THE JUDICIARY BILL. Was indefinitely postponed in the House of Representatives on the 16th inst. by a vote of 99 to 89. This bill was originated in, and passed by, the House of Representatives, by a large majority, early in the session, and sent to the senate; there it remained on the table about two months, when the Senate added some very material amendments, and sent it back to the House; the House disagreed to the amendments, and proposed to the Senate a committee of conference; the Senate adhered to their amendments, and refused the proffer of a conference.

We learn that during the storm on Tuesday last, Mr. Anthony Peeler, living 6 or 7 miles from this town, had three horses (all he owned) killed by lightning. The horses were in the stable, and in separate apartments; the electric fluid passed into the stable, and killed the horses, without doing the least injury to the building.

The atmosphere, from the long drought, had become impregnated with electric fluid, and during the storm, its explosions were frequent and tremendous. A hickory tree in the yard of Mr. James Hale, of this place, within 20 feet of his house, was struck by the lightning; but the shaft was so nearly expended, that no damage was done.

"Jurensis" is received, and shall be attended to in due time. Other favors will be attended to in our next.

FOURTH OF JULY.

Splendid preparations are making in various parts of the Union, for the celebration of the approaching anniversary of the Declaration of Independence. On the 4th day of July next, it will have been fifty years (half a century) since the Fathers of our Republic, in Convention assembled, declared to the world, that these United States were, "and of right ought to be, free and independent." From the fact of its being just half a century since our fathers burst asunder the shackles of colonial dependence, and gave liberty and independence to the nation, it has been proposed that the next anniversary of that event, be observed with more than usual demonstrations of gratitude to Heaven, for so precious a boon.

Mr. Randolph, it will be seen by the following article, took his departure from Washington for Europe on the 18th inst. four days before the adjournment of Congress. After his return from Virg. and before leaving Washington, he had some violent sparring in the Senate with Mr. Lloyd, senator from Massachusetts. It is stated to have been a scene of as high excitement as the one in the other House between McDuffie, Trimble and Vance.

FROM THE NORFOLK HERALD. Extract of a letter, dated Washington, April 23. "The following rumors are afloat in this city. I know not upon what authority they rest, but there are many people here who credit them. So eccentric and wild is the orbit in which Mr. Randolph moves, that he is less certainly to be calculated upon than a fiery tailed comet."

DEED. In Mecklenburg county, on the 29th inst. Capt. Thomas Black, a soldier of the revolution, aged 67. He bore an active part in our struggle for independence, and was highly esteemed for his strict integrity and manly worth.

By Saturday's mail.

Letters from Havana, of the 11th April, have been received here, which state that on that day the John Adams sailed from that place, for the purpose of ending Mr. Williams, our Charge d'Affaires to the Central Republic. We regret to learn, also, that the small pox and cholera had both prevailed to a great extent on board several of the vessels of our squadron.

BALTIMORE, MAY 15. Mr. Randolph arrived here yesterday afternoon just before 5 o'clock and departed in the steam boat for Philadelphia. In Washington he engaged two hacks to bring him on—one proceeded empty to a few miles ahead of the one in which he rode. He had on an old, dirty hat, drawn close over his eyes, a short white flannel coat, buff waistcoat, white linen pants, yellow boots and spurs, which, with his peculiar form and phiz, exhibited one of the most singular and ridiculous figures imaginable.

WASHINGTON, MAY 16. Mr. Holmes of Maine yesterday introduced a series of resolutions into the Senate in relation to the expediency of amending the existing rules of the Senate. These resolutions are obviously aimed at the anomalous course which has been pursued in that body by Mr. Randolph. One of the propositions is an inquiry how far it is consistent with the dignity of the Senate to allow a member to address disrespectful language to any gentleman who may be introduced on the floor by a Senator.
