TYPHOID PREVENTION A PATRIOTIC SERVICE.

Epidemic Reported—Typhoid Costs State Millions of Dollars—Counties Making Arrangements to Fight Typhoid

On account of an epidemic of typhoid fever, of 25 or more cases, in one of the most prosperous counties of the State, but one that has never conducted an anti-typhoid campaign for its people, the State Board of Health is moved to say that while it does not believe that the food conservation idea is being over-stressed in the State, it does believe that the conservation of health is a matter quite as important from a patriotic viewpoint as any movement the State can adopt. The board says that it cannot imagine a greater calamity befalling the country than uncontrolled outbreaks of sickness and disease coupled with hunger and malnutrition. Therefore it is advising that while people do all in their power to raise more food and take care of what they make, that they become not unmindful of conserving the other important forces of life, particularly the productive forces like health.

The board points out that there are about 744 deaths from typhoid fever in North Carolina every year, and 7,440 cases of illness from this disease. Allowing $2,900 for each death, the accepted money value of a death from typhoid, this disease costs the State something like $2,157,600, which amount does not include any of the cost of the sickness or time lost by the 6,696 patients who got well.

Just here, the board believes, county commissioners can go a long way toward helping their counties to conserve their resources, both in money and human lives, by making arrangements for a campaign against typhoid this summer. They may have to spend a small sum of money to pay doctors for their time in giving the anti-typhoid vaccine, it is true, but the sum spent will in no wise compare with the sum saved, not only for this summer, perhaps, but for several years to come.

The means of preventing typhoid fever by vaccination, says the board, has so proven its efficiency, that Wake county and the city of Raleigh have made arrangements for another county and city campaign to be conducted this summer. Two years ago, this city and county were among the first in the State to wage a campaign. Greene county, also Caldwell, will conduct county-wide campaigns against typhoid this summer.

Common and Vulgar

The distinguished woman who made the literary address at the closing of the State Normal college at Greensboro may not have got off much poetry and classical references to literature, but she certainly told the young ladies some sensible and useful things. The most striking one was the statement that wastefulness is not only sinful but vulgar and common. Those of the present generation who imbibed the sentiment of the preceding generation which was necessarily clothed in an atmosphere of fragility, have never quite got over the idea then promulgated that waste was sinful. But somehow the idea of sin held not much check for the present generation. Expense and display and waste and extravagance might go on if it were merely sinful. Sinfulness might go hand along with other more rigorous doctrines of the past. But if waste is vulgar and common, it is something else. Of course it is vulgar and common and has always been, but nobody has been saying so. If the necessities of war should teach us that they will not be in vain.

And the lady speaker told something else, close akin to the other. That is that she had noticed that the expenditures for dress were always on a rising scale, a bull market, so to speak. Now, if a man had said this, we men folks might have been afraid to repeat it. But it was not a mere man. It was a woman, and one speaking with apparent authority before a body of women. So to speak, it is ex cathedra. Did the lady mean to say that the women might take a spoonfull less of sugar and a dollar's worth more of hose? Did she mean to say that—or but what's the use? The point is that if this war is going to put all the men to work, as we devotedly hope it will since we have a war, what should it do for the women in the matter of useless and extravagant expenditure?

"Plant the Whole Face of the Earth in Corn" Mrs. Lindsay Patterson in Progressive Farmer. Really it seems as if the least as well as biggest and finest thing we "Little Gardeners" can do this year is to plant the whole face of the earth in corn and depend on that almost entirely for our bread so the wheat may all go to the starving ones across the sea. Personally, I prefer corn bread anyhow, and everything that corn can be turned into is good. I even rejoice in the popcorn balls with the children, so it's no hardship. Then, too, eating corn bread will kill a whole flock of birds with one stone. It will enable us to "live at home" and reduce the high cost of living, which we bring on ourselves by paying some farmer West or North, who has no more sense than we have, to raise food for us that we could easily raise for ourselves. We could save the freight, and the railroads could turn their attention to coal and other necessities that must be hauled. We could keep our money at home—except plenty for the foreign missionaries. (Patience knows we don't ever want to be so economical that we let the servants of God suffer.) I fairly lie awake at night thinking of places to plant corn or Clay peas.

THE SEASIDE ASSEMBLY

Prospects Brighter Than Ever Before Charity and Children.

Notwithstanding the turbulence of the times, the prospects for the Seaside Assembly at Wrightsville Beach are brighter than ever before. One reason for the hopeful outlook is that Dr. John Jeter Hurt, the pastor of the First Baptist church of Wilmington is on the spot, and Dr. Hurt is a man who has never been able to spell the word fail. And the program committee has done excellent work in providing a list of speakers that would make an assembly a success at Pembroke or Parmele. The Assembly opens June 28th and will wind up on the 4th of July with a stirring address appropriate to the occasion by the most engaging public speaker in North Carolina—Governor Bickett.

On the list we observe such names as A. T. Robertson, D. D., of Louisville, one of the foremost Greek scholars in the world. Rev. Wesley Bruner of Raleigh will deliver several lectures on evangelism, and it would be hard to surpass this selection anywhere in the South, as Dr. Bruner was for years the head of the Home Board's evangelistic force. The pastor's conference will be in charge of Dr. Vines of Charlotte, Dr. Hale of Lexington, Dr. Graves of Wake county and Rev. W. C. Barrett of Gastonia, and Rev. C. D. Graves of Wake Forest. Conducting the Woman's conference such women as Mrs. W. N. Jones of Raleigh, Mrs. H. T. Pope of Lumberton, Mrs. H. C. Moore of Raleigh, Miss Ruth Caldwell of Lumberton and Miss Bertha Carroll of Raleigh will appear. Special lectures will be delivered by Rev. R. F. Y. Pierce, D. D., of New York City, Rev. H. M. Wharton, D. D., of Baltimore, Rev. John Roach Straton, D. D. of Norfolk and Rev. B. D. Gray, D. D. of Atlanta. The music will be in charge of L.E.Wolslagel of Asheville.

Such a feast of reason and flow of soul has rarely been offered to our people. Mr. E. L. Middleton our Sunday school secretary is glowing with enthusiasm over the fine prospects and if this bill of fare will not draw a crowd to Wrightsville they cannot be drawn. The hotels will not over charge. Arrangements have already been made, and the prices of entertainment will be reasonable ranging from $1.50 to $3.00 a day. We sincerely hope to see a great outpouring of our people to this fine beach—the finest on our southern coast.

Sunday School Reading Rooms at Wagram

Charity and Children. Pastor W. E. Goode of the Spring Hill church, in Scotland county, has established reading rooms in two of the Sunday school rooms of his church at Wagram, to be opened every night in the week under the auspices of the church. Papers and magazines will be contributed. Saturday and Sunday nights the rooms are closed, but every other night these reading rooms will be opened to all of the people in the town without regard to denomination, where they can spend the evening in quiet reading. Mr. Goode, who resides near the church, will supervise the matter himself. It is a great idea and we pass it on for the benefit of other pastors.
