GREAT BATTLE at NAVARINO.
The following additional particulars in relation to the battle of Navarino, in which the Turkish fleet was annihilated, are from English and French papers.

A letter from Zante, says, that during the action, Ibrahim Pacha, "who never had any courage but that of an executioner, was hunting the Christians in the mountains of Messenia, presiding at the punishment of some priests, whom he caused to be crucified on the palm trees, in offering holocausts of peasants, and making up sales of girls and children, whom he intended to send into Egypt. I could not paint to you the joy of us Ionians: the bells ring, bonfires blaze, and the church spires are hung with garlands. Greece is saved!" It is intimated that the armistice was violated by Ibrahim at the express command of the Sultan; if so, for their hostilities will be likely to result, and the Russian land forces put in motion. An army of 80,000 Russians under the celebrated Wittgenstein, was ready for the field on the Danube, and a still greater force concentrating under Marshal Scharnhorst Lord Cochrane had suspended his war operations at the request of Admiral Codrington, but the Greeks had destroyed, after a gallant action, seven Turkish vessels in the harbour of Lepanto. The U. S. schr. Porpoise had retaken an English brig from a gang of Greek pirates, 40 of whom were killed by the fire of the boats sent against them, or drowned in trying to escape from the brig to the shore.

The French papers are highly gratified with the share which their ships took in the action; and the destruction of 45 Austrian transports, in the service of Egypt, was a matter of peculiar rejoicing. A letter from a French officer to his wife, states, that the destruction of the Egyptian fleet was complete, and the ships continued burning two days after the battle. At the moment he was writing, the allied flags were flying on the ramparts of Navarino, and the garrison marching out. The battle presented a terrible scene. Conceivably 150 ships of war firing in a narrow basin in a triple line, the burning of some, and the explosion of others. Admiral Codrington—This officer was a captain under Lord Nelson at the battle of Trafalgar. Had he waited another day before he destroyed the Turkish fleet, it would have been the anniversary of that great victory by which the maritime forces of France and Spain were annihilated, 21st of Oct. 1805. Count Heiden, the Russian Admiral in the Levant, is a native of Holland, and is said to be an officer of considerable merit, and of excellent private character.

PUBLIC DOCUMENTS.

The voluminous documents transmitted to Congress with the President's message, have been obligingly furnished us by Messrs. Carson and Long. Our limits will not admit of extracting very copiously from them; we must, for the present week content ourselves with giving the following abstract relative to the Army, Navy, Lead Mines, Pensioners, Armories, National Road, and Public Lands:

Army. The army of the United States in October last was composed of 5722 men, including 54 surgeons, 15 paymasters, 33 engineers, and 443 commissioned officers. The number sick was 603, and the number in arrest or confinement 232. The troops are distributed in 39 different posts, on the seaboard, western frontier, &c. Desertions from the army are frequent. The number of recruits enlisted from Jan. 1, to Oct. 1, 1827, was 953.

Navy. The Navy of the United States, built and building, consists of twelve ships of the line, fourteen 44's, three 36's, two covettes, a steam-frigate, and about twenty sloops of war and schooners. In addition to these, live oak timber has been purchased for 5 ships of the line, 5 frigates, and 5 sloops of war. The number of vessels in commission is 19. Of these 4 or 5 are in the Mediterranean, about as many in the Pacific, and the others in the West Indies, on the coast of Brazil, &c. The annual expense of the Navy and Navy Yards, not including the sums appropriated for the gradual improvement of the Navy, is about three millions of dollars. The pay and subsistence of officers, and pay of seamen amount to 1,360,000 dollars; provisions 505,000; repairs of vessels 473,000.

Lead Mines. The lead made at the public lead mines during the last year amounted to 6,092,560 pounds, one tenth of which belongs to the United States for rent. The product of the mines near Fever River was upwards of five millions and that of the Missouri mines less than one million. It is supposed that the annual product of the mines will soon reach ten millions of pounds.

Pensioners.—The number of pensioners on the rolls in September last was as follows: Revolutionary Pensioners 12,500; Invalid Pensioners 3,805; Half pay Pensioners 19; total 16,324. The Revolutionary pensioners received the last year $793,254; and the invalid and half pay pensioners $174,628. About two thirds of the pensioners belong to New York and the New England States. Massachusetts has 1557 revolutionary, and 345 invalid pensioners.

Armories, &c.—During the year ending September 30th, 25,700 muskets and their appendages were made at the national armories at Springfield and Harper's Ferry. In the year 1826, the amount of money expended at Springfield was $183,286; and at Harper's Ferry $167,341. The expense of the U. States for cannon, artillery carriages, small arms, ammunition, &c. has averaged about $60,000 dollars per annum, for the last fourteen years. These large sums have been expended for permanent objects, and for articles of a durable character; and the value of this description of military property now in the charge of the Ordnance Department is more than ten millions of dollars. The value of the small arms alone exceeds six millions.

National Road.—Twenty-eight miles of this road, west of the Ohio river are completed, on the McAdam principle, having received three coverings of stone, reduced to pieces of not more than four ounces in weight, making a total thickness of nine inches. The cost of these 28 miles of road, including bridges, culverts, &c. has been about 7000 dollars per mile. About 45 miles more of the road, extending to Zanesville in Ohio, are in an active state of progress.

The old National Road, on the east of the Ohio, has nearly gone to destruction for want of care and attention. By long neglect it has become too bad to be mended, and must in a great degree be renewed. The appropriation of 30,000 dollars granted by congress for its repair, has done but little good. This road, extending from Cumberland to the Ohio, has cost the United States about two millions of dollars.

