

The Muse.

The following piece was communicated to us by an esteemed friend, with a request that it might be published in compliance with his wish, we give it a place.

FOR THE CAROLINIAN.

Hail, happy land, above all others blest! The only land which freedom has possess'd; The land where tyrants dare not show their head--

The very sight of which would strike them dead. In proof of which, we point you to the day When tyrant conquest thought our land to sway; But found, in freedom's land, an air so pure, His fetid lungs that air could not endure.

And by the vigilance of Printers, at their post, He's lost a day--I hope is ever lost. Hail, happy art! whose daily news Brings latent powers into use;

Makes savage man a social creature, And purifies his corrupt nature. They tell us what we wish to know-- That William Crawford moves but slow, To mount the Presidential chair,

For which his chance is not so fair. But hark! what rapid peals of thunder Cleaving the knotty oak's saunter-- Old Hickory, with his iron rod,

Blending submission with his nod: High mounted on the car of fame, He strikes such terror with his name, The savage melts before his face,

And lofty British pride disgrace. This is the man to take the field-- From foreign harm our country shield,

And guard our country from aggression, From British and Indian depredation. Give honor to whom honor is due-- Thus far I think Jackson may do.

Oh! thou who rules our free and happy land, By thy deep counsels and unerring hand, May we be govern'd by those men who feel A free submission to thy sovereign will.

Grant us the man who can his spirit guide, Both in the field and by his fireside: Let us, O hidden ground has never stood, A crime that doth the human mind offend.

In him each virtue meets, and forms the man, To rule, in virtue's path, our happy land. P. September 27th, 1824.

Dialectic.

FOR THE WESTERN CAROLINIAN.

Mr. Editor: I see that Mr. Constituent, alias A. C. has, at length, undertaken to correct me in the remarks that I made, some time past, concerning his letter to Mr. Williams. The poor fellow appears to be in a bad humour. I will frankly acknowledge every error of which he has convicted me. But after a careful perusal of his second philippic, I must confess myself unable to see wherein he has corrected me in a single instance: True, in the preface to his late communication, he says that his design is to correct me. Now the principal remarks that I made concerning his First General Epistle written ostensibly to Mr. Williams, but really to his constituents, were his charging Mr. W. of sophistry, of endeavouring to excite animosity between the North and the South, and his saying that Mr. W. ought to have told his constituents all the just claims and qualifications of all the candidates for the Presidency. All these charges I did then, and now do, pronounce false. As Mr. A. C. has declared that his object in his last was to correct me, how does it come one of these particulars? If a communication be noticed at all, certainly its most important and prominent particulars deserve some regard. But as Mr. A. C. has not endeavoured to meet my arguments and observations, they still remain untouched. He appears to have discovered that he can laugh more easily than he can reason, and has tried to make others laugh with him. But he must not forget, that abortive attempts at wit cannot supply the deficiency of sense. I am sorry that the gentleman appears so much out of humour. Perhaps he is mad because Mr. Williams has been so polite as to go off to Congress without giving him the honor of noticing his letter. Tell the good gentleman however, that if he is mad he had better not bite the "old pony," lest he be kicked. Mr. A. C. says something about hurting my shins in the dark. Perhaps this is what he meant when he said he was going to correct me. Let him try it. He deals entirely in wit, (if it may be called wit,) and tries to cut me deeply. A man who has had as long time to whet his weapon, as A. C. has had, ought to have been able to cut more deeply than he did. Thus far I have endeavored to answer Mr. A. C. according to his folly, lest he should be wise in his own conceit; hereafter I will not answer him according to his folly, lest I be like him. If he will come out fairly, and by argument attempt to prove me incorrect then I will reply, but if he continues his silly attempts at wit, I will let him pass in silence; for such pieces and their answers are not handsome in a news-paper, nor useful to the public. Mr. A. C. has attempted to injure the character of Mr. W. whom I consider an able and a faithful Representative. I have endeavoured to meet those charges, and to prove them false. If Mr. A. C. has any thing more to say, let him fairly meet my arguments, I am ready to meet any thing he has to say, provided he speaks as a man of sense. G. S.

CANARIS.

The Greek naval captain, has been called by some foreign journals an Admiral. He has never accepted that rank, from a notion generally very foreign to those to whom promotion is offered--viz: that he is not fit for it. Having burned two Turkish Commanders-in-Chief, and defeated a third, he is, as he was before, a Captain. Among a people who have, like more advanced and better established states, their full share of intrigue and rapacity, he has offered a constant example of disinterestedness; in other words, he has proposed to himself as an end, to save his country, and not to rob it. In going in his fire-boat against the Captain Pacha's ship in the canal of Scio, he was, as he informed the English commander who saw him at Psara, becalmed in sight of two Turkish corvettes. His sailors were afraid that they should be observed and massacred, and became mutinous. "What would you have?" he cried: "if you are afraid, throw Psara into the sea, and swim to Let not the calm frighten you," he continued, "it will detain the enemy's vessels as well as our own; at ten o'clock we shall have a wind." At half past 9 the breeze sprung up, and at midnight the Captain Pacha was on fire. When he was seen at Psara by the Captain to whom we have alluded, his wife was employed, with other Greek women, in making cartridges; but though poor, he has steadily re-superior commands.

