

Poetic Recens

Whence is that trembling of a father's hand,
Who to the man of God doth bring his babe,
Asking the seal of Christ—Why doth the voice
That uttereth o'er its brow the Trine Name,
Felt with sympathy—And, most of all,
Why is your coffin-lid a pedestal
For the baptismal font!

Again I ask—
But all the answer was those gushing tears
Which stricken hearts do weep.

For there she lay—
The fair, young mother, in that coffin-bed,
Mourning by the funeral-train—The least that beat
With trembling tenderness, at every touch
Of love or pity, flush'd the cheek no more.
—Tears were thy baptism, thou unconscious one,
And sorrow took thee, at the gate of life,
Into her cradle—Thou may'st never know
The welcome of a nursing-mother's kiss,
When, in her wandering ecstasy, she marks
A thrilling growth of new affections spread
Fresh greenness o'er the soil.

Thou may'st not share
Her hallow'd teachings, nor soothe her eye
With joy, as the first germs of infant thought
Unfold—in lapsing sound—

— Yet may'st thou walk
Even as she walk'd—breathing on all around
The warmth of high affections—purified
And sublimated by that Spirit's power
Which makes the soul fit temple for its God.
—So shalt thou, in a brighter world, behold
That countenance which the cold grave did veil
Thus early from thy sight, and the first time
That bears a mother's greeting to thine ear.
Be wafted from the omphale of Heaven.
