CHURCH NEWS NOTES

No Bigger-Hearted People.

In remarks before beginning his sermon at Chestnut Street Methodist church yesterday morning the pastor, Rev. Dr. R. C. Beaman, said that it had never been his lot to serve bigger-hearted and more generous people than some who worship at that church. Last Sunday he said he made a brief appeal for the war work of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and asked for $75 for the work, the allotment of this church. Many of the congregation were out of town, but those who were there subscribed nearly $100. Dr. Beaman said that while the board of stewards had given him the entire month of August for a vacation the church would not be without the regular services more than one or two Sundays. He said that he could never be comfortable taking a vacation away from home while the doors of his church were closed, and that he very rarely takes a vacation on that account.