GREAT DINNER.

The following is the bill of fare of the dinner given by the Lord Mayor of London, on his late installation into office: Dinner, 180 turkeys real turtle, containing three quarts each, 140 chickens and pullets, 43 hams ornamented, 38 tongues do. 53 raised French pies, 40 pigeon pies, 40 orange and other tarts, 2 barons of beef, 12 pieces of sorloin, 3 rounds of beef, 38 dishes built pastry, 42 do. tarts creamed, 80 do. jelly, 4 do. lobster sallad, 4 do. prawns, 60 do. smashed and other potatoes, 90 do. sallads, 4 almond pastry, 2 sugar baskets, 87 mince pies. Removes: 52 turkeys roasted, 3 pea fowls, 50 dishes wild fowls, 64 do. pheasants and partridges, 14 hams ornamented, sun-dried, 180 pounds wt. of pine apples, 200 dishes best hothouse grapes, 200 ice creams, 84 plates apples of different kinds, 100 dishes pears, 76 ornamented savoy cakes, 186 plates walnuts and filberts, 83 plates dried fruits and preserves, 83 rout cakes, &c. 4 do. paradise plums. Wines: Champaign, Hock, Claret, Madeira, Port and Sherry.

ARE YOU IN CHRIST?

Let me ask, Are you in Christ? Does this question startle you? People who have been baptised; who bear the name of Christians; who pray to and adore Jesus Christ; who call themselves his children, his people; who partake of his sacraments; people who, for 30 or 40 years, call themselves, nay perhaps flatter themselves, with the assurance of being true believers, and dare hope for heaven in the presumption of their faith. To ask such people whether they are in Christ, will surely offend them. But are you new creatures? If this is the case, you have indeed reason to rejoice; and belong to our Lord; you partake of his influence and of his life; you are members of his body. But if you are not new creatures, it is in vain for you to flatter yourselves; you are not in Jesus Christ; for if any man be in Christ he is a new creature. (2 Cor. v. 17.) SUPERVILLE.

Since the introduction of these valuable medicines into the United States of America, they have acquired the highest degree of celebrity for their unparalleled success in alleviating and curing diseases, which, in a variety of instances had baffled some of our most experienced physicians. The extensive and increasing demand for them throughout the continent, for these twenty years past, testifies their interesting efficacy and importance to the public. For families or individuals whose residence or circumstances place them beyond the advantage of procuring a physician, they are peculiarly adapted; and whose convenience they are accompanied with every instruction appertaining to the symptoms of the diseases, and proper directions for using them.

A considerable discount will be allowed to Druggists, Country Merchants and those who purchase by the quantity. Orders promptly attended to, and the medicines carefully packed and forwarded to any part agreeably to direction.

Prospect Hill, for Rent.

THIS valuable plantation, the residence of the late Col. Richmond Pearson, jun. is offered for rent the ensuing year. This tract of land is in the Forks of the Yadkin, opposite to the Horse Shoe Neck, and near the mouth of Dutchman's creek. It contains about 600 acres; nearly one half is cleared, and in good order for cultivation; about one hundred acres is river and creek bottom, and the remainder of cleared land well adapted to the culture of cotton, corn, and small grain. The dwelling-house is equal to any in that section of country; the other improvements convenient and comfortable. The dwelling-house and about 100 acres of cleared land, may be had separately, as a tenant or tenants may prefer. For terms, apply to Mr. Henry S. Parker, agent for JOSEPH PEARSON. Dec. 4, 1824. 36

Cotton Ginning.

THE subscriber respectfully informs the merchants of the town of Salisbury, and the citizen farmers of his neighborhood, that he has just finished a large water-powered Cotton Ginning of Cotton, to run by water; and that he is also well fixed for packing cotton, in the neatest manner, for market. He assures his friends, who may favor him with their custom, that he will have their cotton packed and put up in the neatest manner, and in the shortest time possible, and on the lowest terms at which it is done by others. He also assures those who send cotton to his gin, that it will be kept separate from others, so that they will be sure to get the same cotton they send. He has located and built this establishment, at his Mill Plantation, two miles from Salisbury. J. A. FIRRETT. October 18, 1824. 28

100 Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY, on the 16th of October, 1824, a negro man named Adam, aged 27 years. He was lodged in the jail of Randolph county on the 19th or 20th inst., and was taken out of said jail on the 8th of November, 1824; the subscriber, and taken on home, with a pair of hand-cuffs. On arriving at the subscriber's house, on the 9th of November, 1824, he was left in a room with a small boy; whilst the family was at supper in another room, by some means Adam slipped out of the door, and made his escape. At the time he was taken up, he had several free papers in his possession. The said boy Adam has a scar on his right hand, occasioned by a wagon wheel. He had on, when he went away, a snuff-colored surcoat, with hand-cuffs, well riveted. He has heretofore passed as a brickmaker, and as a free man when last taken up. One hundred dollars reward will be given for the apprehension and delivery of said negro. MACK CRUMP. Davidson county, N. C. Nov. 9, 1824.
