

POETIC RECURRENCE.

LINE.
 The moon on the mountains; the forest appears
 Bespangled with dew, like a beauty in tears:
 The sun, like a warrior just waked from repose,
 And burning with ardour of rish on his brow,
 Above the horizon now dashes on high,
 Through the mist of the morn, to his throne in the sky,
 Alas, the bright dew drops which glow in his eye,
 Ahon, like a sprite, will have vanished away!

Oh! such is the fate of our childhood's young dreams:
 Like a bright ray of sunshine which falls on the stream,
 Or like the white snow-drops which drop in the river,
 Just seen for a moment, then vanishes forever.
 But when the bright god shall have sunk to his rest
 Behind the dark hills in the new world's West,
 Again will the dew drops appear on the spray;
 But the dream of our childhood—ah! that where are they!

VARIETY.

THE PROFESSOR AND THE STUDENT.

A professor of Latin in the University of Edinburgh, now no more, having desired the students to give him a list of their names in Latin, was greatly surprised at seeing written on a slip of paper the name "Jonnes Ovum Novum."

After in vain seeking for a translation of this, he at last became convinced that it was either one of those dark Latin passages, to decipher which even the skill of Bentley would have failed, or that it was a hoax.

He therefore next day, in the class, read out the three dark words, and desired the writer of them to stand.

One of his pupils immediately arose.

"What are you?" said the professor.

"A poor scholar, sir," was the answer.

"A very poor scholar, indeed, sir, or you would never have written such stuff as 'Jonnes Ovum Novum.'" That can't be your name, sir.

"I don't see," said the student, "where you could find better Latin; my name is John Agnew—Ovum, for egg, (Ag.) Novum, for new; Ovum Novum—Egg new."

The professor seeing that he had rather the worst of it immediately laid his finger upon his forehead, and looking at his hopeful pupil, who was standing somewhat in the attitude of a drill sergeant, exclaimed in a pitiful voice—

"Alas! alas! something wrong here I doot."

"May be so," observed "Ovum Novum."

"Something may be wrong there; but, striking his hand upon his own forehead, "there is nothing wrong here!"—Theodore Hook.

Motiers.—This great comic poet was esteemed an excellent actor.—He died in performing the Hypochondriac in a comedy of his own writing called "Le Malade Imaginaire." The archbishop of Paris would not allow his body to be interred in consecrated ground, which the king being informed of sent for the archbishop and expostulated with him; but he was an obstinate churchman, and would not willingly condescend to his Majesty's pretensions. The king, finding him unwilling to comply, desired to know how many feet deep the holy ground extended.—The Bishop replied, "about eight."—"Well," replied the king, "I find there is no getting the better of your scruples; therefore let his grave be dug twelve feet, that's four below your consecrated ground, and let them bury him there." The archbishop was obliged to comply; for Louis XIV. would be obeyed.

Excessive Politeness.—Mr. Rowland Hill was always annoyed when there happened to be any pain in the chapel, or when some thing occurred to divert the attention of his hearers from what he was saying. On one occasion, about three years before his death, he was preaching to one of the most crowded congregations that ever assembled to hear him. In the middle of his discourse he observed a great commotion in the gallery. For a time he took no notice of it, but finding it increasing, he passed in his sermons, and looking in the direction in which the confusion prevailed, he exclaimed, "what's the matter there! The devil seems to have got among you!" A plain country-looking man immediately started to his feet, and addressing Mr. Hill, in reply, said, "No, sir, it aint the devil as is doing on it; it's a lady wot's fainted; and she's a very fat un; or, as doth seems likely to come to again in a hurry." "Oh that's it, it is," observed Mr. Hill, drawing his hand across his chin; "then I beg the lady's pardon—and the devil's too!"

Sardonic Smile.—The term, Sardonic smile, is so general use, must have obtained a significant quite different from its original meaning. This smile, produced by a poisonous plant, was, as Pliny informs us, and involuntary motion of the muscles of the face, the effect of which was retained on the countenance of him who died of the poison long after death, giving it the appearance of a smile.

A learned professor once observed in the course of a lecture, that one of the most conspicuous properties of heat, was its power of expanding all bodies upon which it was applied. A young student rose from his seat, and asked if that was the reason why the days were longer in warm than in cold weather.

"Music and drawing taught best," as the man said when he was pulling a wheelbarrow through the streets without any oil about his axels.

"Don't rob yourself, as the farmer said to the lawyer, you he called him hard names.

That was a wise man who, in ancient times, when a person proposed, for a certain sum, to teach him the art of masonry, offered twice as much to be taught how to forget.

Circumstances are beyond the control of man; but his conduct is in his own power.

The vanity of human life is like a river—constantly passing away, and yet constantly coming on.

A man who is too proud to acknowledge a fault when conscious of having committed one, and therefore he injures the feelings of another, shows himself to be, instead of elevated, sunk very low indeed in the scale of intellectual worth. His pride is of the meanest kind, and to him, even more disgraceful, than his fault.

Receipt to cure an Egg-Sucking Dog.—Many a brave and good dog has lost his life by too great a fondness for eggs; to avoid which, hereafter, take three grains of tartar-emetic and a teaspoonfull of grated or scraped Indian turpiss, stir them well together in an egg, give it to your dog, and he will ever after turn off in disgust if you offer him an egg—a simple, safe, and certain remedy.—Franklin Farmer.

