Lands for Sale.

Under a decree of the Court of Equity of Rowan County.

BY virtue of sundry decrees of the Court of Equity for Rowan county, made at October term, 1823, I will expose to public sale, at the Court-House in Salisbury, on Wednesday the 10th of December next, the following valuable tracts of Land, viz: One tract near Alexander Long's mill, not far from the mouth of Grant's creek, containing 93 acres; one other tract adjoining the lands of William Smith and Alexander Long, containing 91 acres; one other tract on the Yadkin river, below the mouth of Crane creek, containing 115 acres; three other tracts adjoining the last mentioned tract, containing together 394 acres; also, four lots lying in the great north square of the town of Salisbury, known and described in the plan of said town by Nos. 19, 20, 60 and 65: The above property belongs to the heirs at law of the late Alexander Frohock.

Also, at the same time and place, a tract of Land lying on the waters of Hunting creek, in the Forks of the Yadkin, adjoining the lands of Samuel Little, Baker Johnston and others, containing by estimation 2224 acres, belonging to the heirs at law of George Brandon, dec'd.

Also, at the same time and place, a tract of Land lying on the Yadkin river, adjoining the lands of Nathaniel Peebles, Willey Ellis, James Orrel, and others, containing 250 acres, more or less; and belonging to the heirs at law of Joshua Cayton, dec'd.

Also, at the same time and place, a tract of Land lying on the waters of Dutch Second creek, bounded by the lands of Michael Hoffman, John Trexler, and others, and containing 221 acres, being the same more or less, belonging to the heirs at law of John Pasinger, dec'd.

Also, at the same time and place, a tract of Land lying on a branch of Second creek, commonly called the Walnut Branch, adjoining the lands of George and Henry Robison, containing 200 acres, and belonging to the heirs at law of Margaret Robison, dec'd.

A credit of twelve and eighteen months will be given for the purchase money, on each of the above tracts of Land.

Also, at the same time and place, will be sold another tract, lying on the Waters of Wethers creek, joining the Leedell line, and adjoining the lands of Neil McKay, James Houston, David Foster, and others, containing forty-six or forty-eight acres, belonging to the heirs at law of Alexander Cook, dec'd. This tract will be sold on a credit of twelve months, with interest from the time of sale.

The purchasers will be required to give bonds with approved securities, in every instance, for the purchase money.

Tailoring Business, LINCOLNTON, N. C.

THE undersigned informs his friends and the public in general, that he has opened a shop of the above business in Lincolnton, N. C. where he will be ready at all times to attend to the business of those who may favor him with their custom; and from his long experience in the business, and his unremitting attention to his customers, he hopes to give general satisfaction, and still to merit a share of that patronage which has been so liberally extended to him heretofore, in the western parts of North-Carolina. He receives the latest fashions every six months regularly, from Philadelphia and Charleston. He spent part of last winter with Messrs. Solving and Ferguson, the first Tailors of Charleston, where he made himself fully acquainted with their rules of measuring and cutting; and he intends to spend part of his time with them occasionally, in order to make himself acquainted with the latest and newest fashions.

The business in his absence, will be conducted by a steady gentleman, and a man acquainted with his business.

I expect, in a very short time, to receive from Philadelphia, cards of directions for measuring, which I will distribute in the adjoining counties, in order to enable gentlemen to send their measures, and have clothes made without the trouble of attending in person.

Should any gentleman wish Cloths, I will attend to the purchase of them in any of the stores in Lincolnton,—or furnish them myself, according to directions. The Merchants in Lincolnton will generally keep excellent supplies of cloth.

His business will also be conducted, as heretofore, in Asheville, at his old stand, at Mr. James Patton's, under the firm of Clayton & Brown, where prompt attention shall be given.

Those who are in the habit of getting their clothes made in Charleston, I would recommend to Sebring & Ferguson, as I know them to be first rate Tailors.

