SONNET.

I REMEMBER, I REMEMBER.

BY THOMAS GOOD.
I remember, I remember
The house where I was born,
The little window where the sun Came peeping in at morn;
He never came a wink too soon, Nor brought too long a day;
But now I often wish that night Had borne my breath away!

I remember, I remember
The rose red and white,
The violets, and the lily-cups, Those flowers made of light!
The larks where the robin built,
And when my brother set The librium on his birth-day,
The tree is living yet!

I remember, I remember
Where I was used to swing, And thought the air must rush as fresh To swallow on the wing;
My spirit flew in feathers then,
That is so heavy now,
And summer pools could hardly cool
The fever in my brow!

I remember, I remember
The fir trees dark and high;
I used to think their slender tops Were close against the sky;
It was a childish ignorance, But now 'tis little joy
To know I'm farther off from heav'n Than when I was a boy.

ON FLATTERY.

Flattery's a perfect mistress of her art,
With picklock-keys to open every heart:
What mortal can withstand the fire of flattery?
No one! 'tis such a most successful battery, No head, however thick, resists its shot; Yet each pretends to mock it! what a sot!
Dunce flatters dunces, and thus in fame they rise On Fanny's wing, self-mounted, to the skies.

MISCELLANEOUS

FROM THE HAZEN (DEO.) TELEGRAPH.

December.—Now the Earth, sailing off in the ecliptic, turns up endways towards the Sun, and opens her "popular orifice to his inquisitive eyes." Now the great luminary, lowering his rays, takes a peep into the bowels of the concave spheres. Now our rashes old Boreas, bristling like a wild boar, and fierce as a whipsaw. Now the guilty stars wink slyly at each other, and hide their faces as the chaste moon stalks by them. Now the moon's cranium presents awful bumps to the phrenologist's scientific fingers. Now Winter, crowned with snow, extends his dominions, and rules with a rod of —ice. Now Frost, like a poor relation, makes his annual visit, destroying all before him. Now Hail, Sleet and Snow, like duns, meet us at our thresh-hold, and hang on to our coat-sleeves. Now cold, like a guilty conscience, causes quaking and gnashing of teeth. Now the night wind whistles through the unsealed cabin, and the greedy hearth devours huge wood-piles. Now featherbeds are comfortable —and old bachelors and antiquated spinsters throw side-glances towards each other. Now the hydrocelic clouds labour under profluvia, and cold rains accost the moody traveller —also, cleanly housewives deprecate muddy floors. Now hot punch and flip are decocted, and men get drunk by steam. Now weddings are promoted—and domestic manufactures begin to be encouraged—likewise the doctrine of Malthus is getting out of vogue. Now the wisdom of the nation does some mighty foolish things —and Uncle Sam's treasury gets the consumption. Now bad crops are heavily complained of—and bad debts contracted, notwithstanding. Now creditors draw out their pocketbooks—and debtors draw out their pocketbooks—with nothing in them. And now—the Printer wants money!

FROM THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE.

We do not recollect ever having seen the annexed analysis of the name of Napoleon in print. Together with the original derivation of the name, which is computed of two Greek words, "Lion of the Desert," it forms a most striking coincidence with the character of that man who has rendered it so conspicuous in history.

1	N APOLEON
6	A POLEON
7	P OLEON
3	O LFEON
4	L EON
5	E ON
2	ON

By dropping the first letter from the first syllable of the name in full, and from each part of it in succession, six Greek words are found, which, translated in the order of the numerals, signify, Napoleon being a raging Lion, going about destroying cities.

The revenue of Rhode Island for the last six months amounted to $18,083 98 cents, its expenditures during that period were only $8,585 12 cents.

BOSTON NEW CITIZEN.

The following (says a London paper) are the names of the trees planted in St. Peter's Church Yard, with their symbolical descriptions:

Cedar of Lebanon.—It being the tree selected by Solomon for building the temple of Jerusalem.

Weeping Willow.—A native of Babylon, and the tree on which the unhappy Israelites hung their harps when they bemoaned the loss of Jerusalem.

Sycamore.—The tree on which Zaccheus climbed to see Christ on his way to Jerusalem.

Thorn.—To remind us of the crown of thorns.

Aspen.—It being the tree of which the Cross is said to have been formed.

Lime.—The principal papyraceous tree of the ancients, and on the bark of which the Scriptures were probably first written.

Ash.—Esteemed a sacred tree in ancient times, and the one to which the Serpent is said to have a strong antipathy.

Plane.—The favorite tree of the Greeks, and under whose shade the Athenian philosophers retired to study.

Birch.—The tree from which the Lictors made their fasces.

Elm.—The funeral tree of the Romans, and the coffin timber of Bristol.

Cypress.—The funeral tree of all Eastern nations.

Yew.—"The sacred Yew, so fear'd in war;" and a tree consecrated and dedicated to the grave.

Arbor Vita.—Although the tree of life, it shows that immortality is not the lot of any thing terrestrial.

Holly.—As being used in the decoration of churches at sacred festivals.

Box.—The plant formerly used in the feast of the Purification of the Blest Virgin.

Poplar.—A plant held sacred by the Romans, and the tree used to mark the boundaries of their lands.

Maple.—The tree of which the bowl of hospitality was formed in the days of yore.

