POETRY.

FROM THE PHILADELPHIA ALBUM. The following is a well drawn sketch of a desirable FEMALE CHARACTER. Of gentle manners and by taste refined, With all the grace of a polished mind; Clear sense and truth still shone in all she spoke, And from her lip no idle sentence broke. Each nicer elegance of art she knew; Correctly fair, and elegantly true: Her ready fingers ply'd with equal skill The pencil's task, the needle or the quill. So pois'd her feelings, so composed her soul, So subject all to reason's calm controul, One only passion strong and unconfin'd, Disturb'd the balance of her even mind; One passion rapt'rd despotie in her breast, In every look, and word, and thought confess'd. But that was love, and love delights to bless The gen'rous transports of a fond excess.

BOBASCENA.

MEET AGAIN.

Joyful words—we meet again! Love's own language, comfort darting Through the souls of friends at parting, Life in death we meet again. While we walk this vale of tears, Compassed round with care and sorrow, Gloom to-day, and storm to-morrow, "Meet again" our bosom cheers. Far in exile, when we roam, O'er our last endearments weeping, Lonely vigils silent keeping, "Meet again" transports us home. When the weary world is past, Happy they whose spirits soaring, Vast eternity exploring, "Meet again" in heaven at last.

MELODY.

Ah, what in the world should we prize, Like the heart that is wholly our own— And a heart that all changes defies, And beats for our pleasure alone. As the bird ranges wide through the air, Yet fondly returns to its nest; Though pleasure we seek for elsewhere, Yet there, only there, are we blest.

MISCELLANEOUS.

FROM THE EVENING CHRONICLE.

COMFORTS.

It has been most satisfactorily proved by the experience of all the Eastern and Northern States, and by some of the Planters in the South, that what is called a Comfort, made of five pounds of cotton, quilted or stitched like a mattress, in six yards and a half of cotton cloth, is preferable, as a covering, to four common woollen blankets. The cost of this article may be estimated as follows: Five pounds of waste cotton, which may be obtained at any cotton gin or factory, at 1 cent per lb. is 5 cts. 5 Six yards and a half of cotton cloth 75 Quilting like a thin mattress, 25 $1,05 Four woollen blankets will cost $12,00

Many gentlemen who have made the experiment, assert that one comfort is worth four or five blankets, and have assured me that they slept pleasantly all last winter at Cincinnati, with a sheet and one comfort. This surely is, of all bed-covering, the most agreeable, and the most economical.

Let planters furnish their slaves with these cheap comforts and they reserve millions of dollars to procure enjoyments for themselves and their families, which were formerly expended in the purchase of miserable, little, thin woollen blankets, which are obtained from abroad at an enormous cost. A COMFORTER.

Antidote for Backbiting, &c.—During the last month, the following damages were awarded by four of the Courts of Georgia, viz. De Kalb Superior Court—Cone and Wife vs. Fuggle, for slander, 1,000 dollars; Sampler and wife vs. Welch, for malicious prosecution, $1,500. Fayette Superior Court—Holdridge vs. Heard, for libel, 1,000 dollars; Law vs. Burk, for malicious prosecution, 900 dollars. Greene Superior Court—Currie and wife vs. Bostick, for slander, 1,000 dollars. Morgan Superior Court—Aikin vs. Atkinson, for Seduction, 2,000 dollars. Ral. Star.

LOVE AND DEBT

'Tis only being in love and debt That breaks us of our rest; And he that is quite out of both, Of all the world is blest: He sees the golden age within, All things are free and common— He eats, he drinks and takes his rest, He fears no man or woman.

The Lafayette Grant.—From a recent description of the township in Florida, granted to Gen. Lafayette, by the Congress of the United States, we derive the following facts: It is six miles square, and contains 23,040 acres, in the centre of a fertile country, and is adjacent to the town of Tallahassee, the capital of Florida. The citizens of the place, by common consent, have named the township the La Grange Forest. The surface of the land is beautifully waving, often hilly, but not mountainous; and the scenery is varied and interesting. Lakes of transparent water, abounding with fish, surrounded by hills clothed with a scattering growth of live oak, white flowering magnolias, and other evergreens, variegate the picture and add much to the beauty of the scene. The soils of this grant possess the various qualities of the oak and hickory and hammock lands; and the productions are sugar cane, tobacco, black and green seed cotton, rice and corn, with the smaller grains. The orange, fig and grape have been successfully cultivated, and it is believed that most of the tropical fruits may be gradually acclimated. The La Grange Forest is on an elevation 200 feet above the surface of the ocean, within 20 miles of the Gulf of Mexico, in lat. 30 30, North; and the climate is mild and salubrious. It is not known what disposition the General will make of this grant; but it is rumoured that he contemplates the introduction of a colony of French peasants, with a view of cultivating the fig, the olive and the grape.

FROM THE NEW YORK AMERICAN.

A long February.—In a late American is an account of the British line of battle ship Warspite, crossing the 180th degree of Longitude, which made the week consist of eight days. This is by no means an unusual occurrence; but the following, which may be called a geographical or chronological paradox, can occur but very seldom, and be interesting to our readers: In the month of February, 1824, in the ship Jupiter, under my command, I crossed the same meridian, or where "the extremes of east and west do meet," which made the month (February,) to consist of 30 days, including six Sundays—each day consisted of 24 hours, as is usual with vessels at sea. DAVID LASLIE.

