Dwight's Theology.
THIS justly celebrated work has undergone seven or eight editions in England. It is now published there, in a pocket form—it having been previously stereotyped, in octavo and quarto. A. Converse of New-Haven, has purchased the copy right of this most excellent publication, and has already published two or three stereotyped editions. More than one hundred copies of his editions have, within a few months, been circulated in Western Carolina. It is believed, to the universal satisfaction of subscribers. The present edition is, in all respects, to be equal to his former editions. The price of the present and future editions, will bound, is Eleven Dollars to subscribers, Twelve Dollars to non-subscribers. Subscriptions to be paid on the delivery of the Books, in December next.
Subscriptions received by the gentlemen who took them last year, and in general by the Clergy of Concord Presbytery.

Packets for Philadelphia.
THE subscriber having established a line of Packets between Philadelphia and Wilmington, N. C. takes this method to acquaint the public, that a vessel will leave Wilmington for Philadelphia every ten days. Produce intended for this conveyance, will be received and forwarded by Duncan Thomson, Esq. of Fayetteville, N. C. and Messrs. Stone & Whittier, of Wilmington, N. C. at the lowest rates of freight, and least expense possible. Having three good vessels in the trade, commanded by careful captains, well acquainted with the coast, and cabins well fitted up for the accommodation of Passengers. He therefore trusts to meet with encouragement. Philadelphia and its environs, has become so great a manufacturing place, that cotton-wool is sold to some extent, and advantage to the owners; the consumption being, at present, about twenty thousand bales per annum, and will, no doubt, be soon far greater.

Store-House at Mocksville, TO RENT.
THE subscriber wishes to rent the following property, during one year, or for a term of years, to wit: A lot at Mocksville, Rowan county, on which a spacious store-house, with a good cellar, and a large two-story house, divided into convenient and useful apartments, are erected.
Mocksville is near about in the centre of that section of Rowan, known as the Forks. As that part of country, both as to fertility of soil and population, is not inferior to any, a profitable result might be anticipated from a mercantile establishment at that place. Gentlemen in that business, and wishing a situation, are invited to call and view the premises, and judge for themselves.

in part of John Utzman's house, situated in Market Street, a few doors from the East corner of the Court-House; where he is prepared and will be happy to accommodate any gentlemen who are disposed to patronize him in his line of business, in the neatest and most fashionable style, or to please fancy. He flatters himself, from his long experience, that there are but few, if any, in the country, that can surpass him in the execution of his work. A fair trial is all he asks, to prove the above assertion. The changes of fashion shall be strictly attended to, as he has left a correspondent in the District of Columbia, (where he is last from) who will send him the fashions on, in their regular seasons. He hopes by strict attention to business, to receive a liberal share of public patronage, as he is determined nothing shall be left undone to render general satisfaction.

SALISBURY, SEPTEMBER 21.
STATUE OF WASHINGTON.
The statue, made by late Raleigh Register, to the State of Washington, brings to our recollection a document on that subject, which fell into our hands last winter. By reference to the Journal, we find that Gov. Holmes, in a special message of the 23d Nov. communicated to the Legislature certain papers, explanatory of the agency of Mr. Appleton, U. S. Consul at Leghorn, in procuring the statue of Washington. On its message a joint committee was raised, consisting of Messrs. Hatch, Hill, Martin, Snead and Legros, of the Senate; and Messrs. Fisher, Irick, Scales, Melaine and Alston, of the commons. The following report, transmitted by Mr. Fisher, chairman of the committee, fully explains the agency of Mr. Appleton in the business, and does justice to his taste, zeal and industry.
Why on this subject, we are pleased to have it in our power to convey the idea that had gone out, to the great city of the Statue. We have been at some pains to ascertain the whole amount expended on it, from the quarry to its present position in the Capitol. It is as follows:
Total amt. of money drawn from the Treasury on account of the statue $22,167 36
Of this sum, not applied, but refunded, $340
Deduct the sum lost in the hands of the agent at Baltimore, and which, of course, never was expended on the statue, 4.00 7.160
Leaving as the actual cost of the statue of Washington, from the quarry to the Capitol, $15,007 56
Is there a solitary citizen of North-Carolina, who would wish to see the state deprived of this splendid monument, raised to the "father of his country," for kable, or quadruple the sum? or there be such an one, we envy not the feelings of his heart, or the wisdom of his head.

