NOMINATION OF BRANDIES CONFIRMED BY SENATE

Finds One of Bitterest Contests Ever Waged Against a Presidential Nominee
Washington Dispatch, June 1.
The nomination of Louis D. Brandeis of Boston, to the Supreme Court to succeed the late Joseph Rucker Lamar was confirmed by the Senate today by a vote of 47 to 22. The vote, taken without debate, ended one of the bitterest contests ever waged against a Presidential nominee. Mr. Brandeis will be the first Jew to occupy a seat on the Supreme bench.

Only one Democrat, Senator Newlands, voted against confirmation. Three Republicans, Senators LaFollette, Norris and Poindexter, voted with the Democratic majority, and Senators Gronna and Clapp would have done so but were paired with Senators Borah and Kenyon. The negative vote of Senator Newlands was a complete surprise to the Senate and the Nevada Senator, recognizing that his action had aroused comment, later made public a formal explanation.

"I have a high admiration for Mr. Brandeis as a publicist and propagandist of distinction," said Senator Newlands. "I do not regard him as a man of judicial temperament, and for that reason I have voted against his confirmation."

Throughout the fight President Wilson stood firmly behind his nominee, never wavering, even when it seemed certain that an unfavorable report would be returned by the Senate Judiciary committee. Before the committee voted he wrote a letter to Chairman Culberson, strongly urging prompt and favorable action.

The nomination of Mr. Brandeis was sent to the Senate January 28. It was referred to the Judiciary committee, and immediately a flood of protests, protests confirmation and memorials in favor thereof began to pour in.

A sub-committee consisting of Senators Chilton, Fletcher, Walsh, Cummins and Works, appointed to report on the nomination, adopted the unusual course of holding public hearings. Clifford Thorne, railroad commissioner of Iowa, was the first witness, protesting against confirmation on the ground that Mr. Brandeis had been guilty of unprofessional conduct in handling the 5 per cent rate advance case before the Interstate Commerce Commission. Sydney W. Winslow, president of the United Shoe Machinery Company, testified that Mr. Brandeis had been guilty of unprofessional conduct in relation to his company, and shortly thereafter Austin G. Fox, a New York attorney, appeared before the committee as the representative of 55 citizens of Boston, headed by A. Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard, and took charge of the opposition. Then United States District Attorney George W. Anderson of Boston, at the request of the committee, undertook the direction of the case for those favoring confirmation.

Girl Shoots and Kills Sister Accidently—First Cotton Blossom and Corn Tasseling
Correspondence of The Robesonian.
Claxton, Ga., R. 1, May 29.—As I am a reader of The Robesonian, please allow me space in your paper to express a few thoughts.

We have had an awful dry spring this time out this way, but we had some good rain during the past week and crops are looking fine. Mr. L. H. Revels, a farmer of this section, has the honor of showing the first cotton blossom, which he found in his field this morning, and also his corn is tasseling.

Conference will convene at Mt. Zion church Saturday before the first Sunday of June.

An awful accident happened near here last Thursday when Mr. Egerton's daughter, age 15, shot and killed her oldest sister Edna with a breech loading gun about 5 o'clock in the evening. The girl did not think the gun was loaded when she picked it up off the bed and through a joke pointed it towards her sister Edna and told her to throw up her hands and this Miss Edna refused to do. Then the girl with the gun, not knowing the gun was loaded, pulled the trigger, and the gun fired and killed her sister instantly. This was a great shock to the entire community. The body was laid to rest in the Lotts Creek cemetery near Statesboro.

THE THINKER

Back of the beating hammer
By which the steel is wrought,
Back of the workshop's clamor
The seeker may find the Thought.
The Thought that is ever master
Of iron and steam and steel,
That rises above disaster
And tramples it under heel!

Back of the motor's humming,
Back of the belts that sing,
Back of the hammers drumming,
Back of the cranes that swing,
There is the eye which scans them
Watching through stress and strain,
There is the mind which plans them—
Back of the brawn, the Brain!

Might of the roaring boiler,
Force of the engine's thrust,
Strength of the sweating toiler,
Greatly in these we trust,
But back of them stands the Schemer,
The Thinker who drives things through;
Back of the Job—the Dreamer
Who's making the dream come true!
—Berton Braley.

UP SADDLE TREE WAY

Proud of Saddle Tree No. 1—Personal Mention and a Variety of Comment

Correspondence of The Robesonian.
Saddle Tree (Lumberton, R. 2), May 31.—The weather is fine and all the farmers are busy fighting the unweelcome and getting potato plants where they can grow.

