Beware of ever lending your ear to flatterers or evenphama, for this world is e me pounded of vanity; and I experienced conviction of the hitter truth whilst !lay in bond ige. The might of the almighty has visibly appeared to me; pray to him earnestly, pray to him for theself, for our orphan Photini, & for my sittled soul. My believed, I conjure thee, by the blessed Virgin, never to marry again. Do not leave our poor child Pnotini, motherless, do not expose her to the rude dealings of a second husband, Think, I implore thee, of the days of happiness which have bound us together; these days when thou didst pledge threelf not to marry again, if thou shouldst survive me. The hour is at hand in which I must resign my spirit r and, for the third time, I conjure thee notito marry again; cling to thine the roses in the world, honor and chastity as a widow ; fast and pray, for life draws swiftly to an end. Give Photisi a good educati n, and, if God bless thee with a posthumous pledge of our love, let it be called George, if it prove a boy, but if a girl, let her name be Georgia. By this shall my name be ever on thy lips, and thou shalt never forget me.