Gaming and Suicide.—A letter from a gentleman in Paris, to his correspondent in England, dated Aug. 17, mentions, that on the day previous, the bodies of four individuals, who had committed suicide, were lying unburied in that city, and that the death of every one of them was occasioned by the passion of gaming. The Commissary of Police informed him, that out of three or four hundred suicides committed annually in Paris, seven-eighths of the number might be attributed to the same cause.

CAPTAIN SIMMES.

It appears by an appeal to the public in the National Intelligencer, that this indefatigable theorist is in great distress. In pursuing researches relative to his theory of concentric spheres, the hallowness of the earth, &c. he has expended all the wealth he was possessed of, and is now experiencing the heartlessness of the world in affording a man who has made such a wonderful discovery charitable relief. Philadelphia Album.

A SPOLEGA.

Moore has beautifully expanded the idea, in itself a fine one, contained in Napoleon's proclamation, on his landing from Elba. The passage is this: "L'aigle volera de clocher, jusqu'aux tours de Notre Dame." The poet makes of it the following exquisite lines:

"Forth from its cage that eagle burst to light, From steeple on to steeple, winged its flight, With calm and easy grandeur, to that throne, From which a royal craven had just flown: And resting there, as in its eirie, furl'd Those wings whose very rustling shook the world."

There is another very happy image applied to that great man, in a little poem, the name of whose author we have forgotten, or never knew. "Oh! bury him deep in the limitless sea— Let his heart have a boundless grave, Whose spirit in life was as fierce and free As the course of the tempest's wave."

And so far from the reach of mortal controul, Were the depths of his fathomless mind, That the ebbs and flows of his single soul, Were tides to the rest of mankind."

The late Dr. Beddowes ascertained that butchers, who live more on animal food than other men, are rarely, if ever, liable to the disease of the lungs, termed pulmony consumption.

Charlotte Temple.—The author of this affecting little tale, Mrs. Rowson, has left behind her a posthumous work entitled "Charlotte's Daughter, or the Three Orphans." It is a sequel to the former, and will be published in a few weeks.

Strange Exhibition.—A black woman is advertised for public exhibition in New-Orleans. This extraordinary woman is very black, and walks on all fours, and possesses all the agility of a monkey inclimbing. She converses freely in creole French, and is about 18 years of age. Her lower limbs are like those of the Orang-outang. Admission $1—a father with his family half price.

Surgical.—An important surgical operation was lately performed in Lebanon, Pennsylvania, on a Mr. John Uhler, by Dr. George McClelan, professor of surgery in Jefferson college, Philadelphia. Between five and six inches of two carious ribs were safely removed, to the great relief of the patient. The professor performed two or three lesser operations during his stay, which was too short to enable his friends in that place to manifest in a suitable manner their great respect for his character and admiration of his talents.

HINDOO WOMEN.

The Hindoo women, when young, are delicate, are beautiful; so far as we can reconcile beauty with the olive complexion. They are finely proportioned, their limbs small, their features soft and regular, and their eyes black and languishing; but the bloom of beauty soon decays, and age makes a rapid progress before they have seen thirty years; this may be accounted for from the heat of the climate, and the customs of the country; as they often are mothers at twelve years of age, and grand-mothers at five-and-twenty. Montesque justly remarks, that women in hot climates are marriageable at eight, nine, or ten years of age; therefore in those countries infancy and marriage generally go together. They are old at twenty; their reason therefore never accompanies their beauty; when beauty demands the empire, the want of reason forbids the claim; when reason is obtained, beauty is no more!

No women can be more attentive to cleanliness than the Hindoos; they take every method to render their persons delicate, soft, and attractive; their dress is peculiarly becoming, consisting of a long piece of silk, or cotton, tied round the waist, and hanging in a graceful manner to the feet, it is afterwards brought over the body in negligent folds, under which they cover the bosom with a short waistcoat of satin, but they wear no linen. Their long black hair is adorned with jewels, and wreaths of flowers; their ears are bored in many places, and loaded with pearl, and precious stones fall from the neck over the bosom. The arms are covered with bracelets, from the wrist to the elbow; they have also gold and silver chains round their ankles, and abundance of rings on their fingers and toes; among the former is a small mirror.

We perceive by the Patterson Intelligencer, that a wealthy English gentleman who was formerly one of the most extensive cotton shippers in England, has recently removed his establishment consisting of fifteen thousand spindles, to New York. Such an accession to our manufactures cannot fail to be of much advantage, and we hope in a short time to be able to adorn our bodies sufficiently, "without the foreign aid of ornament."

Philadelphia Album.

At the Fall term of Sampson Superior Court, last week, Curtis Orrell, whose trial had been removed to that county from New Hanover, was convicted of the murder of his cousin, Penelope Orrell, and sentenced by Judge Ruffin to be hung on Friday the 7th of next month. This case is remarkable for the reason which is supposed to have prompted the prisoner to the commission of the dreadful crime, viz: that the deceased had refused to marry him. Fayette Observer.

WJAE.

So Noah when he anchor'd safe on The mountain's top, his lofty haven, And all the passengers he bore Were on the new world set ashore— He made it first his chief design To plant and propagate a Vine; Which since, has overwhelm'd and drown'd Far greater numbers on dry ground, Of wretched mortals, had by one, Than all the flood before had done.