Public Lands.—The United States have paid to France, Spain, Georgia, and the Indians, for public lands, 29,600,000 dollars, and the expenses of surveying and selling have amounted to 3,320,000 dollars. The total amount paid by purchasers is less than 33 millions. The quantity of land purchased by the U. States is 258,377,667 acres. Of this, about 20 millions of acres have been appropriated for military bounties, support of schools, colleges, &c. The quantity of land within the present limits of the states and territories, not yet ceded by the Indians, is 56 millions of acres; and the quantity of unceded lands lying north and west of the states and territories, within the limits of the United States, is 750,000,000 acres.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

We have published the President's message, in extenso; but as many folks dislike to read long pieces, we present them with a humorous analysis of that document, taken from the Elkton (Maryland) Press:

The weather has been very hot, my friends, since I had the pleasure of meeting you here a twelve month ago—but by the blessing of Providence you have enjoyed pretty good health, and so have I. The blessing of peace with our brethren has been uninterrupted—Though the Winnebago Indians did scalp some of our women and children on the frontiers.

Internal quiet has left our fellow citizens in the free enjoyment of all their rights—notwithstanding that saucy fellow Governor Troup did make such a splutter.

Every man has a right to pursue the impulse of his nature, &c. I don't like that expression—it means many things. The Crops have been good—and there is a good deal of foreign commerce carried on—but not to the British West India Islands.

At this time peace and prosperity prevail over the habitable globe. (Greece and Turkey excepted)—present a forecast of that blessed period when the lion shall lie down with the lamb, and Jackson and I shall shake hands together.

Objects of deep importance to the welfare of the Union are constantly recurring, and as this is the last opportunity I expect to have, I shall present them to the Legislature for their consideration.

A negotiation, upon subjects of high and delicate interest with Great Britain, has terminated—by Mr. Gallatin's returning home—when he talked about opening the negotiations about the colonial trade, Mr. Canning, in his lifetime, very rudely shut the door in his face, and told him he would talk no more on the subject. They have paid us for our runaway negroes, which was very clever in them. The northeastern boundary line is not yet definitely settled, but I expect shortly to get it done—and if I don't, the Governor of Maine will.

We have offered France to submit the indemnification of our losses by the seizure and confiscation of our property by Bounaparte, to Arbitration, but she won't agree to it—I hope, however, I shall be able to catch her in a better humor by and by.

We have concluded a treaty of amity and commerce, with the Haeseatic Republics—whereby they are to furnish the Cabbage, if we will send them Viagar, to make Sour Croud.

The Emperor Nicholas seems a very clever fellow—he and the other crowned heads of the Holy Alliance, are going to give freedom to the Greeks—Don't you think we had better take a hand in it?

The treaties concluded at the Congress of Panama do not appear to have been ratified; but no matter for that, as our Minister could not find the place. I have not yet been notified when they will meet again at Tacubaya, but when I am informed, I will let you know.

The naval officers of Brazil have captured some of our vessels, but I hope and trust they will be honest enough to give them up.

The receipts for the present year amount to twenty one millions four hundred thousand dollars—the expenditures for the same time, will amount to twenty two millions three hundred thousand dollars; leaving the account at the end of the year to stand—

|----------|--------------|
| Expenses | $22,300,000 |
| Receipts | 21,400,000 |

The nation minus this sum $900,000 But this is a matter of no consequence—if our current revenue will not enable us to pay off the ten millions of the public debt, our credit's good—we can borrow money to do it with.

The condition of the army and navy will be seen by the reports of the respective Secretaries of those Departments. They are in rather a better condition than when I was at Ghent.

The Civil Engineers, my surveyors, have made sundry surveys, since I last had the pleasure of seeing you; of which plans and certificates shall be returned to you. They are twelve in number.

Our little school-boys, at West Point, are doing very well; they learn smartly. "Don't you think it would be well enough to have another school, somewhere on the water, to teach swimming and diving?" I had like to have forgotten the Post-master General, the only good officer under the government. He says he has one hundred thousand dollars of a surplus, in his hands for us; notwithstanding he drives a mail to every man's door.

The amount received for the sale of public lands, is not yet quite equal to what we have paid for them; but this is owing to the purchasers not being able to pay for them; and when that is the case, I think we had better give it up to them, and not make any fuss about it. Those back-woods squatters are ugly fellows to deal with.

There are various other subjects of deep interest to the Union, which I have heretofore recommended. Amongst which is the debt we owe to the old soldiers; a new Militia Law, which will prevent Jackson from murdering our fellow citizens. The extension of the judiciary to places where they have none. A law to let insolvent debtors out of jail; on which, if you choose to act, you may calculate upon my hearty co-operation; but if you have not time, it is little matter about them. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

P. S. Lost or Misaid, That paragraph in the President's Message which treats about domestic manufactures; perhaps it may be found in the unfrequented pigeon hole, where was found the report of the Court-Martial that condemned the six militia men.

THE BELL-MAN.
Elizabeth Payne, forty years of age, and having five children, died not long ago at Bethnal Green, Eng. from taking tobacco water as a cure for worms. A Quack doctor, named Gabriel Orc, recommended the specific. Verdict "manslaughter," and the doctor was committed to Newgate.

The French College of Physicians have lately decided, that the cause of ladies teeth decaying at so much earlier a stage of life than those of the opposite sex, is the great friction of the tongue upon them.