REPORT:
The joint select committee to whom was referred the message of the Governor, with the accompanying papers, on the case of Mr. Appleton, have had the same under consideration, and REPORT: That the Legislature of the State, at the session of 1816, unanimously adopted a resolution, directing the Governor to procure a statue in marble of "the Father of his Country;" to be erected in some suitable place in the Capitol of the state. Pursuant to this resolution, the Governor took great pains to ascertain where the work could be best executed. The result of the enquiry was, to settle him in the opinion, that the imperfect state of the art of sculpture in the United States, would not admit of its being executed in this country, in a style suitable to the dignity of the subject and the importance of the occasion; and that Italy was the place where this branch of the fine arts flourished in the most perfect manner. Among the individuals with whom the Governor corresponded on this subject, was the illustrious Jefferson, by whose recommendation, was secured to the state, the valuable services of Mr. Appleton, American Consul at Leghorn. Confiding in the favorable opinion expressed of Mr. Appleton by Mr. Jefferson, the Governor addressed him a letter, soliciting his utmost attention to the sculpturing of the Statue at Rome, and promised him liberal pecuniary compensation for his trouble in the business. This letter was strengthened by another from Mr. Monroe, then Secretary of State. Thus urged, Mr. Appleton promptly consented to undertake the agency for the state, in a work which was to endure for ages, and stand as a monument, alike to the memory of Washington, and the patriotic spirit of North Carolina. It was in this manner that Mr. Appleton became engaged in the business.

After diligently inspecting all the correspondence and documents connected with the subject, it appears to the committee that the services of Mr. Appleton, have not been made fully known, and for that reason are not duly appreciated by the public of the state. He was not the mere agent for receiving and transmitting the funds to Rome, but performed other services of a higher and more responsible nature. He made the agreement with CANOVA, the greatest artist of modern times, for the Statue; and with the incomparable Trentanovo, for the pedestal. It was left to Mr. Appleton to determine the size, altitude, and costume of the figure, and to designate the emblematic representations on the four sides of the pedestal. All of which he performed in a manner highly creditable to his genius and taste. In order that the Statue might present a true likeness of Washington, he was at the expense and trouble of sending to Rome his own Colossal bust of that Patriot, taken from life in Philadelphia, by the artist Cerracchi. From the commencement to the completion of the work, for the term of four years, his attention was constantly directed to it; during which time, he wrote more than one hundred and fifty letters on the business. To complete his agency, he made a journey to Rome, at his own expense, and attended to the embarkation of the statue at Civita Vecchia.
From this very brief view of the services of Mr. Appleton, it appears to the committee, that he is entitled to something more from the Legislature than a formal expression of thanks. He incurred expenses in the service of the state, that ought to be remunerated, and performed labors that deserve liberal pecuniary acknowledgements. The character of the state has already suffered by a delay of justice in this gentleman—a delay rather by an accidental neglect, than by a reluctance on the part of the Legislature to acknowledge his claims.

In estimating what sum would be a fair allowance to Mr. Appleton, the committee have considered not only the nature of the services performed, but the character and dignity of the state. He has been a faithful, diligent, and able agent, in a work which has brought him honor to his country with the honor of the state, to make him a liberal acknowledgement for his services.

The committee recommend the adoption of the following resolution:
[The resolution directed the Governor to present to Mr. Appleton, as a compensation for his services, $1000. In the Senate, this sum was reduced to $500, and passed at that amount. This sum of $500, is included in the cost of the Statue.]