Pine.—"And the tall pine for future natives."
—Da utile lignum Navigus Pinus.

"The useful pine for ships."
"To thee I consecrate the pine." In pagan days it was consecrated to Diana.

Bay.—The Laurus Nobilis of the ancient warriors: the crown of our poet Laureates: a supposed protection from lightning, and a purifier of pes-tilential air.

Laurel.—As an honorable badge for those who bravely defended their country and their laws.

Oak.—Once the refuge of a British Monarch, and ever the bulwark of our State.

FROM THE BOSTON EVENING BULLETIN.

CURIOSITY.

The human mind is a most curious sort of machine; and its curiosity is not the least curious ingredient in its composition. This is one of those universal properties that influence people of all classes, and help to establish and demonstrate the doctrine of man's perpetual as well as original equality. All men are not only born equal, but remain so, in more respects than certain aristocratic physiologists are disposed to allow. The boot-black who takes his sixpence for polishing a dandy's understanding, squints askant at the visage of his customer, whereby to ascertain the affinity between his own wages and "the gentleman's" gratification—this is the curiosity of interest. The statesman, who flour-ishes feathers of rhetoric in public halls and very much obliges the printer by condescending to furnish copies of speeches for the press, listens with eagerness, as the indifferent multitude utters sentence laudatory or condemnatory,—this is the curiosity of pride.
There are divers other species of this queer quality, appertaining to the intermediate grades of society, which we have neither leisure nor inclination to particularize.

But, if we ever before entertained doubts of the fact, that the spirit of curiosity operates powerfully, though diversely, upon all the men and all the women that inhabit the upper crust of this "eviscerated globe," we were last evening perfectly confirmed in our present conclusion. A fellow in a brown thread bare surtout, cowhide brogues, and trowsers home made of two blue yarns here opposed to two black ones there—with a visage struggling between wonderment and dirt, surmounted by a chapeau that had been felt and flapped for many a season, strolled into the office, and very deliberately engrossed our only supernumerary chair—a very genteel companion forsooth, and a worthy!

There he sat with all the orifices and emanatories that emptied themselves, or claimed outlets upon the surface of his noddle, open, wide open, gaping staring, harkening, and making wry efforts to think. For the space of an hour, he spake not. There he sat, and stared—like the everlasting Rat in the mansion of Lord Fitzgallybhog-magaul. Now and then the busy type-setters would exchange shrewd grimaces and winks clandestine. Still the visitor set and stared. We thought of Blackwood and all his nightmare themes. The man was perfectly sober, and perfectly at home—he appeared to voluptate in his own amazement. His countenance bespoke a variety of clumsy ruptures and terrific enjoyments, oddly mixed together; but his tongue lay motionless upon his nether grinders, while he sat, and stared, and seemed to ruminate. The pause was awful—'twas past all endurance, the fidgets were fast taking hold of fingers that rattled among the types, and a sudden fit of cramp crooked our very quill. At length the stranger moved—and sneezed—and coughed: —symptoms indicative of speech. He raised his right arm, then the remainder of his body, and stood, and stared again. He spoke, and never did human accent touch the ear of suspense more mellifluously.

"I say, mister, d'ye make books here?" No, my friend, we make newspapers—"Cause I want to buy a primer."

A new mode of administering medicine is now rapidly gaining ground in Germany. Instead of the large doses prescribed in this country, very minute quantities are given, and as it seems, frequently with good effect. So small a quantity of blue pill as the 50th part of a grain is some times administered; and of sulphate of quinine—a medicine of which the ordinary dose here is three or four grains—1-20th part of the grain is ordered. It is difficult to conceive how so little medicine produces a sensible effect; but if it is really found to answer, the practice must be very beneficial in debilitated persons, who are in this country frequently sent speedily to the grave by medicine.

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE.

The prostrate monument which goes by this name, and which was a few years since given by the Pacha of Egypt to the King of England, still unremoved by his majesty. Its length is about seventy feet, and its weight is computed to be about 400 tons.
Capt. Allan has lately suggested a plan for removing it to England; and after bringing the needle to the beach, by means of a railway, to build the ship round the pillar, and then to launch the whole together. In this way it is thought practicable to reach London, where means would be found for erecting it in one of the public squares.

In a late case in the Quarter Sessions in this city, one of the witnesses, a woman that lays out the dead, testified that a thief who had turned states evidence in the case, on one occasion stole a dead body out of the house while she was making the winding sheet.

A rogue calling himself a watch maker, recently appeared in Horry District, S. Carolina, while the court was in session, and having obtained possession of 15 watches, decamped.
His age was not more than 22.

A wild deer was taken at sea, about two miles from Newburyport, Mass. a few days since, by two men in a skiff. It had probably escaped to the water as a refuge from hungry hounds.

Every family in the county of Ontario, New-York, is now supplied with a Bible. 401 which had no part of it, and 110 which had only the New Testament, having been furnished within the last two years.

There are no fewer than forty-one kinds of peppers. A Batavian naturalist of the name of Blumb has written a description of them accompanied with plates.

Button Factory.—The establishment for the manufacture of this little article, at Attleborough, is in very successful progress. The expenses of it are stated to amount to nearly $80,000 a year, and the amount of Buttons manufactured to be over $100,000.
