According to the Book of Judges, Naomah, the daughter of Enoch, was 990 years old when she was married. Let some folks take courage yet.—Boston Post.

From Charles O'Malley. "And Byrle, did you know Sir Harry Boyle?" "To be sure I did. Shall I ever forget him, and his capital blunders that kept me laughing the whole time I spent in Ireland? I was in the house when he concluded a panegyric upon a friend, by calling him the father of the poor, and uncle to Lord Donoughmore."

"He was the only man who could render by a ball what it was impossible to convey more correctly," said Power, "you have heard of his duel with Harry Toler?" "Never; let's hear it."

A Literary City.—There are in the various libraries in Salem (Mass.) about 24,000 volumes. By the recent census, the city contains 15,083 inhabitants. The books in the public libraries, therefore, average nearly a volume and a half to each inhabitant.

Roman Etiquette.—Cato, when censor of Rome, expelled from the senate Mamilius, upon the general opinion had marked out for Censorship, because he had given his wife a kiss in the day time, in the sight of his daughter.

Poverty.—Poverty is the only burden which grows heavier by being shared with those we love. "We flatter ourselves we've made a good impression here," as the type said to the paper.

You may trust a strange dog that professes friendship; not a strange man. Conscience—a barterable commodity to be had dog cheap. Love may slumber in a maiden's heart, but it always dreams.

A lawyer was once accused of disgracing the bar, by taking silver of a client. "I took silver," replied he; "because I couldn't get gold, but I took every farthing the fellow had in the world; and I hope you don't call that disgracing the profession?"

Pete, are you in them sweat-shirts again? "No, marm, them sweat-shirts is in me." — Albany Microscope.

PROSPECTUS OF THE Western Carolina Temperance Advocate, A monthly paper devoted to the Temperance Reform, Published at Asheville, N. C., and edited BY D. K. MANALLY.

A TEMPERANCE CONVENTION that was held at this place early in September, resolved on publishing a paper of the above title and character, and appointed Mr. John Dickson and J. R. Manally to conduct it.

The very low price at which it was fixed by the Convention, will make it necessary, that a very large subscription be had, before the publication of it can be justified.

These works will be published by us, during the present session of Congress. They are intended to be circulated in the United States, and are intended to be an appendix to the Southern States.

Each of these works is complete in itself, but it is desirable for every subscriber to have both, as they contain the substance of the proceedings of the Convention, and are published as fast as the speeches can be prepared by the members.
