

COMPARATIVE VALUE OF VEGETABLES. We wish briefly to draw the attention of farmers to the value of hay, compared with the other crops, for teeding of stock. An acre of hay yields one on and a half of vegetable food. An acre of carrots or Suredish turnips, from ten to twenty tons; say fifteen tons, which is by no means an exagger-nied estimate. It has been ascertained, three working horses, fifteen and a half hands high, con-somed at the rate of two hundred and twenty four pounds hay per week, or five tons one thousand and forty-eight pounds of hay per year, besides twelve gallons of onts each per week, or seventy-eight hushels by the year. An unworked have consumed at the rate of four and one quarter tons of hay by the year.

The produce therefore of nearly six acres of land is necessary to support a working horse by the year; but half an acre of carrots, at six hondred bushels to the acre; with the addition, of chopped straw, while the season for their use lasts, will do as well if not better. These things do not admit of doubt. They have been subjects of exact

It is believed that the value of a bushel of Indian corn in straw and meal, will keep a healthy horse in good condition a week. Anaere of Infian com which yields sixty bushels, will be ample for the support of a horse through the year.

Let the farmer then, consider whether it be hetan acre of corrots, which can be cultivated at an expense not greatly exceeding the expense of half an acre of polatees, or upon hall an acre ruta-baga, uodal and honest men," was rejected by an imor upon the grain produce of au acre of Iudian corn, or on the other hand, upon the produce of six acres of his best land in hay and grain ; for six acres will hardly do more than to yield nearly six tons of hay hardly do more than to yield nearly six tons of hay below the most condensed account we have met and seventy laubels of outs. no the selection of the future husband of the Queen. It is but in the ordinary course of things, that those immodiately surrounding her should have an important influence in deciding her choice, and that her court is at present constituted, this choice would be adverse from the views of the Tury party, and permaps preclude them for a long time, from the chance of regaining the direction of the politics of England.

It appears that had Sir Robert Peel come into power, his determination was to make every efhirt to conduct the business of the country with the aid of the present parliament, and failing in that, to have dissolved it and had resourse to a new election. .What measures Lord Melbourno will take to obtain a larger majority than that which he had on the Jamaica question, has not been divulged. It is probably however, that a change will take place in the heads of some of the departments, to which he will call more influential men and popular men than the present incumbents, and that he will endeavor to conciliate the radical party, the defection of some of whom, led to his late resignation.

Riots continued to break out in many parts of England and Wales, instigated by the Churtists; but as they are not of an alarming character, and are speedily put down by the yeomanry cavalry of the countres where they occur, with the assistance of a few regulars, we make no extracts concerning them. The position of the momed market and commercial affairs of England still appear to us such as to render great prodence necessary in those here who are liable to be affirsted by it.

In turning our attention to France we have in the first place to regret the failure-from some to in inexplicable cause-of letters from our Correspondence in Paris, and must therefore have recourse to our files of papers for intelligence from that country. M. Mauguin's motion in the Chambers of deputies for an address to the Crown to form an adminter to maintain his horse upon the produce of half istration forthwith, was adopted in principle by a very large majority, one part of it however which the restoration of the property. intreated him to choose for ministers "able, namente vote, only 10 members having risen to support it. Scarce had this question been decided, when a serious disturbance or emcule most onexpectedly broke ont in Paris, of which we publish ters from Paris concur in stating that the population generally were totally unconnected with it,

These facts deserve the particular attention of and that they evinced a complete indifference to farmers who are desirous of miproving their pecu-many condition. Col. Worth had his vessel ranged alongside the schooner, and every thing in readiness, with matches lit to blow the first spork into a flame, that would be likely to cutvince the rioters and their officers, that war, of which the redoubtable Cunsdian Loyalists have spoken so fraciy, was a game two can play at. In this state of things matters remained for four or five hours, when collision was momentarily expected. The fort and block-house were in the bands of the people who carried on these preceedings." They formed their jues manoed the block house, and had all the arrangements for the engagement made, but they found that Col. Worth did not quail, that he had come prepared to burn powder and exchange metal with hem, and they wisely after long delay, concluded that prodence was the better part of valor, and saved their ammunition for a more fitting occasion.

At about four o'clock in the afternoon, a steamboat arrived from Kingston with British regulars on board, which the magistrates of Brockville had prudently called to their aid. By this reinforcement Col. Marshall was enabled to arrest David Mair, Jones Hubbel, and an innkeeper by the name Mair, Jones Hubbel, and an inneceper by the tarts of Powell, who were the ring leaders, of the gatg and send them to the guard house Col. In addition to this violence, there was the most gross insolence of language used towards the officers whom Col. Worth sent on shore on his first arrival, and many other things too disgraceful to nention.

It may be proper to say that Col. Worth exresses the opinion that the civil magistrates of Brockville acted in good faith, and commendable zeal in their efforts to restore order and procure Siz : I have to influence the Department that I have this day returned from Red River Raft, and hat on my arrival at then place, I found a raft rocently foremed at the same point where the lodge ment was made in June and Joby last year. The former-accumulation had been removed, and the navigation was open from the 15th February to the 13th of April. At the latter date the river was unusually high, which brought down an immense quantity of timber. The channel through the original latation of the great raft not bring sufficiently wide to allow the argest trees to pass, it formed a raft of 2,150 wards in length, which completely closed the channel and suspended the navigation. At the time there were two steamhouts above, and five below, bound up, all with full freights.

I remained at the works until the 4th instant, when the raft was again entirely removed and the navigation open. The work will be continued to the first day of June, by which time the river will freshet that may occur this selawat.

The channel in the river is very much improved within the last twelve months, but will require a boat every year for some three years yet to come, as well as considerable labor to stop up the bayous that carry off the water, which must be confined to the original channel to effect the object of improving the navigation in a permanent manner, a plan which I will submit in my report of the operations. for the pear.

American Stock in England .- The Baltim American makes these judicious remarks upon a late failure to pay interest upon some Americ stocks, held in London :

"By its late failure, to pay the interest on the loan which had been procured in London; the effe of Mobile has not only discredited its own securi ties, but it is to be feared, has been the means of inflicting a grievous injury upon the country at large. Foreign capitalists look in the first place to the certainty of eventual re-imbursement, and in the second to the prompt payment of interest, whenever it shall become due. As the failure to which we have adverted could not, perhaps, have taken place at a more unlucky moment than the present, and should not means be taken immediate. ly to counteract the effect of it by making good the sterest, the mischief done to the country at large will be incalcuble. The consequences will prote-bly be the more injurious, as, having at command in the form of cotton, the material for making remittances, the omission on the part of the Co ration in question to do so, will be construed in a want of inclination to meet its engagements, and will be eagerly seized by interested parties as m instance of bad faith in Americans."