N. B. The merchants of Asheville will hereafter keep a good assortment of cloths and cassimeres. DAVID CLAYTON. Asheville, Sept. 26, 1823. 3178

The undersigned has been long acquainted with Mr. Clayton, and have uniformly applied to him to do their Tailoring business. They feel no hesitation in recommending him as a man worthy of every degree of confidence, as a man of unexceptionable character and morals; and as a mechanic, he has never failed to our knowledge to attend to all orders with promptitude, and to execute every thing in the line of his business with neatness and despatch.

- James Patton, sen. Geo. D. Phillips, Jas. M. Smith, J. M'D. Carson, R. B. Vance, J. W. Carson, John Paxton, Isaac Craton, A. L. Erwin, P. Brittain, W. D. Smith, Geo. Swain, Jas. M. Alexander, Legis. Christmas, Thomas Forster, Saml. Chunn.

New Fashions.

THE subscriber having very lately received from his correspondent in Philadelphia the latest fashions from the celebrated shop of Robt. G. H. H. of that city, is now ready to do all kinds of work belonging to the Tailoring business. He pledges himself, that all those who may favor him with their custom, shall have their work done in the best style of the fashions of the day, and on reasonable terms. Travellers, and others, who wish garments made on short notice, can be accommodated with a whole suit, on a notice of two days. Orders from a distance punctually attended to.

POLITICAL.

FROM THE WASHINGTON REPUBLICAN.

MR. SOUTHARD.

The appointment of Mr. Southard, as secretary of the navy, is another evidence of the purity of our republican institutions, and of the reward bestowed on merit, however humble its origin. Mr. Southard has no patrician rank to boast of, and has risen solely by the force of talent. But a few years since, he was a private tutor in a family of one of our neighboring counties; and it almost defies credulity itself to observe with what magic art his mind has made its way. Let the purity and impartiality which has marked this appointment ever prevail, and we may with safety say to our country, "Live for ever."

We cannot here help relating an anecdote of Mr. Southard, which occurred in early life. Trifling incidents often obtain importance from circumstances; and the anecdote alluded to, had Mr. S. remained a schoolmaster, would probably never have been told to a second person. When about 18 years of age, Mr. S. was an usher in the academy at Mendham, N. J. at which the editor of this paper, then a small boy, was a student. Like most of his school fellows, his head was fuller of frolic than of study, and his proneness to mischief frequently exposed him to the ferula, which the principal, the reverend and truly pious Dr. Armstrong, used as we thought, with an unsparring hand. The arrival of Mr. Southard was a happy event. His disposition seemed conciliating, and we hoped to transgress with impunity. We were soon undeceived, however, for the birch was added to the ferula, and on one occasion the editor of this paper was brought up. It was his first offence; and the manner of the usher denoted a summary punishment. "Take off your coat," was the first salutation. How he performed this ceremony, those only can know who have tried it: however, at last the coat was off. "Stand up here, that I may give it to you fairly." These were the very words: although uttered eighteen years ago, I remember them as well as though it was yesterday. It was an anxious suspense. On one side were the eyes of thirty or forty of my playfellows, ready to witness my shame; on the other the uplifted rod of the vindictive usher. It was torture. The arm moved. I imagined the blow already on my back. No—it fell harmless by his side; and with a cool "Take your seat, sir!" I was dismissed. I was afterwards the best boy in the school. Had a sound whipping actually followed, it would have been regarded as a matter of course, and the circumstance have long since passed into oblivion. But the manner of the usher was every thing: it can only speak for itself. The principal of the academy remains at the head of an academy still, whilst the usher is become head of the navy department of the United States, and one of the cabinet councillors of the nation.

To the Editor of the Washington Republican. It is a fact, which probably may not have occurred to you, that the manifesto which accompanied the bill declaring the late war against Great Britain, (an extract from which was published in your paper of Tuesday last,) and which has been emphatically styled the second Declaration of Independence, was written by J. C. CALHOUN, as Chairman of the Committee of Foreign Relations, at precisely about the same age that Mr. Jefferson was when he wrote our first Declaration of Independence, which affixed the seal of immortality to his name. It is equally true that the devotion of Mr. Calhoun to republican principles and the true interests of his country, as is fully evinced by the whole course of his public conduct, has been as firm and undeviating as that of that great patriot, who was deservedly denominated "the man of the people."

