last, though by no means least, of those divisions into which you have divided the divisions into which you have divided the several matters over which you preside I mean the Public Roads. has been paid to the highways in this state. In the first place, there are so many of those roads, that the labour of opening and keeping them up is very consid it may seem to be an advantage, pose of accommodating travellers and knowledge of the geography of this state to pretend to point out the number and direction of the roads, which it would be proper to encourage ; but in the remarks which I shall submit on that subject, with great deference, I shall venture to differ from you in many respects. I take it for granted all along, that the state is to confine its assistance to those roads which are intended for carrying produce to market leaving it to the Courts or to others to open and keep up roads for other purpo ses. I shall also confine myself to the western part of the state, with which am best acquainted. assistance of the Treasury, from Wilkesborough : from thence there ought to be first, a road to Milton. As this road would pass through Surry and by the flourishing village of Sackingham, and Caswell, it would be come soon the highway their means from those and several neighboring counties, to Milton, to Lynchburg, and to Petersburg. Another road from the same place should be made at the public expense to ville, the great mart for flax seed, in considerable quantities in the countie of the west, and the place whence we obtain most of our salt. This road would coalesce, perhaps, with the last as far as Salem, or with the next as far as Salisbury The third of those roads should lead to fast in importance. The fourth and las to the South-Carolina line, on the way to Camden and Charleston ; large quantitic of cotton, spirits and provisions would b the country permits, and by kecping good bridges. If the state road from Morganton to Fayetteville should be properly improved, i: would be proper to in tersect it with a road from Salisbury, pro vided the Wilkes road to Fayetteville does not pass thod hild pass by and so on to the South-Carolina line, in mall and Columbia on the other These roads, you will easily perceive are calculated for the existing state of things, and are formed on the suppositio that many years must elapse before we have a great commercial city in this state employing capital enough to purchase al or the greater part of the produce of the state. But I would by no means lose sight of so desitable an object, and should have no objections to having a road from Now, Gentlemen, these roads and others, parts of the state with which I am not ac quainted, I would suggest should be entirely removed from the control of the County Courts and placed under the di rection of Commissioners; and when the ordinary road services shall be unequal the making and keeping them in good when they find themselves able to perform their trip in two-thirds of the perhey usually sp two-thirds of the time hore at a load. Now how has it happened as to give $20,000 or $25,000 for the expended 810,000 on all the roads in the State ? The Legislature, in three years, have appropriated 840,000 or more for he improvement and decoration of the State House, for the accommodation of itself and part of the officers of government, and it is to be hoped that it will not ment, and it is to be hoped that it will not efuse the application of half that sum for ameliorating the condition of thousands of the most laborious and most exposed of all their feilow-citizens. You will perof ail their feilow-citizens. You will perhaps excuse yourselves, by alleging that this address had better be made to the Legislature: I think otherwise. It is your province to inquire into the subject General Assembly as shall appear to you nost likely to conduce to the public good.

Be not discouraged at the failure of your proposal on a late occasion : the course ceptance. Perhaps it was not sufficiently matured by yourselves. But if i, or any thing like it, should be thought beneficial to the state, it will no doubt be eventually adopted.
