A STATE FOR SALE.

It will be observed, by the extract below, that some of the good whig Jackson men of Mississippi have offered the State for sale.—The price to be the Chickasaw Fund, which is stated, will amount to about seven millions.

Extract from the communication made to the Convention: "It was, moreover, thought advisable, at the public meeting I attended, that some means should be devised to prevent the United States Bank from continuing to enmesh the State Banks and distress the people of Mississippi."

The Globe describes the communication from which the above extract is made, as "an admirable letter," "remarkable for its just conception of the attitude of public affairs."

WASHINGTON CITY, July 21. The effects upon the Financial Administration of the Government of the Executive usurpation in removing the Public Deposits, are only just beginning to be felt.

in one of the Southern States, for his salary, was protested, because the Department would only pay it by a check on a Bank in Mobile.

Therefore, a single line from the Secretary of the Treasury to the Bank of the United States effected the transfer of millions of dollars wherever wanted by the Government.

BANK OF THE UNITED STATES.

The following, says a New York paper, is an extract of a letter from a gentleman whose authority and information are of a character not to be questioned.

Dear Sir—The course of the Jackson party presses in relation to the recent determination of the Bank to extend its business, and thereby counteract as far as practicable, the destructive crusade of the administration against the currency of the country.

But there are other reasons for their hostility to this measure of the Bank. In the first place, it takes from them all pretence for continuing the cry that the Institution is oppressing the People.

Col. James P. Bull, for several years Editor of the "Bradford Settler," an early and staunch supporter of General Jackson, who now holds the office of Prothonotary for Bradford County, has recently renounced the Administration.

and I never could have believed that Gen. Jackson could be persuaded to advocate the arbitrary and despotic principles contained in the Protest, had I not, like St. Thomas, put my fingers in the marks.

I gave up the man for the principle—my attachment to Gen. Jackson for the country. I may be mistaken in my opinion—there may be less danger than I apprehend. God grant there may be.

THE KITCHEN CABINET.

"A power behind the throne, greater than the throne itself."—It has been alleged from time to time, by the opposition, that an irresponsible cabal, called the Kitchen Cabinet, had directed the movements of the President.

There was another worthy whose moral principle was not strong enough to respect female innocence even in a marble palace, and he was said to belong to the concave of the Kitchen.

We ask why Mr. Ritchie, whom Gen. Jackson pronounced the greatest scoundrel in the United States, attempted to obtain the appointment of Mr. Stevenson as Minister to England, by writing letters to Wm. B. Lewis?

The answer is plain. The Kitchen Cabinet have the power, the inclination and the determination to shelter him, if possible, from popular indignation, for the sake of the uses to which they put his department.

THE GOLD COIN BILL. The following sensible business like remarks on the subject of the gold coin bill, are from the New York Mercantile.

What a contrast between them and the fusion and rant of the Globe on the same subject, which have appeared in that paper for the last month. When exchange is at par, an English sovereign may be imported into this country for $4.44, adding 9 cts. for interest, insurance, freight, &c. making $4.53.

think silver has been placed at too low a relative value, consequently will be sent abroad before exchange gets up to that rate. This subject will not be long a matter of surmise.

We call on the Argus to explain why General Jackson has made Mr. Forsyth Secretary of State, when he is in favor of the United States Bank.

THE UNITED STATES MAIL STAGE, from Wheeling to Baltimore, was attacked near the top of a mountain, 17 miles beyond Cumberland, not far from a dismal place called the "Stades of Death."

One of the passengers, who sat on the front seat, noticed that the robber then examined the baggage, and finding an unusual number of trunks on the rack, he would not venture in front of the stage door afterwards.

GREAT BANK ROBBERY.

The Boston papers, received by this day's mail, contain the following particulars respecting the robbery of the Bank of Norfolk, at Roxbury, which was entered last Tuesday night by means of false brass keys, and robbed of $22,000 in bills, and $2,400 in specie.

The bills taken were of the denomination of $5 and $10, Perkins' old plate. The public are cautioned against taking them, as the Bank has called in their issue, and most of the bills have already been redeemed.

The Reverend Mr. Brown.—It is known to our readers that Mr. O. B. Brown, who figured so largely in the Post-Office expose, is now at Saratoga. By a gentleman just from there, we have heard an anecdote respecting him, which is so good, we cannot refrain from giving it.
