

SALISBURY

TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 27, 1824.

"Fusion," and others, next week.

THE PEOPLE WILL BE HEARD.

Perhaps on no former occasion, did the feelings of the great mass of the People enter more warmly into any question, than at the present time they do into the Presidential Election. As a proof of this, we need only mention the practice, now in operation in every part of this, as well as other states, of taking the voice of the People, at meetings and other public gatherings. Every mail brings us accounts of such trials of strength; and, in nine times out of ten, the result is the same—that is, Jackson is the favorite. These are indications not to be mistaken; they plainly show how North-Carolina will go in November next. Yet, strange to tell, after all these signs and demonstrations, the few friends of Mr. Crawford—the incredulous few—still stoutly assert that HE will get the vote of North-Carolina! They hear the voice of the People all around them, crying out for Jackson; they hear daily declarations against Crawford and caucus; yet still they say that Crawford and caucus will triumph! Strange delusion!

After the development of public sentiment already made in North-Carolina, every man of intelligence and candor must admit that Crawford has no chance of getting the vote of this state. We believe (and we have the best reason for believing) that either Jackson or Adams will get the 15 Electoral votes of North-Carolina.

At a muster of Capt. John McCulloch's company of Light Infantry, in this (Rowan) county, on the 17th inst. a vote was taken on the Presidency—the result was as follows:

Andrew Jackson, 27
John Quincy Adams, 16

The captain is a warm friend of Mr. Adams.

We are requested to say, that John Clement, Esq. is a candidate to represent the county of Rowan in the House of Commons of the next General Assembly of North-Carolina.

Mr. James Crowder, of Northampton county, in this state, was the fortunate holder of one half of the ticket which drew the $30,000 prize in the Maryland State Lottery.

We are requested to say, that Mr. James H. Clark, of Concord, is a candidate to represent the county of Cabarrus in the House of Commons of the next General Assembly of North-Carolina.

THE AUGUST ELECTION.

It is now apparent to every candid and intelligent mind, that the Electoral vote of North-Carolina cannot, in any event, be obtained for Wm. H. Crawford. The indications of every day plainly show that Gen. Jackson is the favorite of the People of this state; and that next to him, Mr. Adams is probably the strongest. Who, then, can for an instant doubt the success of the People's Ticket? supported, as it is, by the friends of Jackson and Adams. It will triumph by an overwhelming majority, in every section of the state.

Thus far, all things are safe. But let the people beware of artifice and trick: a scheme is in operation, that may disappoint all their wishes and expectations—that scheme is to bring into the Legislature a majority of Crawford and caucus-men.

It is probable that the election of President may, in the end, go into the House of Representatives; if so, the members of Congress from this state will not dare to vote contrary to the wishes of the people, unless they can find some pretence to justify themselves for so doing. Suppose, then, that a majority of our Legislature should be for Crawford and caucus—we ask if it is not probable our members of Congress would seize upon this circumstance to justify themselves for deserting the cause of the people? Let the people, then, be cautious who they choose as members of the General Assembly—let them beware of "wolves in sheep's clothing." Some candidates who are now very mild and calm on the Presidential question, when once elected will go all lengths for the caucus candidate and for caucus principles. The people ought to know explicitly the sentiments of every candidate, on this subject, before they vote. Unless the members of Assembly think and feel as the people do, they cannot truly represent them.

We learn from the Washington National Journal, that Peter Force, Esq. Editor of that paper, has purchased the establishment of the "Washington Republican," and intends issuing, from the materials, &c. of both offices, a daily paper, to be styled the National Journal. The Editor promises that his paper shall be, not only in name, but in fact, really a national journal—which we fervently hope may be the case; for too many of the papers, not only at Washington, but throughout the Union, are so warped by partisan preferences, that there is no security for the faithfulness and impartiality of the narration, in their columns, of any event of political interest. It is particularly desirable that there should be a paper at the seat of government, which would reflect, through its columns, the mild, moderate, just and wise policy of our government; which should possess the confidence of the Executive and his cabinet, and be their organ and defender. That the official paper of the administration should so far forget its obligations, as to identify itself with the revilers and enemies of that administration, is a political anomaly that cannot long be suffered to exist under the just policy of our government. If that paper which hitherto has been, and now affects to be, the organ of the government at Washington, has lent its columns to those who exert all their influence to the prejudice of the administration, it deserves to be (as it partially has been) deprived of its official patronage.

The Fayetteville Observer states, that one of the patrolers in Bladen county, was killed by some runaway negroes, about the 10th instant. The patrolers went with the intention of breaking up a negro carousal which had been kept up a number of nights. When the negroes were attacked, they shot one of the patrolers dead on the spot, and then made their escape.

Bank Dividends.—The Newbern Bank has declared a dividend for the last six months, of four per cent. and the Bank of Cape Fear, a dividend of three per cent. for the like period.

