SITUATION IN EUROPE.

Italian Claims Reach Acute Stage—Chaotic Conditions Prevail at Munich.

The Associated Press gave the following summary this morning: The situation surrounding Italy's claims before the peace conference for rights along the Adriatic seaboard has reached an acute phase.

The council of four Sunday again listened to arguments by Premier Orlando and Foreign Minister Sonnino, who endeavored to straighten out the tangle, but their efforts seemingly wet for naught, so far as a give-and-take method of settling the controversy is concerned.

President Wilson did not take part in the session of the council and it is asserted that Monday, when a further effort will be made to surmount the obstacles which are hindering an agreement, he likewise will be absent. The Italian statesmen will depart for Rome Monday and wish to place before parliament the result of their work in Paris.

Italy, it is asserted, is still desirous of obtaining the entire Dalmatian coast and adjacent islands and also the city of Fiume, without sharing the territory with the Jug-Slavs. The Italian army is declared to be behind the Italian premier in obtaining complete fulfillment of Italy's aspirations.

The threat is said to have been held out in a dispatch to the premier from the heads of the Italian army that in case Italy's desires were not acquiesced in Italy without reference to the conference would occupy the regions to which she considered herself entitled.

The talk of the formation of an alliance to protect France from further aggressions by Germany has brought forth the statement from a high source in the American peace delegation that the United States will enter into no alliance which would be inconsistent with the spirit of the league of nations. President Wilson conferred with Premier Clemenceau Sunday afternoon, but the nature of their talk was not disclosed.

Chaotic conditions still prevail at Munich, where the government troops appear to have been augmented and a battle for supremacy to be in immediate prospect. Sporadic fighting is reported to be in progress in the Bavarian capital.

The soldiers' council at Vienna has taken over the Austrian capital and purposes to administer it with a Bolshevik government. Troops representing the soldiers' council have occupied the parliament building. No trouble in the city is anticipated. The allied representative has issued a proclamation declaring that if there are disorders the food supply will be cut off.

Representative with plenipotentiary powers are to be demanded of Germany at Versailles when the peace treaty is handed to Germany. The council of four has informed Germany that representatives who are merely messengers cannot be received.

Free Physical Examination and Vaccination.

Dr. W. A. McPhaul, county health officer, has resumed the free physical examination of Robeson citizens. Examinations will be made in the office of the doctor here on Mondays. School children will be examined Saturdays. He will also vaccinate any person against typhoid on Mondays and Saturdays.

A public meeting of the Ten Mile local of the Farmers' union will be held next Saturday at 3 p. m. State Senator H. E. Stacy will explain the township road bond law. All the citizens of Howellsville township are urged to attend the meeting. Other road matters will also be discussed.

MEN AND FLAG DECORATED.

An Impressive Military Event, First Of Its Kind in History of the State.

More than 2,000 of the flower of young American manhood, the remnant of that wonderful fighting unit of 3,600 men of the 120th infantry that went into the Hindenburg line, were guests of the people of the State at Charlotte last Wednesday. Some 40,000 people from all over the State helped Charlotte in its welcome to the soldiers. It was a great occasion, though rain interfered somewhat with the carrying out of the program.

The following report of one of the impressive ceremonies of the day is taken from the Charlotte Observer:

A double military event of the utmost impressiveness, the first of its kind in the history of the State of North Carolina, was held here early yesterday afternoon when three members of the 120th infantry, first to break through the Hindenburg line, and the flag of the 113th field artillery, Thirtieth division, (North Carolina) were decorated. The individuals received the American distinguished service cross from Brig. Gen. Samuel L. Faison, commanding Camp Jackson. Those heroes decorated were Private William M. Wallace of Othello, N. C., Private James R. Williams, of Peytonburg, Ky., and Private Pete McCoy, of Thomas, Ky.

Privates Wallace and Williams won their decorations when they rescued a wounded comrade from an exposed position in front of the lines near Mazinghein, France, October 19, 1918.

A remarkable story of fighting was succinctly told in the citation of Private McCoy. He, single-handed, killed seven Germans and captured seventeen others, also captured four hostile machine gun emplacements and rescued a wounded officer of his regiment, whom Private McCoy sent to the rear in charge of another soldier.

