From the American Traveller,

TIME. Chide not the lingering hours of life, Its toil will soon be o'er; Its schemes of glory and of strife Its dreams with disappointments rife, Will wex the heart no more-And yet the very souls that grieve

A moment's weary track; Perhaps in after years would give A world-to win it back. Chide not the lingering lapse of Time, Nor count its moments dull; For soon the bell, with mournful chime, Will waft the spirit to a clime More bright and beautiful-

A land where grief will never fling Ity darkness on the soul; Where faith and hope shall gladly wing Their path without control. Chide not Time's slow and silent hours,

Though heavy they may seem; The past hath sought oblivious shores-The present, which alone is ours. Is passing like a dream; And they who scarcely heed its track, Or wish its course more fast, With fruitless prayer may yet call back One moment of the past.

Chide not a moment's weary flight, Too soon it speeds away; And nearer brings the hour of night-And dimmer makes the feeble sight-Then work while yet 'tis day ! Thus shall Life's morning ray depart, Without one vain regret, And death steal gladly on the heart, When Life's bright sun hath set.

From the United States Gazette. "THE PROGRESS OF LIFE."

I dreamed-I mw a rosy little child With flaxen ringlets in a garden playing; Now stepping here, and there afar off straying, Az flowers or butterfly his feet beguiled.

"Twas changed-one summer's day I stepped aside To let him pass; his face had manhood's seeming, And that full eye of blue was fondly beaming O'er a fair maiden whom he called his "bride!"

Once more! 'twas autum, and the cheerful fire I saw a group of youthful forms surrounding. The room with harmless pleasantry resounding, And in the midst I marked the smiling sire.

The heavens were clouded! and I heard the tone Of a slow-moving bell-the white-haired man gone. Philadelphia, July 16, 1838. W. G. S.

SCRAPS.

One Way to empty a Cart .- An honest son of Erin, lately arrived at Baltimore, was employed to drive a dirt cart. Not being adept in the art and mystery of hauling dirt, he was wofully per he marched up to the horse's head, seized the bri-dle with a powerful grasp, and sung out with a hearty good will, "rare up! rare up!" calculating we suppose, that the horse would elevate himself fa-snough to empty the cart!

Poor Relations .- At Louisville, Ky., several robberies have been committed by well dressed men and women, who have obtained admission into respectable houses by presenting themselves as the uncle or cousins of the proprietors, and on being told that the parties were out, were anxious to write a note to them. This ruse has been practised with great success on Sundays, during church

A humerous fellow, a carpenter, being sum moned as a witness on a trial for an assault; one of the counsel, who was very much given to brow beat the evidence, asked him what distance he was from the parties when he saw the defendent strike the plantiff? The carpenter answered, just four mays the counsel, 'how is it possible you can be so very exact as to distance? 'I thought,' says the carpenter, 'that some fool or other might ask me, so I measured it.'

Mingling the useful with the sweet .- The following toast was given at the celebration of the 4th in Chuckatuck, Va. Business is business, says the Alexandria Gazette, and the proudest man never suffers it to be wholly forgotten:

"By James P. Gwinn (Deputy Sheriff)-Fellowcitizens, prepare to pay your taxes, for I shall soon be down upon you."-Ib.

We have seen the question asked, who are the rich? We answer without hesitation, those who dicines, viz) are independent, whether such independence arise from labor of the hands or any other cause. The man is rich who at the end of a week, a month, or a year, can say to himself that he owes nothing, and is clear of the world. Of all poor men the poorest are those who, having the appearance of wealth, are forced to incur expenses beyond their income, and enter into engagements without the means of meeting them at command. The wood sawyer is rich if he has more than he wants; the speculator is poor if the failure of a friend, or a sud-den turn in affiirs, may involve him in bankruptcy. -Balt. American.

How to enjoy a Clean Shirt .- Gillman, in his life of Coleridge, says: "I have heard Coleridge relate the following anecdote of his father: The old gentleman had to take a short journey on some professional business, which would detain him from home for three or four days; his good wife, in her care and watchfulness, had packed a few things in a small trunk, and gave them in charge to her husband, with strong injunctions that he was to put on a clean shirt every day. On his return home his wife wert to search for his linen, when to her dismay, it was not in the trunk. A closer search, however, discovered that the vicar had strickly obeyed her injunctions, and had put on daily a clean shirt. but had forgotten to remove the one underneath.

How to make Home happy .- Nature is industrious in adorning her dominions; and man, to whom this beauty is addressed, should feel and obey this lesson. Let him, too, be industrious in adorning plexed when he wished to empty the cart, and at his domain-in making his home, the dwelling of er as much managuring to get into a proper posi his wife and children, not only convenient and comfortable, but pleasant. Let him, as far as circ stances will permit, be industrious in surrounding it with pleasant objects-in decorating it, within and without, with things that tend to make it agreeable and attractive. Let industry make home the abode of neatness and order-a place which brings satisfaction to every inmate, and which in absence Wit for the Winter .- What is the most perfect draws buck the heart by the fond associations of comfort and content. Let this be done, and this sacred spot will become more surely the scene of cheerfulness and peace. Ye parents, who would have your children happy, be industrious to bring them up in the midst of a pleasant, a cheerful, and a happy home. NEWSPAPERS vs. DRINK.

"Lossitively never knew a man in the country who was too poor to take a newspaper. Yet two out of three, even respectable people, read no papers but what they borrow. As I speak generally hope I offend none. If I do-the greater the necessity to speak out. Every man is able convenently to take a newspaper. How many who think themselves too poor to take a newspaper pay four times as much daily for drink! Miserable man. thou art poor indeed !"-Benjamin Franklin.

Raleigh, October 8, 1836. The above Medicine is for sale in Salisbury at the Store of JOHN MURPHY.

For five or six years previous to the Spring of 1834, a Negro man of mine had been much afflicted with an ulcerated arm and hand, which rendered him almost useless. The ulcer embraced that part of his arm from the elbow down, including his entire hand, which was literally a mass of putrefaction. A joint of one finger, and a part of the thumb, perished and dropt off. A more distressing He can safely say that his assortment is superior to and hopeless case I have never beheld. It was any in the western part of the State. - Call and see, abandoned by his physicians as incurable, except by amputation of the hand.

The best medical treatment having failed to relieve the man, I placed him under the care of Mr. William W. Gray, in this place, who, with his Ointment, has effectually cured the case, although the Negro was frequently absent, for weeks and months together. He has been entirely well for furnished with the last eight months, and I have good reason to Ashe county, evbelieve will continue so.

ANOTHER GREAT CURE! RALEIGH, September 21, 1836.

I am now 58 years of age-when in my 17th year; I received a wound on my left leg, which became ulcerated, and continued so until the first of March last. It would eccasionally heal up, and then break out again; but most of the time, it was in a very painful condition, the sore having extended to a large size, and become very deep. I tried many remedies to make a cure, without success, until I applied Gray's Invaluable Ointment, two pots of which have effectually cured my leg, and reduced it to its natural size. The cure would have been made much sooner, had I strictly attended to the directions for the use of the Ointment; but this I failed to do, while I took much exercise, and very imprudently used tight bandages. My leg has been well for more than six months, during which time, I have walked much, yet it remains to continue from firm and free from all screness or inflammation.
After having been afflicted for a period of forty-one years, I now enjoy the benefit of a sound leg again. LEWIS HOLLOMAN.