The title of Lord Byron descended to Captain Byron, well known for his escape in the Belvère frigate, from the squadron under Com. Rodgers, during the late war.

A Providence paper gives an account of a spire of asparagus, which grew 8½ feet in one week, averaging more than fourteen inches per day. [Doubtful.]

At a select party convened near this borough, to celebrate the anniversary of Independence, the following toast was given by one of the company:

[Norfolk Herald.]

The next President of the U. States.—May he be as just as Aristides, independent as Diogenes, invulnerable as Achilles, crafty as Mercury, and wise as Solomon.

An alarm clock has been invented in London, which, it is said, lights a candle at the wakening hour.

Our ingenious brethren to the Eastward have, it appears, found out a new and expeditious mode of milking cows, by introducing a rye straw into the orifice of each teat, through which every drop of milk in the udder immediately runs off. This new labor saving machine, is recommended to the attention of dairymen, under the signature of "James Thatcher," who thinks the discoverer entitled to rank with Franklin, or Jenner.

Sabbath Schools.—It is about forty years since the institution of the first Sabbath School, and there are now about eleven hundred thousand persons enjoying its advantages. Salem Observer.

FOR THE WESTERN CAROLINIANS.

Mr. White: A few weeks ago, a piece appeared in the Raleigh Register, in which Gen. Jackson was accused of having written an electioneering letter to a gentleman of this State, merely because the Gen. had the politeness to write an answer to a question which was put to him relative to the new Tariff. It is curious to observe the fastidious sensibility of the partisans of Mr. Crawford, from the hungry swarm that infests the national capital, down to the puny scribblers in the Register. They can swallow any stuff, provided it has an agreeable label: they have excellent strong stomachs, but very delicate imaginations.

These remarks were suggested by the perusal of a communication in the National Intelligencer of the 7th inst. It is an address from a meeting of the friends of Messrs. Crawford and Gallatin, in that district of Pennsylvania where the latter resides, to the citizens of the state, on the subject of the Presidential election—recommending, of course, those two gentlemen to the support of the people, for the two highest offices at their disposal.

This address, as it bears the name, bears also in its face so strong a family likeness to the old one that was hatched at Washington last winter, that the most superficial observer would pronounce it, at a glance, to be a lineal and worthy descendant. That these friends of caucus consider their cause desperate, is obvious from the plaintive tenor of their address. The very first note they touch, is party spirit; and on its magic sound, they have fixed their last hope. "Men (they say) long opposed to the Republicans, may find it convenient to drop their name: but the difference of political opinion which distinguishes the two great parties of the United States, is founded in nature, and continues to exist."

Here, then, we have a political axiom, that the Federalists were born with original political (as well as natural) sins; but according to the radicals, the political elect, as they deem themselves, there is no redemption for the Federalists: like the poor despised Jews, they must be reviled every where. The address proceeds—"We deem it essential to preserve the ascendancy of the Republican party, not from personal attachment to any individual, but in order to maintain those principles of constitutional liberty, of respect for state rights, of wise economy, and of impartiality towards all foreign nations, on which that party was founded, and on which it is uniformly supported." This sentence may be interpreted thus: As we have no personal merit, we wish to attach ourselves to what we suppose to be the most powerful party, and thus secure a portion of the "loaves and fishes," thro' faith alone, because we can show no good works. The truth is, there are still two parties in the country—the caucus, and the anti-caucus; but honest and liberal men are no longer divided under the banners of Federalism and Republicanism. Those two parties have been gradually gliding into the same channel, since the commencement of the present war, liberal, and moderate administration, and are now no longer divided by the old lines of distinction; but there is a new party springing up, that is constantly crying out Republicanism! because they must live by their trade, like the cunning artists of old, who cried "Great is Diana of the Ephesians!"

Next to Federalism, Gen. Jackson appears to be the most obnoxious thing to these men of the whiskey district. They already see, under his administration, the "Republican party annihilated, sectional divisions created, corrupt personal factions, scandalous coalitions!" They see the "Judiciary demolished," insurrections suppressed; and, in fine, a perfect prevalence of military law. These are their professed objections; but their true motives for opposing his election, are there by concealed. They are afraid Gen. J. would appoint some Federalist, or son of a Federalist, to be a Marshal, or a Deputy post-master! That this is the monster they dread, needs no further proof than what is contained in the last sentence of their "address," together with what has been quoted. "Acting with concert, you will avert the danger of a military administration, prevent the election devolving on Congress, and defeat the expectations of the perpetual enemies of the rights of man, and of the government of the people, of those whose only hopes rest on our divisions, and on a temporary delusion; viz: the Federalists!"

