CREPING UP THE STAIRS. In the saftly-falling twitight Of a weary, weary day, With a quiet step I entered Where the children were at play: I was brooding o'er some trouble. That had met me unawares. When a little voice came ringing. Me is creepin' up a stairs."

Ah' it touched the tenderest heart-string With a breath and force Swine, And such melodies awakered As mere words can never define; And I turned to see your darling. All forgotful of my care s. When I saw the little creature Slowly creeping up the stairs.

Step by step she bravely clambered On her little hands and knees, Keeping up a constant chattering. Like a magpie in the trees, Till at last she reached the topmost When o'er all ber world's affairs She delighted, stood a victor, After crossing up the stairs.

ainting heart, beholve as image Of man's brief and struggling life, Whose best prize must be captured With a noble earnest strife; Onward; upward reaching ever, Bending to the weight of cares. Hoping, fearing, still expecting, We go creeping up the stairs.

On their steps may be no carpet, By their side may be no rail. Hands and knees may often pain us And the heart may almost fail; Still above there is the glory Wi ich no sinfulness impairs With its rest and joy forever, After creeping up the stairs.
