under jaw of a poor soldier who was endeavoring to separate them, and the whole party, finding that the soldiers were lukewarm, that the officers were unfaithful, that nothing was to be done there, precipitately quitted the Caernarvon, and retired to the port.

"By this time the town was raised, the authorities were on foot, the drums were beating to arms, and the National Guards pouring out in all directions. The proclamation, one of which I enclose, with a decree, had been lavishly distributed along every street through which they passed, and money given to those who had followed them. These soon declared what the object was, and the necessary direction was given by the Seigne Preter to attack the disturbers of the peace. Within two hours the greater part were either prisoners in the citadel, shot, or dispersed. They made no stand after leaving the Caernarvon. Some made their way with the eagle to the Napoleon column, some with the prices hastened to the sea side, and signalled for a boat from the steamer. Unfortunately for them, too many got into it, and it upset. The prince, with three or four others, swam from the steamer, and had a narrow escape of being drowned."

"During their absence, however, affairs had changed on board the steamer. M. Pollet, the harbor master, by order of the mayor, had proceeded, with a dozen custom house officers, in a boat, and taken possession of it; it was fortunate for the prince they did so, for in returning into the harbor they found him almost exhausted, clinging to the buoy, about the eighth of a mile from the shore. He was taken on board, and with him Col. Vaudrey. In escaping from the shore, they had narrowly avoided being shot; several balls passed close to the prince, and several of his followers were wounded, and sunk to rise no more. The report is, that six have been found; one poor doctor, who surrendered, was shot by a National Guard."

"The steamer Edinburgh, Castle, has been seized by the Captain of the port, and is now in the harbor. The firing of the National guard on defenceless people in the water is deprecated by the better feeling portion of the public. Louis Bonaparte was well nigh drowned. Before he was picked up, (for the boat in which he attempted to make his escape upset,) several shots were fired at him. A friend of mine saw a musket ball fall close behind him. Had Bonaparte been shot, it would have been the proper end of an unbecoming block- head."

"A French General who was captured is said to have just died of his wounds. The town authorities are liberal enough to give out that the 'English are at the bottom of this insurrectionary movement.' What next? All sorts of rumors are rife. It is said that the troops of the line are favorable to the prince, and that (though quartered in the citadel) will attempt to rescue the captives. The civil authorities have issued proclamations lauding the loyalty of the brave Boulognais. The coaches from Paris are anxiously looked for. Many imagine that accounts will be received of attempts to rise elsewhere, and that some simultaneous movement has been contemplated."

"Disgraceful Conduct."—The Valley Star states that a preacher in Giles county, in violation of every principle of truth, has been asserting that 'Van Buren is a Roman Catholic, and Harrison an exemplary member of the Methodist Church.' The Star justly remarks, that a man in never fell from a fool tongue. The whole statement is utterly false. Van Buren never was a Catholic—nor is he a Catholic now. Harrison is not now, nor has he ever been a Methodist. On the contrary, he is proverbial for his profanity. Our opinions have ceased to deny that the General lately poured out a torrent of curses upon the head of Gen. Charles Hale, in the streets of Cincinnati. We are told that this minister of the gospel of truth, has given up his time to the service of the Federal party, and spends day after day in distributing electrifying Whig documents. Such base- ness indeed deserves to be exposed. We take pleasure in stating that we do not believe there are many ministers of any denomination in Virginia, who would be guilty of such conduct. Lynchburg Republicans.

"Gov. Troop whilst he says, that not approving either of the men, he will neither support Harrison nor Van Buren, declares, that 'It is a mere question of Bank or no Bank; if the Bank comes, every thing that is unconstitutional will follow.'—He thus intimates as clearly as possible, that the Administration party are on true constitutional ground, and have a boat ready to be launched in that effect. Among those landed I have been able to gather the names of the General Monthlon, Colonel Vaudrey, Berquin and Delabarde. When all had landed, they marched into the town by the Place Navarin, Rue des Carreaux, Rue Simonon, into the Grand Rue, shouting—'Vive l'Empereur!' the prince carrying his hat on the point of his sword, and waving it in the air. From the Grand Rue they made their way by the Rue de la Lampe to the Caernarvon, and raised the small body of troops of the line. I believe only one company, that perform duty here. The soldiers, awakened and seeing themselves surrounded by general officers, knew not what to make of the scene. They were, however, soon made to comprehend that a revolution was on foot, that Louis Philippe was de- throned, that all France was raised in favor of their emperor, Louis Napoleon, and that they must march forthwith upon Paris. As some were pre- pared to obey, these Captain, who had been awak- ened by the noise, rushed in a long thong, and restored their wavering loyalty by shouting 'Vive le Roi.' High words and a scuffle ensued between him and Prince Louis, when the latter drew a pis- tol and fired; unfortunately the ball shattered the
