MARTIN LUTHER STUART.

A Young Man of Bright Promise Who Died at Camp Hancock-Two Other Heroes.

Correspondence of The Robesonian. Gaddysville (Fairmont, R. 1), Dec. 3.-In the passing of Martin Luther Stuart, who succumbed to an operation resulting from influenza-pneumo-nia in Camp Hancock, our section loses one of its most talented young men. Mr. Stuart was a man of most remarkable business ability. Prior to his leaving for the camp he held a very responsible position with a large tobacco comany. At one time he spent a couple or three years in Turkey, managing their interests there. He had traveled extensively, being in the Dardanelles at the time of the memorable British bombardment. Mr. Stuart was in Germany during the critical days before our entrance into the war, and was in Berlin or the Austrian capitol the day we declared war on the Central Powers. After many trying experiences he escaped to Berne, Switzerland, a neutral state, and thence to his own country. He was a devoted member of Centenary M. E. church and a gentlemanly, square man, loyal to his God, church
