Congress Faces This Week Important Issues

Senate Will Vote Again Tuesday on Postal Salaries Measure—Muscle Shoals Problem and Supply Bills Next

Washington, Jan. 4.—With only two months remaining before sine die adjournment March 4, Congress is expected this week to dispose of several important issues which have been hanging fire since the last session, among them the postal pay question and the McFadden banking bill. The Senate has agreed to vote again Tuesday on the postal salaries measure, while the House expects to reach a vote by Saturday on the McFadden proposal. Other legislation including the Muscle Shoals question which has been before the Senate for some weeks, will be laid aside tomorrow for a discussion of the postal pay and rate problem. It is expected that attempts will be made to put through the administration bill providing for increases in both postal rates and salaries and, in the event of its failure, send the vetoed salaries bill back to committee.

Such developments would come before 4 p. m. Tuesday, the hour set for a vote on the question of sustaining the presidential veto, with the possibility that action might be taken by the Senate which would make a vote on the veto unnecessary.

After the postal question is out of the way, the Senate again will be in position to resume consideration of the Muscle Shoals problem, and to dispose of the annual supply bills, none of which has been taken up as yet.

In the House, appropriation bills, four of which already have been passed, will be relegated to the back-ground tomorrow to permit consideration of a wide range of measure on the unanimous consent calendar. Action on these bills will be made possible by the announced decision of supporters of the Howell-Barkley bill to abolish the railroad labor board not to call the proposal up tomorrow, when under the rules consideration would be in order.

On Tuesday the House is expected to reach a final vote on the army supply bill, and after devoting Wednesday to miscellaneous measures, to take up on Friday an urgent deficiency appropriation bill which will carry among other items, more than $100,000,000 to be used in refunding taxes illegally collected.

During the week the House committee investigating the aircraft industry will resume hearings, while the Senate sub-committee which has before it the Cramton bill to place prohibition enforcement under a separate bureau in the treasury department plans to hear additional testimony in opposition to the proposal.

LONG BRANCH LOCALS

School Resumes Work With Many New Scholars—Personal Mention:

(By Eudora Israel) ... Long Branch, (Lumberton R. 4), Jan. 3.—Christmas passed quietly and we all return to our work with the New Year.

School began its work Monday with many new scholars. The teachers are doing excellent work this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Gun Miller and family have moved into this community and are warmly welcomed. They formerly lived at Lake View, S. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Aric Britt of Fairmont spent Christmas with Mrs. Britt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Smith.

Mr. W. J. Britt has returned home after touring Georgia and Florida, in his Ford truck.

Miss Eudora Israel of this section spent Christmas week in Bloomingdale visiting friends and relatives.

This community was grieved to learn of Mr. W. C. Britt's being shot. He had lived in this section for the past several years.

All smiles with Mr. and Mrs. Enoch Britt: it's a girl.

Mr. Iryn Stone and family have moved to his new six-room bungalow near Mathews bluff.

Messrs. Prett Stone, Henry Mishue and Thomas Jackson, all of Rowland, were callers at the home of Mr. J. W. Israel, Christmas evening.

Washington The Robesonian and its readers happiness throughout the year.

PILGRIM'S PROGRESS

A subscriber sends the following clipping from some paper, not stated:

Almost everyone is familiar with the picture of the grim Pilgrim, accompanied by his wife and child, on their way to attend Thanksgiving services at the meetinghouse.

The Pilgrim is armed with prayer book and blunderbuss. His eye is peeled for danger as he trudges through the snowclad forest. He does not see the crafty Indians, hidden behind trees, merely waiting for an opportunity to make human pinions of the entire family.

This picture was supposed to depict the dangers braved by the early settlers as they wended their ways to give thanks for another year's blessings.

The modern man who starts with his family to attend a Thanksgiving service braves dangers of which the Pilgrim little dreamed.

Perhaps there are no Indians hiding in the shrubbery, but before the citizen can reach his car, parked across the street, a highwayman may assault and rob him.

Once, the car is under way a hiacker may take him for a rum runner and open fire. A deputy sheriff probably will appear and announce that he is there by firing a few stray shots. If a policeman is in the vicinity he will shoot first and inquire later.

An airplane flying low is likely to drop a hot-water bottle on his head.

There are dangers of read-end collisions and those of the head-on kind.

There is the road hog who crowds the modern Pilgrim into the ditch.

There are blow-outs, broken steering knuckles, binding headlights and rade crossings.

Assuming that the meetinghouse or the old home place is reached, here is the danger of being run down in trying to negotiate the distance, on foot, from the parked car or the front gate. If travel is by rain or traction countless dangers are all about.

No sooner is the Thanksgiving dinner devoured than ptomaine poisoning begins, something the elder Pilgrim knew nothing about. Considering all these dangers it is no wonder so many men play golf on Thanksgiving morning—and even on the course a citizen is likely to be seamed by the amateur who never hinks to shout "Fore."

THE NEW YEAR IS YOURS; MAKE IT WORK AS A YEAR OUGHT TO

THIS is scheduled by all business prophets to be a year of quick action and economical selling methods. Which means that it will be an advertising year.

It will do for you just what you make it do.

Father Time is a costly employee if he's allowed to loaf. He's a thrifty one if he's kept at work.

An advertising program that makes Time work for you, instead of getting his board and lodging free, is your best plan of action for a prosperous and happy year.

The Secret of Interest.

To make your goods as attractive in your advertising as in their display is the secret of interesting readers.
