

Revolutionary Claims.

An act for the relief of certain surviving Officers and Soldiers of the Army of the Revolution.

Section 2. And be it further enacted, that, whenever any of said officers has received money of the United States, as a pensioner, since the third day of March, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-six, the sum so received shall be deducted from what said officer would otherwise be entitled to, under the first section of this act; and every pension to which said officer is now entitled, shall cease after the passage of this act.

Section 3. And be it further enacted, that every surviving non-commissioned officer, musician, or private, in said army, who enlisted therein for and during the war, and continued in its service until its termination, and thereby became entitled to receive a reward of eighty dollars, under a resolve of congress, passed May fifteenth, seventeen hundred and seventy-eight, shall be entitled to receive his full monthly pay in said service, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated; to begin on the third day of March, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-six, and to continue during his natural life; provided, that no non-commissioned officer, musician, or private, in said army, who is now on the pension list of the United States, shall be entitled to the benefits of this act.

Section 4. And be it further enacted, that the pay allowed by this act shall, under the direction of the secretary of the treasury, be paid to the officer or Soldier entitled thereto, or to their authorized attorney, at such places and days as the Secretary may direct; and that no foreign officer shall be entitled to said pay; nor shall any officer or Soldier receive the same, until he furnish to said Secretary satisfactory evidence that he is entitled to the same, in conformity to the provisions of this act; and the pay allowed by this act shall not in any way be transferable, or liable to attachment, levy, or seizure, by any legal process whatever, but shall inure wholly to the personal benefit of the officer or soldier entitled to the same by this act.

Section 5. And be it further enacted, that so much of said pay as accrued by the provisions of this act, before the third day of March, eighteen hundred and twenty-eight, shall be paid to the officers and soldiers entitled to the same, as soon as may be, in the manner and under the provisions before mentioned; and the pay which shall accrue after said day, shall be paid semi-annually, in like manner, and under the same provisions.

A. STEVENSON, Speaker of the House of Representatives. S. SMITH, President of the Senate, pro tempore. Approved: 15 May, 1828. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

Treasury Department, May 29, 1828.

The Act for the relief of certain surviving officers and soldiers of the revolution, approved on the 15th day of May, 1828, (of which the foregoing is a copy) will be carried into effect under the following regulations:

Each officer claiming under the act, will transmit to the secretary of the treasury a declaration, according to the form hereunto annexed, marked A, and each non-commissioned officer, musician, and private, according to the form marked B, accompanied by the oath of two respectable witnesses, as to his identity, which oath is to be taken before a justice of the peace, or other magistrate, duly empowered to administer oaths in the state or territory in which he resides, and authenticated under the seal of the court of the county in which the oath was administered, as shown in the said forms.

Each officer will also transmit his commission, if in existence and attainable, and each non-commissioned officer, musician, and private, his discharge; which documents, after being registered, will be returned. If the commission or discharge has been lost or destroyed, he will transmit such other evidence as he may possess or can obtain, corroborative of the statements set forth in his declaration.

If the evidence transmitted, taken in connexion with that afforded by the public records at Washington, be found satisfactory, the amount of two years' full pay, at the rate to which the officer or soldier was entitled, according to his rank in the line, at the close of the war, or at the time of his reduction, (as the case may be,) but in no instance exceeding the full pay of a captain of the continental line, will be transmitted to him, at the place of his residence, after deducting therefrom the amount of any pension which he may have received from the United States since the 3d day of March, 1826. He may, however, authorize any other person to receive it for him; in which case, he will execute a power of attorney, according to the annexed form, marked C, which must be acknowledged before a justice of the peace, or other magistrate, and authenticated under the seal of the court of the county, in the same manner as is already prescribed in regard to declarations. But no payment will be made to any such attorney, until he has made oath, according to the annexed form D, that the pay which he is authorized to receive is intended to enure wholly to the personal benefit of the officer or soldier whose attorney he is.

It is requested that all letters to the secretary of the treasury, on the subjects, may be endorsed on the cover: "Revolutionary Claims." RICHARD RUSH

PORTRAY.

There is much beauty and originality in the following lines from the Epimach Watchman: THE SABBATH MORNING. How calm comes in this holy day! Morning unfolds the Eastern sky; And upwards takes her lofty way, Triumphs, to the throne on high. Earth glorious wakes, as o'er her breast The morning flings her rosy ray, And blushing, from the dreamless rest, Unveils her to the gaze of day, So still the scene, each wakeful sound Seems hallowed music breathing round.

The night winds to their mountain caves, The morning mist to heaven's blue steep, And to their ocean depths the waves Are gone, their holy rest to keep. The tranquil all-round shore The forests far which bound the scene, Are peaceful as their Maker's love, Like hills of everlasting green. And clouds like earthly barriers, stand As bulwarks of some viewless land. Each tree that lifts its arms in air, Or hangs its pensive head from high, Seems bending at its morning prayer, Or whispering with the hour gone by. This holy morning, Lord, is thine! Let silence sanctify thy praise: Let heaven and earth in love combine, And morning stars their music raise! For, 'tis the day—Joy, Joy, ye dead, When death and hell were captive led.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Lord Chatham's eloquence was peculiar and matchless. Who can describe it that has not heard it? and who that had the happiness to hear it can do justice to it by description? It was neither the rounded and the monotonous declamation, the exuberance of images, the acute sophistry, or the attic wit and satirical point, that we have seen admired in our own times. It was very various; it possessed great force of light and shade; it occasionally sunk to colloquial familiarity, and occasionally rose to epic sublimity. If he crept sometimes with Tiresias, he as often thundered and lightened with Pericles. His irony, though strong, was ever dignified; his power of ridicule irresistible, and his invective so terrible, that the objects of it shrunk under it like shrubs before the withering and the blasting sirocco. Whoever heard this great man speak, always bro't away something that remained upon his memory and upon his imagination. A verbum ardens, a glowing word, a happy facility of expression, an appropriate metaphor, a forcible image, or a sublime figure, never failed to recompense the attention which the hearer had bestowed upon him. After he retired, and before he had any title of nobility, he used to drive himself in a one horse chaise. At each town to which he came, the people gathered round about his carriage; and greeted him with the loudest acclamations.

Lord Chatham thought much of the effects of dress, and of dignity of manner upon mankind. He was never seen on business without a full-dress coat and tye-wig, and he never permitted his under secretaries to sit down in his presence.

Indian Ladies.—At the Falls of St. Mary's river, near Lake Superior, resides Mr. Johnson, the patriarch of the place, whose wife is a full blood, broad cheeked Chippeway, with the following pretty name, Oshaugscodaywaygonh. She has three sons and four daughters, all carefully educated. Mr. Schoolcraft, a man of science, and a celebrated traveller, married the second daughter, who is a very accomplished woman. She dresses like fashionable ladies, except that she wears black silk leggins. She has a younger sister, who is a charming creature, and "would be a belle in Washington." She sings Indian "like an angel," and the chorus of one of her songs is, we, yea, yea, haw ha. Mr. Johnson is rich—makes annually four tons of maple sugar, and his wife cooks beavers' tails, to a charm.

* Flint's Western Review, from which we derive these particulars, says, if the reader wishes for a longer word, he may have the Mohawk one for wickedness, to wit, raorighvanerakeragewegouh.

Anecdote of Gen. Jackson..... On a Sunday, during the late war, having given directions that there should be no working or unnecessary noise in the camp, one of his officers came to him and complained that some Methodist soldiers had assembled, in violation of his order, and opened a prayer meeting—"Go, then, and join them," said the General, "and request them that they will not forget me in their prayers: God forbid that praying should be an uncommon noise in my camp."