In an interview after the ceremony, Private McCoy told a representative of The Charlotte Observer that he would have killed the 17 Germans he captured "if that wounded officer had not waked me up." Private McCoy added that "I guess I was crazy, for I remember it all as if I were dazed while I was fighting, but I knew it was kill or be killed. When that officer begged me to listen to the pleading of those Germans, I waked up and told them to surrender. They did. Then I got sick and weak for blood was all over my hands and body. I guess I wanted to save my life more than to be brave, when I was in that little scrap. You know, I run upon those fellows and there was nothing for me to do but die. I thought, so I decided I wanted to take at least one with me, maybe that way I could save a comrade's life. I did not want them to kill my comrades, so I guess I got so fighting mad I went a little bit crazy for the time."

A STRANGE BURGLAR.

Thief Who Entered Methodist Parsonage Was a Queer Bird—He Took a Pair of Hose and Silver Money But Shied at Watches and Paper Money—Rain Coat Recovered.

Nowhere is it written that in these days a pair of silk hose shall be taken and two wrist watches shall be left, but it is now truthfully written that so it happened at the Methodist parsonage last Wednesday night when a thief made a leisurely round of the rooms while Rev. Dr. R. C. Beaman and his family were at the church hard by engaged in worship at the mid-week prayer service.

Mention of the robbery was made in Thursday's Robesonian, but further details increase one's wonder at what manner of thief it was that deliberately selected for robbery the home of a preacher while he and his family were known to be engaged at church. For, look you, this thief's actions were marked by strangeness throughout.

His trail led to every room in the house, showing that he figured that he had plenty of time; and it is that a confederate was on the watch on the outside. From Miss Kathryn Beaman's room on the second floor he took a new pair of silk hose and left unmolested a wrist watch lying in plain view on her dresser nor did he take the contents of her purse, which also was in plain view. Across the hall, in Dr. Beaman's study, he took from a drawer one dollar and ten cents in silver—2 half-dollars and a dime—and left, lying right where he got the silver, two dollar bills. Downstairs, in Mrs. Beaman's room, he passed up a perfectly good watch again—he did not have any time for watches—and took some things of less value. On the back porch he got Dr. Beaman's rain coat, from the bath room he got a flash-light, and from the dining room and kitchen he got a supply of victuals, which he wrapped up in a cloth, also secured in the house, and evidently passed out to a confederate, who placed it under the steps, where it was found, the thieves having to abandon it in their quick departure.

As stated in Thursday's Robesonian the thief was in the dressing room adjoining the bedroom on the first floor when Dr. and Mrs. Beaman returned from church. Dr. Beaman went to the back porch for a drink of water and Mrs. Beaman started into the dressing room. When she tried to open the door she felt some one resist and immediately the door was opened and a man pushed by her as she stood in the doorway. Mrs. Beaman was coming and Mrs. Beaman did not understand as hurriedly as he might if he had understood that it was urgent; but he got into the room in time to see the thief take a dive head-first through the side window, through a screen. While Dr. Beaman was coming and Mrs. Beaman was calling for help the man, or boy, brushed books from a table beside the window and tried to remove the screen, failing in which he stood no longer upon the order of his going but dived through.

The next morning the rain coat was found by Mr. Frank McLean where the thief dropped it in a bundle beside the Standard Oil Co.'s tank near the Seaboard freight depot. Nothing else has been recovered and who the thief or thieves was or were remains an unsolved mystery.

All Members of "Old Hickory" Division Have Returned to American Soil.

With the arrival of the transport Zealandia at Charleston Friday the entire 30th division has been returned to this country. The division comprises the national guard units from North and South Carolina and Tennessee and did valiant service, its infantry and engineer units having the distinction of being the first to break the "impregnable" Hindenburg line and the entire division being cited in British and American orders for gallantry in the performance of duty.

Aboard the vessel were four companies of the 105th engineers from North Carolina and Tennessee, these men having all done service with the 30th division at the breaking of the Hindenburg line. There were also several detachments from base hospitals in every section of France. Most of these were officers. Every State in the union was represented among the troops and more than 20 divisions.

The first restro troops to land at Charleston embarked from the transport, there being something over 500 of them. These men were in the supply service and with very few exceptions wore three gold service stripes each, the sign of 18 months overseas service.

Travel Allowance to Discharged Soldiers Only to Point Where Mustered In.

Travel allowances of five cents a mile to discharged soldiers authorized by a recently enacted law can be paid only to cover expenses from the point where the soldier was discharged to the place where he was originally mustered into the service. Comptroller of the Currency W. W. Warwick transmitted a ruling to this effect Friday to the War Department.

The opinion was rendered at the request of Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, retiring chairman of the Senate military committee, following the receipt of complaints from soldiers who came from California to Camp Meade, Maryland, to enlist and upon being discharged were without sufficient funds to pay their fares back to the Pacific coast.