Equivoical.—Tom, what makes your nose so red? "Why the face is, Bob, I blow it too hard.

Willow, Jan. 22, 1839.
 From the above certificate of Col. Hampton, who bred and had LATH trained for the Turf, it will be seen that he considered him a Race horse of the first class, not only from the fact he has mentioned as having publicly, but from private trials he has had with him which are now on the Turf, and running with considerable success. It will also be observed by his certificate, that he considered Lath of the purest blood—not to be surpassed by any horse imported or bred in this country, since in every respect he is so well tested. But will remark, that Lath has not only descended from pure blood, but has come from a sire, grand-sire, dam, and grand-dam, that are of the finest blood. For instance, his sire Godolphin, was four miles in 7 minutes, and 20 seconds; his grand-sire the American Eclipse, so well known at the Southern South, made his time in the great Match race, 3 miles against the Sun, $50,000 in 6 min. and 31 sec. and which he won with considerable odds, and which proved him the peerless horse of the South. His dam, was bred by the famous Sir John Mordaunt, whose reputation as a breeder, far transcended anything in England and America. The grand-dam of LATH, bred by the great Southern American horses, Col. R. Singleton, of South Carolina, had produced more fine race horses than any other name in the Union. This it will be seen that there is no reason why Lath two of the best-studs of the South, Hampton and Singleton's, crossed with Gen. Colcock's in the North. The public is now presented with such an opportunity of improving the blood of that noble and useful animal, the horse, as very rarely occurs in this country.

To Owners of Mills.
 THE Subscriber has an improved method by which Mills, by which a mill will do more than with the usual form of Spindles. It is so constructed as to keep from heating or burning the wool in any case. The runner is so contrived by the spindle, as ways to preserve balance, and of course there is no rubbing of the stones.
 I think, by this improved Spindle, the same will do at least one-third more business, and of superior quality.
 Any person wishing to use one of these Spindles may obtain one or more, by making application to me in a short time to the Subscriber at Mockville, N. C. N. C. I think the probable cost will not exceed $30 for the Patent and Spindle ready to use.
 Col. Wm. F. Kelly and Theo. Foster, in the town of Mockville, have recently tried the improved Spindle, and are highly pleased with it.

Best Workmanship.
 N. B. He will also teach (as a reward) the improved system of T. Oliver of Philadelphia, who who wishes instruction in the system of cutting.
 Concord, Nov. 29, 1838.

New Foundry.
 I HAVE lately completed and put in operation a large Iron Foundry at my mill on the South-York river (formerly known in the County of Jones) where we are prepared to make all kinds of castings, such as—the running works of cotton or woolen factories, cotton gins, grist and saw mills, thrashing machines, wind mills, plow wheels, gudgeons, iron shafts, pulleys, chisels, driving wheels, and in short, every thing else that is usually made at iron foundries. We are also prepared for turning shafts, &c.; and for finishing and fitting up all kinds of machinery in this line of business.
 I have employed Jacob Weyssenhoe, formerly of Baltimore, a very skilful Mechanic, to superintend and manage my establishment. Mr. Weyssenhoe has worked all his life in establishments of this kind, and is distinguished for his skill as a Mechanic, and Millwright. He will also make calculations for water-wheels, mill-gearing, &c.; and when the machinery is obtained from us, he will attend to putting it up. Our prices are those of similar establishments at the North.
 Orders addressed either to Jacob Weyssenhoe or myself, at Salisbury, will be promptly attended to.

 R. W. LONG.
 Salisbury, April 25, 1839.

PEDIGREE:
 I CERTIFY, that Lath was bred by me, and that he was foaled in the Spring of 1833. He was got by Godolphin, his dam, Posthonor, by Sir Archy; his grand-dam, Young Lottery, also by Sir Archy, out of Colman Singleton's celebrated Lottery, by the imported Badford, out of the imported mare Anvilina; Godolphin was got by Eclipse; his dam Sybil; by Haphazard, out of Lottery by imported Badford, &c. Haphazard was got by the imported Buzzard, out of the dam of Sir Archy.
DESCRIPTION, PERFORMANCE, &c.
 LATH is a fine bay, without white, 15 hands 3 inches high, with good bone and capital action. At 4 years old, he won the produce stake at Columbia, 2 miles heats, beating Mr. Taylor's filly, Daisy, and Captain Spinn's colt. Convention, nine others paying forfeit. Two weeks afterwards, he won the Jockey-Club Plate, 3 mile heats, at Augusta, beating Kite, and distance Black Bird, at Charleston, he was beaten by Club Hopper for the Jockey-Club purse, 3 mile heats; he has very much since, he was drawn after the first heat, at 4 years old, he won the Jockey-Club purse, 3 mile heats, at Camden, beating Sir Kenneth and Dombell, at 3 heats, losing the first in consequence of holding when several lengths in advance of the field, but he received the judge's stand, and getting entrance amongst the carriages, he sustained an injury which occasioned his withdrawal from the Turf.
 LATH was a race horse of the first class, which is evinced in his trials with Bay Maria, Charlotte News and Kitty Meth, and in point of blood, he is inferior to none, whether imported or native. His constitution is robust, having never been sick, and his temper good. His colour, form, and action, speak for themselves. A word, Lath unites in himself as many qualities as patronage, as any young Stallion that I know.