This correspondent belongs to the community known as Saddle Tree No. 1, which is the white. There is also a place known as Saddle Tree No. 2, which is Indian. The boys of Saddle Tree No. 1 are a part of Oak Grove baseball team. We are justly proud of Saddle Tree No. 1 and hope to see a brighter day in the future.

We have just finished Mrs. Florence Brown's interesting letter in The Robesonian. Hope she will write often.

Well, somebody seems to think the Saddle Tree girls have the leap year spirit. "May be so." They are a right independent set and are very well content as they are—just a jolly, happy bunch of all descriptions. They don't write to boys first, though, and never take any risk with strangers. A number of our people attended church at Barker's Sunday p. m. and heard a good sermon by Supt. Barnes of the Methodist orphanage at Raleigh.

Little Misses Josie Lee and Ida May McKenzie of Lumberton spent Saturday and Sunday here.

Miss Mary Regan, who has been in Lumberton for the last two weeks, spent Saturday and Sunday with home folks.

Mr. Angus McRae of Petersburg, Va., and Mr. Ernest Smith of Maxton visited at the home of Mr. F. P. Humphrey.

A number of young folks enjoyed a very pleasant entertainment at the home of Mr. F. P. Humphrey Thursday night.

Mr. Roy Lee Johnson of St. Pauls visited in this community Sunday.

Mr. John Sinclair of Shannon attended church at Saddle Tree Baptist church Sunday.

The pastor of Saddle Tree Baptist church received a message early Sunday morning that some of his people were seriously sick.

If I am not mighty badly mistaken, some one has mistaken me for a preacher, judging from what I can get from the paper. Really, do my pieces sound like a man wrote them? Well, they may, but you are badly mistaken about it. I am only a girl and am not a preacher or a student of Saddle Tree school, either; but I used to be and I am a well-wisher for its progress still.

Rev. Mr. Miller, who is pastor of Red Springs Baptist church, will preach at Saddle Tree June 4th at 3 p. m. All who wish to hear a good sermon, come.

Mr. G. S. Harrell spoke the words Sunday that made Miss Sallie Baxley and Mr. Edgar Lowe partners for life.

The Saddle Tree girls are just a little timid about being called suffragettes, and some of them up to you down their heads and look up at you through their eyelashes if you call them so. But they are all willing to stand for right. We love the cause that makes us bold, we love our schoolmates, too. We love our little shabby hills. We love our booklets, too. Hurray for Saddle Tree school, Hurray for happy home, Hurray for the happy folks that there, good cheer for the sad ones, too. We love our waiving pines so true, we love our nation, too. We'll die for the cause we know is right. We'll stand by the cause that's true. We'll die for the cause we love, we'll stand by the cause that's right, we'll stand for the God that leads us on, we'll live for honor bright.

DEMOCRATIC PROSPERITY

"Never in American History Have Conditions Been So Favorable to American Business and American Industry," Says McAdoo
Charlotte Observer.

There will be general agreement with Secretary McAdoo in his Raleigh speech when he pictured the prosperous condition of this country. It is exactly true, as he says, that prosperity has permeated every corner of the United States and that every line of business is pulsating with it. Every industry "is driving at the top speed of profitable activity". Labor is not only employed at the highest wages ever known, but the demand in all parts of the country seems to be in excess of the supply. He was within bounds when he claimed that "never in American history have conditions been so favorable to American business and American industry. The dinner pail is not only full but overflowing. And contrary to Republican claims, it is not the European war that is responsible for this condition. It was the removal of the straight jacket in which the business of the United States had been cramped and limited by the old financial laws of the Republican party, laws that prevented the country from going the full limit of healthful and legitimate expansion. The straight jacket gave way to the Federal Reserve act, "the most constructive measure placed on our statute books in a half century". It was this act which protected the country against a panic in 1914 and Mr. McAdoo strikingly contrasts it with the ineffectiveness of the Republican Administration during the panic of 1907. The Secretary of the Treasury gives figures of the financial condition of the country and of its resources that he well classifies as "prodigious and almost unbelievable," but which better reflect the wide and deep and amazing prosperity of the country. The question in which the people are most interested is if this prosperity is permanent. Will it disappear at the conclusion of the war? Mr. McAdoo puts up so strong an argument that it is here to stay as to almost convince the Republicans, themselves. His analysis of conditions in the United States and of the possible economic effects of the war in Europe places this matter in the light of the greatest assurance and really does cast shame on the fright and timidity people profess to have manifested. It is in fact a discredit to the intelligence of the people of the United States, that, under conditions that will prevail at the close of the war, our economic safety and prosperity will have to fact the least peril. The Iraq of war orders will be a result least felt. Mr. McAdoo points out that the percentage of war orders as contrasted with the entire domestic and foreign commerce of the United States, "is insignificant". The orders that will come in from Europe for the restorative purposes of peace, for the construction of ruined industries and cities, as well as for the relief of the stricken markets of Germany and Austria, will far overshadow in volume and value all the war orders that have been poured into this country. Any way it may be figured out, this message that Secretary McAdoo gives the country is backed by facts that will bear the closest investigation. The assurance is founded upon the amazing economic strength of the United States, that has been developed by the United States, to which war orders have been merely incidental.

