BENJAMIN FRALEY.

STILL carries on the above business, in all its bratches, at the shop heretofore occupied by him, on Main street, a few doors cast of Mr. Slaughter's Tavern, in the town of Sallsbury.

He continues to receive the London, Paris, and Philadelphia Fashicat, regularly as they change; which will enable him to accommodate Ladies and Gentlemen with the most tasteful and elegant kinds of Germents, made up with ful and elegant kinds of Garments, made up with as much "skill," he hopes, as his neighbors can, rightfully lay claim to.....of which, however, he is not disposed to boast overmuch, leaving it to the good sense of his customers to be themselves the judges of what is good taste. As he employs the best of journeymen, and has no apprentices, he thinks he has a right to ray his work will be well done; and he sourrants it to fit well. Owing to the great scarcity of money, cheapness of produce, &c. he will work lover than any other tuilor in this part of the country, who will do as good work as he does.

Cutting out, of all kinds of Garments, done on the shortest notice. He still offers to teach Ward's Patent Protrace tor system of Tailoring, which is practised by all the fashionable tailors in the United States. He respectfully solicits a share of the public natronage, and hopes to merit it by works, rather than by extravariant professions. October 7, 1828.

It afforded to the students during the last course of instruction, the opportunity of witnessing a variety of operations amongst these were most of the capital operations in Surgery To enable the Students to profit by the facil-ities which our situation affords for the study of Practical Anatomy, new and extensive rooms have been erected and provided with every thing necessary for the purpose.

The valuable Anatomical Museum of the College, has been improved by new preparations received from France and Italy, last summer. It affords the Faculty additional satisfaction to state, that by an arrangement with the Literary and Philosophical Society of South Carolina, extensive and valuable collections in Natural History, have been placed in the College, and carefully arranged, so as to afford to those interested in the study of Nature, ample opportunity of acquiring information, not only in the departments connected with Medicine, but through the whole range of Natural History.

The rich collection of minerals particularly, must be considered very important to the Insti-EDMUND HAVENEL, Dean.

There is a tone of melanchuly in the thing verses, but will they are very good. THE PAST. BY JOHN WILSON, ENG.

How wild and dien this life upppears!

One long, deep heavy sigh.

When o'er our eyes, half closed in tears
The images of former years
Are faintly glimmering by!
And still forgotten while they go,
As on the sea-beach, wave on wave,
Dissolves at once in snow.
The amber clouds one moment lie,
Then like a dream are gone!
Though beautiful the moon-beams play
On the take's bosom, bright as they,
And the soul intensely loves their stay,
Boon as the radiance malts away,
We scarce believe it shone!
Heaven-aira amid the harp strings dwell;
And we wish they ne'er may false.
They cease—and the soul is a slient dell,
Where music never played!
Dream follows dream through the long night.
Each lovelier than the last;
But ere the breath of morning flowers,
That gorgeous world flies past;
And many a sweet, angelic cheek,
Whose smiles of love and kindness speak,
Glidgs by us on this earth;
While in a day we cannot tell Glides by us on this earth; While in a day we cannot tell Where shone the face we loved so well In sadness or in mind.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A SKETCH. A great and powerful king had a sister, distinguished for extreme personal beauty, for great powers and cultivation of mind, and for a most amiable and benevolent disposition. She was remarkable, also, for a proficiency in those accomplishments which throw such additional charms over female beauty and intellect. In music especially, she took excessive pleasure, and possessed extreme skill. She was the favorite of ber brother, and was regarded with all that consideration which such favor gives in an absolute court. Youth, beauty, talent, power -all seemed joined to shower roses on her path, to give it all happiness. But this was not to last. A young oppressed. nobleman appeared at the court, who soon attracted universal attention. Peculiarly fitted to shine in such scenes, it was not long before his success (to use the word is its French signification,) became undoubted .-Among others, the princess admired the young courtier, and soon she I ved him. I'heir mutual affection was what might be expected between two persons of fiery passions, and habits of little self-control. It did not, therefore, remain long unperceived. The young man was advised to withdraw himself-but all such cautions were vain to youthful and favored passion. During his first imprisonment, the princess had contrived to convey to him her assurance of continued affection, and every alleviation which wealth could furnish to his lot. But after he was removed to the last place of his confinement, it was as if the tomb had closed over him forever. Let us shift the scene, and we see a woman tottering in premature old age; her limbs had nearly lost their power, she can scarcely crawl the length of her room, and she cannot lift the one hand without the help of the other to raise it. Her eyes are distended, forced from their sockets, and nearly blind. Her voice is gone, and with it her fondness for the art to which it gave so much effect and beauty. Her mind is equally altered. Her mildness is changed into the bitterest sarcasm. From one of the most benevolent of human beings, she has become to take delight only in the indulgence of a severity of temper amounting almost to

SIGNIFICATION OF COLOURS.

1. Tellow .- Honor, height of spirit, which being never separated from virtue, of all things is most jealous of disgrace, and may not endure the least shadow of imputation.

2. White .- Signifieth innocence or purity of cooscience, truth and upright ntegrity without blemish.

3. Black .- Wisdom and sobriety, together with severe correction, of too much ambition, being mixed with yellow ; or with too much belief or lenity, mixed with white.

4. Bhie. - Faith, constancy, of truth in affection.

5. Red .- Justice, or noble worthy anger, in defence of religion, or the 6. Green. - Good hope, or the accomplishment of holy and honorable actions. 7. Purple. - Fortitude with discretion, or a most true discharge of any

8. Tunnis, or Tawny.-Merit or desert, and a fee to ingratitude.

9. Ermine, (a rich fur, with curious spots.)-Signifieth religion or holiness, and that all aims are not divine objects.

Now from these colours and their mixtures, are derived many dishonorable colours, as carnation, orange, tawny, popengie, &c. signify craft, pride and wantonness.

- AN OLD AUTHOR.

Hints to dancers .- We go to a ball. Mercy upon us! is this what you call dancing! A man of thirty years of age, and with legs as thick as a gatepost, stands up in the middle of the room, and gapes, and fumbles with his gloves, looking all the time as if he were burying his grandmother. At a given signal, the unwieldy animal puts himself into motion; he throws out his arms, crouches up his shoulders, and without moving a muscle of his face, kicks out his legs, to the manifest risk of the bystanders, and goes back to his place puffing and blowing ike an otter, after a half hour's burst. Is this dancing? Shades of the filial, paternal Vestris! can this be a specimen of the art which gives elusticity to the most inert conformation, which sets the blood glowing with a warm and genial flow, and makes beauty float before our ravished senses, stealing our admiration by the gracefulness of each new motion, till at last our souls thrill to each warning movement, and dissolved into ecstacy and love? Maiden, with the roses lying among the twinings of thy long red hair! think not that the art of dancing consists merely in activity and strepgth. Thy limbs, which are none of the weakest, were not intended to be rivals with a pavior's hammer : the artificer, who trimmed thy locks, had no idea that his labours were to be His mind depressed with wees, and bent with lifted three feet higher than thy natural height from the ground; spare It is her lover.