The coincidence in the early part of the public career of these statesmen is singularly striking; and if there be a man entitled to the above imposing appellation, as that of "Jeffersonian Candidate," which has been claimed for another, that man is John C. Calhoun.—Wash. Repub.

The late refusal of the French Admiral to permit the United States' Frigate Congress, having on board our Minister to Spain, to enter the port of Cadix, has given rise to a good deal of comment, in a two-fold view; 1st, As regards the right of the French government to act thus towards the national ship of a neutral nation; and, secondly, as regards the conduct of Capt. BIRDIE, in turning aside from his object.

On the first of these points there are various opinions. We incline to think that a resort to written authorities will sustain the French government; whilst reason and courtesy, as well as the general practice, are against it. The British government, as tenacious of its privileges, and as presuming on its strength, as most other nations, and with great physical ability to maintain its constrictions of national law, has, on two occasions, permitted our national vessels, with Ministers on board, to pass through its blockading squadrons into belligerent ports. Without having examined the subject deeply, we should think that the conduct of the French Admiral ought to be, and probably will be, disavowed by his own government.

As to the other subject, we think some of our prints do great injustice to Capt. BIRDIE, in condemning his conduct, without having the means to form a proper estimate of it. There is no danger of a want of spirit in our Naval officers. The danger is the other way. We have no doubt Capt. B. has done his duty fully. There are circumstances connected with the transaction, we have reason to believe, which, when known, will exonerate him from blame, even by those most chary of the chivalry of the Nation, and of the Navy. We suggest to our brethren, therefore, to defer the expression of an opinion on the conduct of this absent and gallant officer, until they have before them the materials whereof to compose one.

EXTRACT.

It has not only been the complaint of all ages, that life is short, but that it is also full of care and anxiety.—Man, says Job, is born to trouble as the sparks fly upwards. What, then, is there so desirable in life, that we should be thus fond of it? Doubtless it has its pleasures as well as its pains. Though we sometimes meet with thorns and briars, yet, in many places, the way is strewn with flowers. It is for wise reasons, that the love of life is implanted in man, and though its sweets have an alloy of bitterness, yet there is enough of the former to reconcile him to the latter. As this mixture of good with evil is intended to make him satisfied with his condition here; so on the other hand, the blending evil with the good is designed as a proof of the imperfection of his present state, and to remind him that his time here is but a pilgrimage, where he has no continuing city, but that he has to seek another, not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

Physical Anomalies.—A gentleman in Windsor Co. Vt. whose hearing is perfect, can smoke for an hour together, and puff the smoke out at the ears, alternately. There is a blacksmith in the same place, who has but one turbinated bone in the right nostril; he has repeatedly seen him put a nail, 3 inches long, into his mouth, and push it out at the nose with his tongue; also put a cord into his mouth, and withdraw it from the nose.

Boston Med. Int.

Piccolly is the name of a pamphlet lately issued in this city, from the press of Phelps & Farnum. It purports to be conducted by "a club," and is to appear periodically. The ingredients in the first number are sufficiently spiced with humor, pun and repartee, to make it palatable among the devourers of light food.—We hope it may prove to be the legitimate successor of Salmagundi.

Boston Galaxy.

An experiment by carrier-pigeons has recently been made by a company at Liege. Twenty-two Pigeons set loose at Paris arrived at Liege, a distance of seventy-five leagues, in 4 hours. Another flight was loosed at Coblenz, a distance of thirty leagues; two of them reached home in two hours and a half.

A Mr. Fauz has published a book entitled "Memorable Days in America." The following is his noted recollection of one of those days: "Slept this night 68 miles from Columbia; a dreadful tempest all night—I found my bed alive with bugs, fleas, and other vermin; rose at two, to shake myself, and enjoy a sort of respite from these creeping, tormenting bedfellows. On opening my window I was annoyed by frogs innumerable, of two species; some loudly whistling or chattering like English sparrows at pairing time; others bitterly lamenting, like thousands of chickens deserted by their mother hens; others bellowing like cows in sorrow for weaning calves. This confusion from within and from without, from above and from below, spoiled my night's rest, and seemed to carry me back a few scores of centuries into Egyptian plagues."
