

1837. Henry L. Edwards, of Hartford, in a recent address to a committee...

The committee, in calling for various statements, have collected a number of useful documents...

The majority of the committee feel authorized to state that they have not been able to give even the parent bank that investigation...

The committee that investigated the affairs of the bank in 1819, when it had been but two years in operation...

There have been many statements called for which the business of the bank and the shortness of the time allowed for the investigation...

On the subject of specie payments, domestic and foreign exchange, investments in public debt...

On motion of Mr. Stanbery, after considerable intermediate proceedings, a resolution was adopted...

Mr. E. Cooke, of Ohio, then presented to the House a letter presented to him on Saturday last, by a person who gave his name as Alexander Dumitry...

From the National Intelligencer of 15th May.

IN CONGRESS, YESTERDAY.

The Senate passed the Post office bill, and some progress on the Pension bill...

In the House of Representatives, after the reception of a few petitions and reports, Mr. J. Q. Adams moved a resolution...

Samuel Houston was brought to the bar of the House of Representatives. He was allowed to read and to have spread on the Journal of the House...

You have been charged with a violation of the rights and privileges of the House of Representatives, in having offered personal violence to one of its members...

It is said, by those who understand these matters, that a measure of this kind would be in strict accordance with the Constitution...

Whatever the motives or causes may have been, which led to the act of violence committed by you, your conduct has been pronounced, by the solemn judgment of the House...

In fulfilling the order of the House, I were called upon, as its presiding officer, to reprimand an individual member...

We do not remember the time when the question of the Vice Presidency has excited as much interest as at present. That office has generally been regarded as a kind of sinecure...

Your own mind will suggest to you, no doubt, more suitable reflections than any thing which I can say or convey. To those reflections I am prepared to trust...

I forbear to say more, than to pronounce the judgment of the House, which is, that you have been guilty of a high breach of its privileges...

On motion of Mr. Stanbery, after considerable intermediate proceedings, a resolution was adopted for appointing a committee...

Mr. E. Cooke, of Ohio, then presented to the House a letter presented to him on Saturday last, by a person who gave his name as Alexander Dumitry...

Mr. E. Cooke, of Ohio, then presented to the House a letter presented to him on Saturday last, by a person who gave his name as Alexander Dumitry...

Alabama Paper.

WORKING MEN.

The farmers and mechanics of New England are rapidly acquiring correct notions of Mr. Clay's "American System."

[From the Blairsville Record.]

ADJUSTMENT OF THE TARIFF.

Mr. Editor:—I recently met with an idea, respecting the tariff policy, which, if adopted, might please all parties. It is this: Let Congress reduce the present duties to a revenue rate—make them as low as the Free Trade States wish them.

It is said, by those who understand these matters, that a measure of this kind would be in strict accordance with the Constitution...

THE VICE PRESIDENCY.

We do not remember the time when the question of the Vice Presidency has excited as much interest as at present. That office has generally been regarded as a kind of sinecure...

The great Tariff question is not likely to be fully settled for several years to come; during which time it will be often before Congress; and every thing having a relation to the balance of power, of that question, cannot fail to be of great importance...

Alabama Paper.

WORKING MEN.

The farmers and mechanics of New England are rapidly acquiring correct notions of Mr. Clay's "American System."

Mr. Luther is a poor journeyman carpenter, though a respectable citizen, and his speech was delivered in a style that fairly astonished the auditors.

FROM THE REPUBLICAN HERALD. MR. LUTHER'S SPEECH.

MR. CHAIRMAN: I would ask if persons not possessing one hundred and thirty four dollars in all, are permitted to address this meeting...

Have we not, Sir, been contending for months, to obtain the acknowledgment of an undoubted right, to wit: The right to sell our own time in such quantities as we deem expedient?

The American public have been recently asked for $20,000, with which to build a Seminary of learning, in Greece. Let us, Sir, educate our own population in preference to a foreign one.

Mr. Luther is a poor journeyman carpenter, though a respectable citizen, and his speech was delivered in a style that fairly astonished the auditors.

Mr. Luther is a poor journeyman carpenter, though a respectable citizen, and his speech was delivered in a style that fairly astonished the auditors.

reality and out of fiction. His mind is filled with sensations, which, from thence, are without a name. He exclaims, "To a paradise!—No, Mr. Chairman, one of my friends remarked, if a Cotton Mill is a paradise, it is 'Paradise Lost'."

But, Sir, we would presume to advise, the Hon. Senator from Kentucky to travel in a cog, when he visits cotton mills. He can then see, in many of the prisons of that name in New England, instead of rosy cheeks, the pale, the sickly, the Aged, countenance of the ragged child...

The Hon. Gentleman might see about 5000 children in Rhode Island, almost one half of the whole number in the State, deprived in a great measure, of the means to learn even the first rudiments of education.

Mr. Moderator, it is painful to see the confusion which has been raised in this House, while the Hon. Judge Martin had the floor. It not only discredits the movers but the town—the town where Roger Williams established liberty of opinion, and liberty of speech.

Now we are told we cannot vote, for we have no interest in the soil. But Sir, we claim an interest in that soil that covers the bones of our ancestors—of our brothers, our sisters, and other relatives, and we would stand knee deep in blood, to defend it.

Has it come to this, that we cannot assemble here peaceably and lawfully, without our Moderator insulted to his face, and through him the whole Middling Interest? And this by the very spawn of the Aristocracy!

to be a man of great originality; one who would not doubt honor himself, and the city (if elected) and if not elected, he will conduct any city where he may reside.

From the New York Evening Post. It is no uncommon thing for people whose conduct in any particular instance becomes the subject of general examination and censure, to make a noise about something else, with the view directing the public scrutiny from themselves.

Those of our readers who are old enough to remember the times of Jefferson, can find a parallel for the course the present opposition, in the conduct of the federal party of that day.

From the New York American.

Succor to the Poles.—The following letter, with its enclosure, has just been received from General Lafayette:—

My dear Sir:—I have received your kind letter, New York, January, 1838, enclosing the bill of 24995 2/10c. in the name of the New York Committee. This sum has been delivered to the American Committee in Paris.