Nature Proves Jobson Theory

Little Green Spots Where Stumps Have Been Dug Teach Farmers A Valuable Lesson—Same Medicine Good For The Whole Field.

Did you ever notice little patches of deeper green and higher stalks of wheat or corn out in the field where old stumps have been dug? These little heal by spots have never failed to show up in such cases, and they never will—because that ground has been loosened up to a depth and the roots have gone somewhere. Now get your Jobson and give the rest of the field the same medicine. There will be no more green spots because it will all be green.

This is just one illustration of the way John B. Jobson developed his Common Sense System of farming, in accordance with nature's laws, for bigger profits and constant improvement of the land. His remarkable plow, which is now being pushed by some of the leading public men and dealers in the country, is designed to make these methods cheap and practicable for the small farmer as well as the large planter. It's going to do a great deal for the food crops right here in this country.

PLANS FOR TRAINING ARMY

Readjustments of Forces at 15 of the 16 Cantonments.

Washington Dispatch, Oct. 9.

Orders issued today to commanders of national army cantonments disclose the War Department's complete plans for the training and organization of the first half-million men of the national army.

Shortage of men in three national guard divisions in the South, the 30th, 31st and 39th, coupled with a decision to form a new national army division of negro troops has made necessary a readjustment of the forces at 15 of the 16 cantonments. The geographical completion of three national army divisions will be changed entirely as a result.

General Bliss, chief of staff, issued this explanation:

"The selected men that are now being gathered into the 16 national army cantonments will be used to form the first force of 500,000 men authorized in the act of Congress approved May 18, 1917, and to fill up the national guard divisions to practically the maximum strength of the new organization. The balance of the 687,000 selected men will be used to supplement the voluntary enlistments for the special and technical troops that are an important part of the organization of a modern army. It is expected that the voluntary enlistments for the regular army will be enough to keep that branch of the nation's forces filled up to strength without transferring men to it from the first selection for the national army.

"The force of 500,000 men will be organized into 16 white divisions and one colored division. One white division will be organized at each of the 16 national army cantonments, and the units of the colored division will be organized at the various cantonments where the number of colored troops is sufficient to organize a divisional unit.

AN OPERATION AVERTED

Philadelphia, Pa.—"One year ago I was very sick and I suffered with pains in my side and back until I nearly went crazy. I went to different doctors and they all said I had female trouble and would not get any relief until I would be operated on. I had suffered for four years before this time, but I kept getting worse the more medicine I took. Every month since I was a young girl I had suffered with cramps in my sides and periods was never regular. I saw your advertisement in the newspaper and the picture of a woman who had been saved from an operation and this picture was impressed on my mind. The doctor had given me only two more days to make up my mind so I sent my husband to the drug store at once for a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and believe me, I soon noticed a change and when I had finished the third bottle I was cured and never felt better. I grant you the privilege to publish my letter and am only too glad to let other women know of my cure."—Mrs. THOS. MCGONIGAL, 3432 Hartville Street, Phila., Pa.

American Navy's War Construction Program.

The American navy's war construction program consists of 787 vessels, including all types from super-dreadnought to submarine chasers. In making this announcement Tuesday Secretary Daniels said some of the vessels have been completed within the past few weeks and are now in service and that the remainder of the program is being rushed. The total cost is estimated at $1,150,400,000. Secretary Daniels said he expected the first of the new destroyers to be launched and commissioned within nine months. They will be of the latest, largest and improved type, which have just been tried by the American navy and found to be unsurpassed by any destroyers in the world.

"Thousands of men will be required to man these destroyers," the Secretary's statement said, "and we are now training them. By the time the vessels are completed, the crews will be ready."

Next Increment Moves October 26.

The next movement of troops to Camp Jackson, Columbia, S. C., will be on October 26 instead of October 17, as had been announced, according to a dispatch of the 11th from the camp. The dispatch stated that a large number of white men are yet to report from North Carolina and Florida, and South Carolina had 3,000 negroes then to report. The population of Camp Jackson on that date had grown to 15,305 soldiers, while 1,389 had been rejected on account of being physically unfit for military service.

CHEROKEE INDIANS OF ROBESON

They Need More and Better Schools—No Provision for Care of Insane of the Race.

To the Editor of The Robesonian: I desire through your columns to make an appeal to the people of Robeson county in particular and to the people of the State of North Carolina in general.

I will say, in the first place, that I am deeply interested in the welfare of the Cherokee Indians, of which race I am a member, and I have always done and will continue to do all within my power for the educational, industrial and agricultural advancement of the people of my race. No man can succeed in this day and time who is not mentally prepared for the battle of life. And unless there are better school facilities for the Cherokee Indians there is no chance in the world for them to make very much advancement. The question arises in the minds of thoughtful men: "Can the State of North Carolina afford to neglect these people? Is it not much better to assist them and thereby make better citizens out of them than it is to neglect them and thereby bring reproach upon the fair name of the State?"

This great world war has offered the Cherokee Indians of this and adjoining counties an opportunity to show exactly where they stand when their country's very existence is threatened. I want to say this, and I do not say it boastfully, that there are no more loyal people in the United States of America today than the members of the Cherokee tribe of Robeson county, North Carolina. They have ever been faithful to their country, State and nation. Robeson county has already contributed about 75 boys for the training camps, and will unquestionably be called on for many more. And there is no better evidence of one's devotion to his country than that he is willing to lay down his life for the flag that gives him protection. And again I will say that the Indians of Robeson county are going to these training camps willingly and freely and with a common purpose to give their country the very best that is in them. But it is sad to me that these very boys who are glad to thus serve their flag cannot write to the folks at home. A large majority of them have not had the advantage of an education, and it is pitiful that while away from home and loved ones they have to depend on a friend to communicate with the ones at home. We need more and better schools and let us hope that the Cherokee Indians of this county will so conduct themselves that when this great war is at an end the country they have served so unselfishly will recognize that they are worthy of assistance and will give it.

And one other thing I want to say is this: But very few of our people know that the State has made no provision for the treatment of those of our race who are insane. No appropriation has ever been made for taking care of these unfortunate people. I believe that the time will come when the people of this State will understand our needs and come to our assistance. ABNER CHAVIS, St. Paul, N. C. Oct. 8, 1917.