WHERE IT THRIVES

A Peculiar Truth About the Mail Order Business
From The Monroe Journal.

Now and then, and quite frequently, much complaint is heard about mail order houses taking out money. There will always be some mail order business, for in the great field of merchandise there are many articles which may not be found in every community. There are so many hundreds of things that people will buy when their attention is called to them that no local merchant can anticipate the fact and have the goods on hand. It would not pay him to have them for the irregular demand. But the great merchandise staples in every line can always be supplied by local merchants and the people will buy from them in preference to mail order houses if the local merchants do their part. Merely cursing the mail order houses gets nowhere. Any town which has a bunch of live merchants who are alert to attract their natural trade will not be troubled much by mail order houses. Mr. Rosenfield of Sears, Roebuck & Co. is said to have stated at a recent meeting of the American Ad. Club that his company makes a careful survey of the country to ascertain what communities are dead on the advertising proposition and that, where local merchants are not advertising in their town papers, right there is sent a flood of Sears-Roebuck catalogues. He said, "It always brings results far in excess of the same efforts put forth in territory where the local merchants use their newspapers."

Raleigh Cor. Greensboro News: Without reports from 14 counties Mr. Crosby, who is directing the moonlight school movement as the education secretary of the Farmers' Union, has received reports from 934 moonlight schools and the number of the taught in them is very near 10,000. The remaining 14 counties will doubtless run the grand total of schools to 1000 and the average is 10 to the school. This makes about 10,000 who have been taught to read and write, all through the volunteer movement among the teachers.

EXCURSION TO MARION, S. C.

Willing Workers Philathea Class of East Lumberton Methodist Church Enjoyed Outing—Royally Entertained by Pastor and Members of Spring Street Church of Marion

Correspondence of The Robesonian.
East Lumberton, May 31.—The "Willing Workers" Philathea class of East Lumberton Methodist Sunday school went on a picnic to Marion, S. C., May 27th. There are about 63 members in our class. A few did not go but we invited some more ladies and several young men, making a total of 57 who did go. We had a special car with plenty of room and every one was in a jolly good humor. We talked, laughed and sang. We were served with fruit by our teacher, Mr. W. H. Humphrey, and before we got there the lunch baskets were opened and judging from the way their contents disappeared there were not any sick ones along.

We were met at the train by Rev. M. McLendon, pastor of Spring St. M. E. church, Mrs. McLendon, Miss Alice McMillan, Mr. A. B. Boatright, Mr. J. U. Rowell and several others whose names we failed to get.

We formed in line and marched to Spring St. church. Then the pastor gave a welcome address, which was responded to by our teacher, Mr. Humphrey. Then we had some singing, Miss Alice McMillan presiding at the organ. Afterwards an old-fashioned handshake and get-acquainted smile. We were then served with delicious refreshments by the ladies of the church. Afterwards we again formed in line with Mr. J. V. Rowell in lead and visited the cotton mill, then the overall factory. From there over the town, which we think is very pretty. We were then taken to a drug store, where delicious cream was served to all, for which we again had to thank the Spring St. church.

People talk about "loving your neighbors"—the Marion people live the Golden Rule. They made it a red-letter day for us and one long to be remembered. Among the new friends some of us found some old ones not to be forgotten, among them Mrs. Madge Powers and Mrs. Rosa Currie. The latter is well known to most of us. Her home was formerly Lumberton.

The time was all too short, and before we knew it our watches told us we must needs hurry to the station, where the train was soon ready to leave. With an all-around handshake, good byes and laughter, we were off on the home stretch. The trip was made with the same good humor and every one declaring they never had a better time.

Our motto is "Willing Workers", and if our Marion friends will come over they will find us willing to try to give them a good time. Hope they will soon put us to the test.
MRS. MELISSA SHEPPERD,
Cor. Sec.

Forethought

People are learning that a little forethought often saves them a big expense. Here is an instance: E. W. Archer, Caldwell, Ohio, writes: "I do not believe that our family has been without Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy since we commenced keeping house years ago. When we go on an extended visit we take it with us." Extended everywhere.
