

HEALTH AND HYGIENE

(Conducted by Dr. W. A. McPhaul, County Health Officer.)

WOULD YOU SHARE YOUR CHILD'S FOOD WITH THE FLY

Flies are the natural enemy of children usually very successful enemies, because the younger the child the more helpless the victim. Flies breed in filth—manure piles too near the house, open privies, dead carcasses. Flies cause diarrheal diseases and typhoid fever.

The house fly will breed in almost any fermenting organic matter, but prefers horse manure and takes as second choice human excreta. The female fly lays on an average 120 eggs at a time and may do this several times during her life time. During midsummer, eggs of the fly hatch in eight hours, and in five days the eggs has evolved to an adult fly capable of infecting the food for the entire family. The life of an adult fly may deal death to as many people, if they are available and opportunity presents. Flies do not live on clean premises.

In some places the fly is called typhoid fly, and in others, the diarrheal fly, and this should be taught to school children to remind them of the business of flies, that of causing typhoid fever and diarrhea.

Hot weather, filth, flies and diarrhea all go together—Why? Flies breed more rapidly in hot weather; they are dependent upon filth for a breeding place, and whenever there are flies and a baby in close proximity, there will also be found diarrhea.

The fly is bred in filth, hatched in filth lives in filth, and is the filthiest creature on earth. The fly has the filthiest habits—one moment crawling over excrement and filth, the next flying in the window and alighting on pies, or on fruit one is preparing to lift to the mouth.

Flies are not necessary and their presence in your home show an indifference on your part to the health of your family and your baby particularly.

If you desire to rid yourself of flies it will be necessary first to protect all food from their contamination. To do so, screen the windows, and doors, cover the garbage pail, clean the stables, build sanitary privies, construct fly trap and use a swatter. Second get your neighbors to do likewise. Get your community interested in exterminating flies, get the boys and girls interested in fighting them, get the boys to making fly traps, and teach the children to hate flies and to be ashamed to have them about, swatting them wherever they make their appearance in the house. Start the campaign before the flies get a start—begin with the fight before the eggs are laid or hatched—and keep it up without ceasing.

Babies are the prey to flies; if their bed is exposed to flies they crawl all over them during their day time sleep, speck their faces and lips. The food and its containers are not forgotten by the fly, as particularly like the articles of food usually give to the child. All babies have not the robust constitution to throw off the germ deposited by flies, which get in to their stomachs and intestines. As an act of humanity every one should protect the child from the fly, but a parent should be ashamed to allow his child to be exposed to the danger of the filthiest of all creatures—the fly.
