chrysanthemums. Miss Eva Mace, the maid of honor, entered next, becomingly gowned in soft yellow pussy willow tulle with tulle drapery and carrying an armful of yellow chrysanthemums; and following her was little Miss Francis McNeill, dainty and fairly-like in a white lace frock, who bore the ring in the heart of a huge white chrysanthemum; while down the opposite aisle handsome little Charlie Crabtree in his costume of white velvet entered bearing two lighted candles, one of which was extinguished as the couple were made one. The little flower maidens wearing dainty little gowns of white lace and yellow sashes were pictures of loveliness as they slowly marched down the aisles scattering rose petals before the bride. These were little Misses Mary Lawrence and Mary Ruth Greaves.

The bride entered on the arm of her father, Mr. J. A. Barker, who gave her in marriage, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Mr. F. D. Williams of Fayetteville. She was radiant in her semi-princess gown of duchess satin, hand embroidered, with trimmings of real lace and pearls. Her stately court train fell in soft folds from the shoulders and her misty tulle veil, which enveloped her figure, was caught to her hair with a single chaplet of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies, the shower extending almost to the floor. Her only ornament was a brooch of diamonds and pearls, the gift of the groom. During the ceremony Miss Gough played softly Nocturne by Chopin, and at the conclusion of the prayer the choir sang very softly, unaccompanied, "Oh, Perfect Love," Tannhauser's march was used for the recessional.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom left by auto for Fayetteville, where they took the north-bound train for Baltimore, New York and other points, after which they will visit the groom's parents at Chester, Nova Scotia, for several weeks, before going to Halifax, Nova Scotia, where they will make their home.

Mrs. Hennigar is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Alexander Barker, and has lived in Lumberton all of her life, and by her vivacious manner and pleasing personality has won many friends who will be loath to see her leave to make her home elsewhere. Dr. Hennigar is a dentist surgeon of much ability, and has made a number of friends during his visits to Lumberton.

Marriage of Miss Annie Rebecca Jones and Mr. John Stuart Butler. St. Pauls Messenger, Oct. 28.

A pretty but quiet marriage was solemnized at 8 o'clock last Monday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Heman Jones, near King Hiram, this county, when Miss Annie Rebecca Jones and Mr. John Stuart Butler were united in marriage by Rev. Joel S. Snyder.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March by Mrs. Robert Hutson, little Alberta Hale, niece of the bride, entered bearing the ring on a little heart-shaped tray. Then the bride, attended by Miss Ruth Jones, her sister, as maid of honor, was met at the improvised altar by the groom, attended by his brother, Mr. J. Butler, as best man, where the vows were made. The happy couple left on the 10:50 train for Washington City and other points. On their return they will be at home on Northrop street. Mrs. Butler is very popular here with a large circle of friends, having been a member of the graded school faculty the past two years. Mr. Butler is an enterprising young lawyer and has the best wishes of a host of friends in his new happiness.

Among those present were Miss Nellie Butler, Fairmont; Miss Minnie Butler, Salemburg; Miss Elma Jones, Charlotte; Miss Pauline Jones, Fayetteville; Mrs. E. J. Hale, Fayetteville; Mr. and Mrs. Tate Ratley, King Hiram; Messrs. R. W. and June Rutler, Salemburg; Mr. Robert Henderson, Parkton; Prof. L. B. Olive, Delway; Mr. Breece, Fayetteville; Mr. Jones, Wake Forest; Mr. J. A. Barker, Roseboro; Messrs. S. R. Jones, L. I. Grantham and J. C. Lindsay, St. Pauls.

Pressing Clothes is as Much an Art as Making Them

We claim that to properly and thoroughly press any kind of garment it must be done on a Hoffman sanitary steam clothes pressing machine. This method produces the natural body shape in clothes of every description, raises the nap, brings out the color, gives the garment an appearance of newness and causes it to last much longer. SUCCESSFUL MEN

JOHN ROACH.

John Roach was born in Ireland of poor parents, and at the age of fifteen was sent to America, and landed in New York without money, friends or trade. He worked his way over into New Jersey, and secured a job with the Howell Iron Works. Ten years went by and he had become an Iron Worker.

His first business venture was made with some other workmen of the foundry. They started a small foundry and called it the Astoria Iron Works, which for several years prospered remarkably. But one day the boiler in the engine room exploded, and in one moment Roach was made a poor man again.

Nothing daunted him, however. He obtained credit and reorganized the company which speedily grew.

In 1880 he was the lowest bidder and obtained a contract to build the great iron draw-bridge, piers and all, over the Harlem River. Smaller swinging bridges had been built, but nothing like this one had ever been attempted. He went to work and when he finished the bridge it was said there never was a more complete success in iron work, masonry, and engineering.

The foundation of Roach's success was hard work and thorough knowledge of anything he undertook.
