FORTRAIT OF AN IDLER.

An idle man, says Lord Bacon, is the most mischievous being in creation. Not having any business to engage his time or attention, he becomes a trifler, a blackguard, and a sponge.

THE NAUTILUS.

In a letter from Mr. Carter, one of the editors of the New-York Statesman, from Liverpool, Eng. who had just crossed the Atlantic on a tour to Europe, we find the following description of the curious shell-fish, the Nautilus:

ANECDOTE.

A highwayman, named Bollard, confined in Newgate, sent for a solicitor to know how he could defer his trial; and was answered "by getting an apothecary to make affidavit of his illness."

LEARNING IN EUROPE.

A French Journal has furnished a table presenting a comparison of the number of children in the several countries of Europe, who are educated at public schools with the whole population.

SELPHISHNESS.

The selfish man is shut out from all that gives grace and value to life, all that makes life a blessing; for what is existence worth to him, who has no man's confidence, no man's sympathy, no man's love!

THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY.

On Thursday afternoon, the ceremony of laying the foundation stone of the General Theological Seminary, of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, was performed with all the accustomed solemnities.

The ground of this future edifice is in Greenwich, and was presented to the seminary by Clement C. Moore, Esq. It is a lot of about five acres, fronting on one of the Avenues, and running back to the North River. A finer or more sky situation could not have been found.

The numerous Clergymen of the Episcopal Church now here, the trustees, professors and students of the seminary, together with deputations from the vestries of several Episcopal churches in the city, all assembled near the land granted to the Institution; and forming a procession led by the junior students, and closed by the bishops, proceeded to the foundation, where the procession halted, and opening inwards, the Rt. Rev. Bishops, White, Croes, Kemp, and Brownell, passed thro' the open ranks, and were successively followed by other ministers, and assistants at the ceremony, to the spot where the corner stone was to be laid.

A short address, setting forth the objects of the intended building, and the hopes and views of those who were about to erect it, was delivered by Bishop White. A prayer was put up by him for the blessing of God on it and its founders, and on the labors of those who should be called to teach or to learn within its walls. A box was then handed to the bishop, in which were separately placed the bible, the book of common prayer, the homilies of the church, and the documents relative to the seminary. These were carefully enclosed in the corner stone prepared, and placed for the purpose—the bishop receiving from the architect a hammer, with which he thrice struck the stone, and dedicated it in the name of the three persons of the Trinity. The same ceremony was repeated by the other bishops, when the stone was closed up with masonry—and the workmen resumed their labors.

[FROM THE ALEXANDRIA HERALD:]

The Rev. Fletcher Andrews, an ordained minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, had received, from the bounty of a dying relative, twenty slaves, at that time valued at 10,000 dollars.

Shortly after he attained the age of 21 years, although they constituted nearly the whole of his worldly property, this amiable and pious man generously emancipated every one of them. And Mr. Charles Crenshaw, a farmer residing in the neighborhood of Richmond, has recently manumitted all the slaves he owned, amounting altogether to sixty.

Mrs. Elizabeth Moore, a pious lady, lately deceased in Kentucky, provided in her will for the emancipation of all her slaves, said to be about forty. The residue of her estate, worth about $5000, was left to the Centre College of Kentucky, at Danville.

A BELL.

At the last winter's session of the Legislature of Georgia, it was enacted, "That from and after the passing of this act, the June session of the Inferior Court of Hancock county shall be commenced and holden on the third Monday in August next."

The Grand Jury of St. Lawrence County, New York, have presented the Judges of that County, for repeated and vexatious neglect of their official duties.
