

The Muse.

FROM THE SOUTHERN INTELLIGENCER.

THE BIBLE. The Bible, what a precious book, To erring mortals given; It guides us in the paths of truth, It points the way to heaven.

TIME. How swift the pinions Time puts on, To urge his flight away! To day's soon yesterday; anon, To-morrow is to-day.

Miscellaneous.

FROM THE READING CHRONICLE, THE NEWSPAPER.

Gents: I am a democrat and a warm friend to Gen. Jackson. When your boy left the last Chronicle at my door, I opened it immediately and read two original articles signed Dorin and American, reflecting so severely upon the character and pretensions of the Hero of New-Orleans, that I was ready to lift myself off the floor by my ears.

The price of their paper is $2 a year; well, there are 52 sheets, which cost them about 1 cent per sheet; $0 52 The labour in setting the types, correcting the proof sheets, working off and folding it—is—la me! I could not do it for 100 dollars—about $1 00

Bless me, do they only lose 8 cents by my withdrawal from their list? said I to myself. I was indeed flattering myself that I should punish you to the amount of 2 dollars for every year you printed the Chronicle, when behold it is no more than 8 cents; a paltry sevenpence! Taking up my chalk again, I thought I would see if I myself might be the loser in not taking the newspaper; and to my infinitely greater astonishment it was the fact, as the following calculation shows:

It is worth for my own reading, or if they would print it to please me I would not be without it for $3 00 My wife says it is worth more than all the novels in the world; so to her it is surely worth $3 00 To my children it is of more benefit than Murray's Reader, Buchan's Spelling book and Comley's Primer, which cost in a year for my five children, at least 5 00 For wrapping paper it is worth 0 25 To shoe leather I should wear out in a year in going once a week to borrow the paper from some of my neighbours, together with other inconveniences in doing this, will be worth 0 25

I threw down my chalk again, and began to reflect whether I had not been too hasty in the morning's proceeding. I thought I should have told you to your faces the reason of my discontinuing your paper, and listen to the excuse you might give, "for the head and front of your offending." I reflected that there were in our good borough, Crawford men, Clay men, and Adams men, as well as Jackson men, who wish to have a say in the Presidential question, and who are subscribers to the Chronicle, as well as myself, and that though you had repeatedly said you were for Jackson yourselves, you had generously said your columns were at their service. I told them I had stopped my paper, and that I guessed a hundred others or more would do so through the course of the day; though I have since learned that I was the only one—that the office holders said you published what you pleased, and that in their opinion you had a right so to do, as the editors of a free press.

Sober reasoning with myself, and a conviction that you have a right to print even the opinions of those of your friends who do not think exactly as I do in regard to the presidency, impel me honestly to say I was wrong, and that you were right—I hope that you will again

SEND ME YOUR PAPER.

MEDICAL ACCIDENT.

A Miss H—, of our city, designing to take a large dose of common salts, on Monday morning last swallowed instead, in a state of solution, between two and three ounces of Salt Petre.

She was immediately made sensible of the mistake, by an excruciating pain and distress at the pit of the stomach.

Her mother called on an apothecary, living next door, to inquire her danger, and what was to be done. He advised to send instantly for a physician, and administered ten grains of Tartar Emetic.

Dr. Smith soon came, and considering her agony, and that the emetic was little disposed or likely to occasion an ejection, he promptly employed his excellent apparatus, consisting of a gum elastic tube and exhausting syringe, the former of which he passed through the mouth into the stomach, and with the latter soon introduced a considerable quantity of tepid water; which, together with the solution of spt petre and tartar emetic, he again extracted. This process was continued till the fluid drawn from the stomach was as tasteless as when thrown into it. The whole quantity of water employed, within a few minutes, amounted to about four gallons. After the stomach was thoroughly cleansed and emptied, he introduced three or four ounces of sweet oil, and withdrew the tube.

The operation was less painful than the effects of an active emetic, and proved completely successful.

We have related the above case with the double object of inciting people generally to more caution, and also to recommend the remedy employed.

Salt Petre is an article in such common use, and so nearly resembles Glauber's salts in its appearance, that instances similar in kind, though happily not in degree, often occur. A small quantity is generally followed by a long continued disorder of the stomach, and is frequently fatal. It should never be laid by without the paper containing it being marked, in legible characters, SALT PETRE.

ANCIENT SUMMARY.

Julius Caesar fought 50 pitched battles, and killed one million and a half of men.

Manlius, who threw down the Gauls, from the Capitol, had received twenty three wounds and taken two spoils before, he was seventeen years of age.

Dentatus fought 120 battles, was eighty times victorious in single combat, and received forty five wounds in front. He had among his trophies, 70 belts, 8 mural 3 obsidional and 14 civic crowns.

Cato pleaded four hundred causes, and gained them all.

Cyrus knew the names of all the soldiers of his army; Lucius Scipio of the Roman People—[Livy.]

Chimides could relate all he had ever heard in the same words.

Julius Caesar wrote, read, dictated, and listened to the conversation of his friends at the same time.

A philosopher is mentioned by Pliny who being struck by a stone forgot his Alphabet. A man reputed for his stupidity falling from a horse and being trepanned, became very remarkable for the sprightliness of his genius.

The orator Carvius forgot his own name.

Mithridatus spoke to the ambassadors of twenty two different nations without an interpreter.

Julius Viator lived to an advanced old age without drinking water, or using any kind of liquid nourishment.

Crassus, grand father of the Triumviratus, who was slain by the Parthians, never laughed. He had, on this account, the surname of Agelastus.

Windsor Chair Making.

JOHN COOPER adopts this plan of informing the citizens of Salisbury, and its vicinity in general, that he has commenced Windsor Chair and Bedstead Making, in the house lately occupied by Charles Biles, dec'd., on Main-street, east of the court-house; where he is prepared with a good assortment of timber, which he will work up into chairs and bedsteads; and will be happy to accommodate any gentleman who is disposed to buy work in his line of business. He flatters himself that, from his long experience, he can furnish as good work as any man in the country; a fair trial is all he asks to prove the above assertion. He has received from Philadelphia, the latest fashions for chairs and bedsteads, and intends to keep pace with all the changes of fashion. He will keep on hand an assortment of chairs, bedsteads, sofas and easy-chairs. He will attend Davidson, Iredell, and Cabarrus county courts; where he will sell low for cash, or a short credit. He hopes, by strict attention to business, to receive a liberal share of public patronage. Salisbury, March, 1825. 5654

A new Boot and Shoe Shop.

THE subscriber begs leave to inform his friends, and the public in general, that he has opened a Boot and Shoe shop, in the house immediately opposite the Bank, where he intends carrying on the above business, in all its various branches; his work shall be well executed, and his materials of the best quality. He hopes by his application to business, and desire to please, to gain a part of the public patronage. WILLIAM T. BRADFIELD. Salisbury, March 21, 1825 50

Cotton Ginning.

THE subscriber respectfully informs the merchants of the town of Salisbury, and the citizen farmers of his neighborhood, that he has just finished a large building, 32 by 30, for Ginning of Cotton, to run by water; and that he is also well fixed for packing cotton in the neatest manner, for market. He assures his friends, who may favor him with their custom, that he will have their cotton packed and put up in the neatest manner, and in the shortest time possible, and on the lowest terms at which it is done by others. He also assures those who send cotton to his Gin, that it will be kept separate from others, so that they will be sure to get the same cotton they send. He has located and built this establishment, at his Mill Plantation, two miles from Salisbury. JA: FISHER. October 18, 1824. 28
