THE MAGIC VEH.

There is an hour that all most feel, A pang such human heart must know, a wound all study to proposal, That still thro' ling'sing years must flow.

"The when the magic veil's removed, And gazing round with startled eye, We see the world, once to much loved, Appear in stora reality.

Btript of the fairy hues that youth, Love, fency, hope had a'er it thrown; And by the clear, cold light of Truth, In all its real mis'ry shown.

Then comes a blight upon the heart, When thus at finds its hopes are very Like the crushed flower, no time, no art, Can ever make it bloum again.

Happier are they who press the torah, While Life one bright Elysium seems, Than they, who thro' an age of gloom Linger, to mourn their early dreams.

For five or six years previous to the Spring a 1834, a Negro man of mine had been much ted with an ulcerated arm and hand, which re ed him almost useless. The ulcer embraced the part of his arm from the albow down, inclu his entire hand, which was literally a mass of p trefaction. A joint of one finger, and a part of the thumb, perished and dropt off. A more distreand hopeless case I have never beheld. It we abandoned by his physicians as incurable, except by amputation of the hand.

The best medical treatment having failed to B lieve the man, I placed him under the care of William W.
