Thus one of the purest and wisest of English pastoral poets satirized the man-worship of his day ; and, alas! how well the picture, drawn for a monarchy, suits the scenes and characters Sfrour Republic !

But there is one consolation-"The scane is near. Yes, the signs every where indicate the want of the of Assembly opposed to the United Status Bank, in spite Hero's popularity, whose influence has been as powerful, upon his moon-struck countzymen, as is the effect of that planet upon the tides; while his political course has exhibited as many phases as that ever-changing orb:

"The wane is near." Do you doubt ! Look at the signs in every quarter of the horizon. Where are now all the satellites that once revolved around this polatical Mars ! Deserted or deserting the fickle deity .--Even Tennessee herself, "though smitten sore" with the disease of man-worship, is recovering her crect position, and will at last be disenthralled.

It is but a few days since we received a letter from an estimable friend, formerly of this State, but now residing in the Western District of Tennessoe, informing us of the political regeneration going on there. The following is an extract from the letter ;

""I truly rejoice at the course you are pursuing in your Editorial career ; and equally rejoice to have it in my power to inform you that in this region, where, very recently, the political atmosphere was so polluted with Jacksonism that it was impossible to breathe any thing else, the people are undergoing a purification, and are beginning to open their eyes to the truth.

"In my own unmediate neighborhood, where, but a few months ago, there were but myself and two or three others that denied the Jackson faith, there are, now, not exceeding that number who own it : and I must give you the credit of being greatly instrumental in producing the change. One of the converts has already directed your paper to be sent to him, and three or four others shortly will."

Can it not then be said, with truth, that "the wane Is hear ?" Three yours ago we were in the 'District,' at the July elections .- It was soon after Crockett had deserted Jacksonism, or, to use that eccentric but honest man's own lunguage, soon after he discovered that Gen. Jackson "had deserted his own principles for Van Burenism." The excitement was very high, and the noble Crockett was beaten by a little pettilogger. But in two years the people got cool ; they found that Col. Crockett was right, and they reinstated him.

We rejoice to find that the District, which is almost a new North Carolina, has gloriously led the van in opposition to the VAN. That, and the recent triumph of Whig principles in this State, are, to us, cheering presages of the return of correct sentiments through put our whole country.

As to Alabama, no one in the world expected, this year, to see a majority there 'slip the collar ;' vet even in that State the late elections show an unlooked for increase of Whigs.

And what do you think, gentle reader, caused the Globe to sing Io Treamphe over the 'old North State?" Why, foreooth, because the North Carolina Journal told it that Cumberland County had elected three members of " a Bank-Sheriff and a Bank-Inspector to reject or receive votes !"

Now, we happen to know something about the state of parties in Cumberland : we have it from good authority, that the only election in the County, which turned upon Jacksonism, was the election of Sheriff, and that of course, in the discomfiture of the Jackson man,
