LINES

ON THE EVILS FLOW INTEMPERANCE. Dedicated to the Medical gentlemen attached to the Baltlmore Almshouse. BY JAMES PITZPATRICK

Thou deadly foe of human kind, Thou fell-destroyer of the mind, Of all that's good and fair; Thy cruel grasp, so firm and strong, To run orges swiftly on, And sinks them in despair!

All usefulness thou dost destroy, And every hope of future joy, Which worth and fame attest: Genius and worth are buried low, And agonizing pain and woe Soon occupy the breast.

Health, reputation, and good name, And tropines of a well earned fame, All, all forever fled; Degraded, scorn'd, and lost to shame, No sympathy from man to claim, Nor place to lay his head.

Then Moni-a-potu, with its train Of horrors, terrors, and of pain, The wretched victim knows: What dreadful thoughts oppress the mind, Of danger, blood, and all such kind-Imaginary woes.

Trembling each limb with pain and fear, Distracting every person near-E'en friends he once lov'd best: And many a foe is in his sight, With murd'rous weapons shining bright, To pierce his tortured breast,

He raves, he cries in furious sound. He sees dismay and terror round-In every shape and mould: His features horror-struck with woe. His eyes their baleful glances throw-So dreadful to behold!

His weak, emaciated form, Sinks 'neath this dreadful mental storm, Expiring nature groans; And signs display that all is o'er, And, struggling with grim death, no more

The King of Terror owns.

If feinting nature should revive, And the dread contest should survive Of pain and mental strife; Then Pity's breast may heave the sigh, When on that form she casts her eye-Asmaniac for life!

How many, in that dreadful hour, Assisted by demoniac pow'r, His hands in blood did steep! The suicidal blow he gave, That sunk him in untimely grave, In infamy to sleep!

A PARABLE. BY REQUEST. 1. A certain man going down from youth to manhood fell among grog shops, where he was stripped of his money, his character, and his friends, and left poor, ragged, and half dead with disease.

2. And, by chance, there came down a certain Moderate Drinker that way, and when he saw him, he scorned him, and passed by on the other side. 3. And likewise a Friend of Temperance came to where he was, and when he saw him he passed by on the other side. 4. But a certain Temperance-Man, as he journeyed came where he was, and when he saw him, he had compassion on him, and went to him and wept over him, and be sought him with tears to repent and reform.

5. And he persuaded him to sit upon his own beast, Total Abstinence, and brought him to his own family, and they took care of him. And on the morrow, he departed. Which of those three was neighbor to him lie fallow; and for precisely the same reason. who fell among grog shops?

RALEIGH, March 2, 1835. Having, for the last three years, been intimately acquainted with Dr. John Beckwith, of this City, and enjoyed his professional services, I take pleasure in stating that his character as a Christian gentleman and experienced Physician, entitles his testimony, in regard to the use of his Anti dyspeptic Pills, to the entire confidence of the public .-My experience of the good effects of these Pills, for two years past, satisfies me of their eminent value, particularly in aiding in impaired digestion and warding off bilious attacks. Having been for a long time subject to the annual recurrence of such attacks, I was in the habit of resorting for security against them, and with a very partial success, to a liberal use of Calomel or blue Pill.