LA FAYETTE.
The following is an extract of a letter from a gentleman in Boston, to his friend in Washington City, dated August 24th:
"General La Fayette arrived in our city this morning. I have been a good deal abroad, and seen many fine shows, but nothing to equal the brilliancy and splendor of his reception. I waited on him about three hours ago, and took him by the hand. He is the very picture of —; it struck all, at the instant; the very smile, and even wig itself—taking into consideration the difference of years, which the lively manners of the Marquis lessen very much. Before I dressed, I got a good situation in the principal street, to see him pass, and to mark his countenance under such a burst of gratitude and feeling. The sight I shall never forget. I was in a balcony, surrounded by all the beauty that the eye could reach—the streets decorated from opposite sides with various flags, flowers, and arches—the ladies showering roses upon him as he passed and waving a cloud of white handkerchiefs at every step he went. It is beyond description. The crowd keeping up an incessant cheering and clapping of hands. He was drawn in an open landeau, by four beautiful roans, accompanied by the Mayor alone—his son and suit after him, in an open landeau, with four greys, escorted by five hundred cavalry and the same number of uniformed volunteer corps. The Corporation next, in eight carriages.
The Marquis is almost worn out with the labor of undergoing the civilities since his arrival in the country: when repeatedly consoled with on this fatigue, he replied, "when the heart is glad the body never tires." He travelled seventy miles yesterday, and did not get to bed before two o'clock last night. The last twenty miles, I am told, was driven in an hour and a half. The prettiest part of the whole parade was the collection of the children from all the Public Schools, formed in line along the Mall, with their teachers. They mustered about three thousand, and I am told the General was particularly delighted with their appearance."

From the Boston Centinel.
La Fayette.—The Committee of the munificent city of New-York, who accompanied this gentleman to Boston, was furnished with funds to defray all his expenses on the road; but were unable to lay out a single cent. No innkeepers, or toll gatherers, would accept any compensation or toll.
On entering the State house yard, on his arrival in Boston, the General perceived among the crowd who surrounded him, the venerable Major Alden, of Duxbury, who was his companion in the War of the Revolution. The General instantly advanced to him and embraced him, exclaiming—"God bless you, my dear ALDEN, I am rejoiced to see you." The effects of this interview upon the assembled multitude was sensibly felt, but cannot be described.
It will be forty years on the 16th of next October, since Gen. LA FAYETTE landed in America, on his second visit.
General La Fayette has a son named George Washington, and two daughters named Virginia and Carolina, who together have thirteen children; corresponding in number to that of the old United States, and most of them marked in their names with something American. This family are incorporated as one, whereof the General is the head. He observes the anniversary of his wife's dissolution, by abandoning the pleasures of society. It will be recollected that she shared the dungeon of Olmutz with him, by which she sacrificed her life.

It is mentioned in a Boston paper, that neither the French or English Consuls extended any civility to General Lafayette. It is rumored, that they act in pursuance of orders received from their respective governments.

Commercial.—A Liverpool Courier of July 27, says business in general continues very flat, and prices of produce depressed. The demand for Cotton lessens and the sales making are at very low prices—fair Upland only fetch 8d. and good fair little more than 8 1/2.

LONDON, JULY 26.
The Greeks.—The intelligence contained in papers, as well as that which reaches us by private channels, is highly favorable to the cause of the Greeks. The divisions among the Chiefs in the Morea, have been almost entirely healed, private feelings and interests being nobly suspended or stifled by the patriotic motive of uniting the defence of the country against the common enemy. From Coriza it is asserted that a mutiny had broken out in the fleet of the Captain Pacha, and that the Turkish commander had been assassinated by his crew.
The Greek government having ratified the loan raised in this country, part of the money had been delivered at Missolonghi, and part at Hydra. This seasonable supply would invigorate the military operations, and have a beneficial effect on the spirits and comforts of the Greek troops.

Capt. Thornton, at Boston, who left Jamaica the 2d instant, states, that the pirates, who captured the Martha Jane, and brought in there, were to be tried in about a week. Capt. One of the pirates had turned King's witness; and it was reported that he had confessed having been 20 years a pirate, and had committed a number of murders.

A series of the Mexican Sun has been received at Philadelphia, containing the details of the capture and execution of Iturbide, as already published by us, with the additional fact, as stated by the Editor of the National Gazette that "the Mexican Congress had decreed a pension to his wife and family of eight thousand dollars per annum, but forbiddeth them to reside in the Republic."
This liberal act will meet the applause of every humane and enlightened mind.
