ones elstat ut Money

.YOUNG man who recently inherited a mammoth fortune speaking of what his friends called his "good fortune," said: "It is not all the 'good fortune' it seems to be. With it has come a sense of responsibility that weighs and worries.

Moreover, I no longer hold the place among my former friends that I used to hold and want to retain. They envy me, and envy isolates. I cannot associate in the same old way. If I entertain my friends moderately I learn that I am accused of being miserly. If I en-tertain them lavishly I know they must feel that I put them beyond the hope of reciprocating courtesies. I find my money is putting my friends to the test quite as much as me. I am anxious to use my money for the good of others, not alone for my good.

"Those who can share that thought with me and help me in that desire are few. My 'good fortune' has built a wall about me."

Money is the insgnia of labor. It represents the investment of brawn and brain. He who wastes it wants. He who squanders it upon his own pleasures and pastimes is forced to feel the waste even though his resources be so inexhaustible that he may never feel the pinch.

Man's worth is measured by his earnest eagerness to help others.

The closest personal advisor of one of the richest men in America recently told us that his friend, whose income was over half a million dollars a day, needed no counsel in the game of getting, but he eagerly sought help in the game of giving. To help men without hurting them was the problem which perplexed him.

"Do I live for myself or for others,-am I altruistic or egotistic,-am I merely my own keeper or am I my brother's keeper?"-these are the problems which money forces you to face; and you face them just as squarely with four hundred a month as four millions a month. It is good to feed bread to the hungry, but it is better to find out why they are without bread, to help them get their own bread than give them your bread.

The highest philanthropy is more than charity. The curse of the world is poverty. The great war of the twentieth century is going to be the war against poverty.

So long as money represents the product of labor, the getters and givers of money will find their opportunity for happiness only through the privilege of enlarging the markets of labor, rightly rewarding labor and giving just returns to them who invest their brawn and brain for the good of their brothers a: well as for the good of themselves.