Thus ends the wonderful effort—a few individuals of two particular counties struggling against the mighty tide of the second state in the union. But though few in number, they were headed by a veteran—one who is skilled in the ways of a demagogue; no less a character than Albert Gallatin himself!! Even at this distance, we might have guessed the district, but would scarcely have dreamed of the individual, that produced this "address," and for the same reasons that the Editors of the National Intelligencer assign for believing it to be from his pen, viz: the propensity of the composition and the qualified language in which it speaks of Mr. Gallatin: "But I should scarcely have expected Mr. Gallatin to denounce a man for paying little regard to the laws, or to the constitution, whenever they stood in the way of what the public good in his opinion required."

But such, it seems, is the fact, that the man, (a native of Geneva,) whose character bears the imputation of fomenting an insurrection to resist the execution of a civil law, under the administration of Washington, is at this day accusing one of our worthiest citizens of as dark a crime, and boldly publishing a recommendation of himself to the second office under our Constitution!

I hope there is too much pride—I hope there is too much virtue, yet in this country, to select such a man to sit higher than he has done in the councils of the nation.

But should he, contrary to all human probability, be elected, it may then be said, "Oh! judgment, thou art fled to brutish hearts, And men have lost their reason!" CATO.

The convenience of this situation for business, is equal to any in the place. The House contains a number of private rooms, well calculated for the accommodation of Travellers and Boarders; the Stables are equal, if not superior, to any in the place, and attended to by obliging and attentive Hostlers; his table and bar, will be supplied with the best market affords; and the regulations of his House, such as he hopes will give entire satisfaction to those who may think proper to call on him: and he assures them, that no pains shall be spared to render their stay comfortable and pleasing. Store-House at Mocksville,

TO HENT.

THE subscriber wishes to rent the following property, during one year, or for a term of years, to wit: A lot at Mocksville, Rowan county, on which a spacious store-house, with a good cellar, and a large two-story house, divided into convenient and useful apartments, are erected.

Mocksville is near about in the centre of that section of Rowan, known as the Forks. As that part of country, both as to fertility of soil and population, is not inferior to any, a profitable result might be anticipated from a mercantile establishment at that place. Gentlemen in that business, and wishing a situation, are invited to call and view the premises, and judge for themselves. ELIZABETH M. PEABSON. Mocksville, May 22, 1824. 79

By SATURDAY'S MAIL.

A friend in "Old Town," Stokes county, under date of July 19, informs us that, at a large collection of people there on the 17th inst. a vote on the Presidential question was taken—the result follows:

Andrew Jackson, 99
William H. Crawford, 5
John Quincy Adams, 2

The above meeting occurred in consequence of a notice to the citizens to give in their taxable property. The votes were deliberately taken by the Magistrate appointed to take the taxable; no person under 21 years was allowed to vote—and the whole proceeding was regularly and quietly conducted—exhibiting fairly and impartially the true sentiments of the People.

Another accident, from the bursting of a steam-boiler, has happened on board of a steam ferry boat, plying between New-York and the New-Jersey shore. A Miss Charlotte Nelson was killed, and some others badly scalded. The boiler was seen to rise forty feet from the deck, when it burst with a tremendous explosion, the fragments falling thirty feet around. No person could account for the accident, unless the boiler and pipes were choked with salt. This boiler was on the low pressure principle, and nearly new.

A board of officers is about to be convened at West Point, for the purpose of revising the system of Infantry drill for the use of the U. S. army.

Innumerable flights of pigeons have passed over Montreal (Canada) this last spring. They were killed in great numbers from the roofs of the houses in the city and suburbs, and even struck down with cudgels in the streets. They appeared to be mostly young birds.

The full and honorable acquittal of Mr. Crawford, sounds very much like that of the fellow before the New York justice, who "received ten lashes, and came off clear;" the committee fully acquit Mr. Crawford, and yet pronounce his conduct irregular and dangerous.—Village Record.

SMALL POX.

We understand that the Small Pox has appeared in the Cherokee Nation, where it is spreading with serious mortality.—Five Indians of the Nation, on their return from Philadelphia, found their company attacked with this alarming disease on their journey—four of them died, and one unfortunately was attacked after he got home, and was the occasion of spreading the disease in the neighborhood. Augusta [Geo.] Chronicle.

Pirates!—We learn by the Fair American, from Havana, says the New-York Gazette, that the brig Castor, Hood, from Portland, was captured on the 29th June in the mouth of the harbor of Matanzas, by a piratical vessel, which carried her into a small bite about half way between that place and Havana, and brought her to an anchor. They then robbed her of nearly all her cargo, consisting of lard, soap, candles and butter, all her spare sails, rigging, keedge and hawser, and both boats. The captain and crew were then stripped of their clothing, and severely beaten with cutlasses. Her cables were then cut, and she went into Havana.

Lands, at Public Sale.
