DEFERRED ARTICLES.

For the Carolina Watchman.

MR. EDITOR: Thursday night, April 25th, was quite a gleeful time in your ancient City of Salisbury. Mr. David R. Julian, of the firm of McCubbin & Co., and Miss Bette Culverhouse united their destinies for life in the holy estate of matrimony. The marriage ceremony took place at the Lutheran church. At an early hour old and young people wended their way to the church and filled it to overflowing. The church was beautifully and very tastefully decorated. The banners on the pulpit was of pure white linen, fringed with gold lace, and bearing the ensign of a harp of evergreen. The reading desk was covered with pure white linen, the symbol of purity. The ribbons in the Bible, and in the Book of Worship used by the officiating minister, were of pure white, nicely piped with gold lace. The chancel was richly decorated with white flowers, and the altar and pulpit covered with beautiful floral arrangements. At the appointed hour the candidates, for the holy estate of matrimony, were introduced by a lively voluntary on the Organ. The happy couple advanced with a firm step up the aisle, and in a very easy and graceful manner presented themselves in front of the chancel. They were very tastefully apparelled, and appeared the personification of innocence and affection. The marriage ceremony was performed by the pastor Rev. J. G. Neiffer, in his usual dignified and impressive manner. In the chancel were two other clergymen, also attired in their clerical robes, which imparted to the occasion impressiveness and solemnity. After the invocation of the divine blessing, by Rev. S. Rodroez, upon the newly wedded pair, the happy couple retired under a very lively and gleeful voluntary from the Organ, and the throng of spectators gradually dispersed. Every thing connected with the occasion, was quite impressive and imposing. Long may the young couple live to enjoy unalloyed and uninterrupted matrimonial bliss.

Written for the Watchman.

BERIAH KNOWALL.

MR. EDITOR: As a correspondent to your valuable paper I feel it to be an imperative duty to say all for our people that I can, at the same time setting forth their good qualities, in such a way as to make them look as well as possible; and this I intend to do even if I have to tell a great big fib now and then. But what I propose to say now in regard to the great and excellent character which I have selected for my subject this week is strictly true—every word of it. BERIAH KNOWALL! where could there be found a more appropriate or suitable name for this noble percentage? The only thing about it which strikes me as being rather queer is, how his parents ever came to hit upon so very appropriate a cognomen. In his infancy he certainly must have shown great knowledge of other people's business. In my humble opinion a man who can know his own business thoroughly, and at the same time every other man's in town, is undoubtedly a gifted person and the possessor of a rare and racy intellect. I am both proud and happy to say that our most excellent friend BERIAH KNOWALL has not less than a half a dozen pupils all of this place. Long—long may he live, and flourish, leading down his noble principles from generation to generation. Neither on the sin blackened or time covered pages of ancient or modern history can be found a name that will out live or glitter longer than that of BERIAH KNOWALL; for like that of the immortal Cicero, it will be cherished in the memories of his friends and foes until the closing up of time. There is one little incident connected with the history of this most extraordinary man which may be worthy of notice especially as it is connected with a great man; (and the least little incident in a renowned man's history always proves interesting to the reader or readers,) and by giving it, it will show one of the excellent traits in his character. It was once reported that BERIAH KNOWALL had left the mortal shore; but a few days afterwards it was corrected by the HERO himself who reappeared as suddenly as he had disappeared, and gave us the following story: He had only left the vital shore for a short time to take a peep at the old field of the lower region to intercede, as said, for the hypocrite, liars and unbelievers in general. The next question is, did he accomplish his mission? No. Why? Well the long and short of it is he only got to the big gate where he knocked—thump, dump, thump. "Who is there?" cried a deep hollow voice. "Me," answered BERIAH. "Who is me?" again cried the voice "BERIAH KNOWALL." "Well, you can't come in here, for if you know all you know too much—dare say you know every body's business." But I will come in," answered BERIAH. "No you won't," cause Master said if "BERIAH KNOWALL should come here not to let him in 'cause he would lie him out of office before two days. So you see how he came back with his hands in his pockets, and can judge from this of his noble character.

But the most distinguished feature that places this man above the ordinary run of men his great cleverness in carrying about notes, letters and advertisements, and dropping them into the post office and express office directed to the queerest and most outlandish sounding names you ever heard. Now he left a medical advertisement in the express office the other morning directed in a clear bold hand to "Sassafras Oil In Demand." Who ever heard of such a queer name! I can not believe that the man means for I do not believe there is a person with such a name in the country; but if there is, BERIAH is just the man to know him. I intend to inquire around and if there is, I am going to send the paper to him, which somehow or other got into my hands. It is a medical paper and is "mighty" interesting, and I expect "Sassafras Oil In Demand" is some old Doctor or other; but to be sure of it I want all who reads this to look out for the old fellow but don't tell him I have the paper; he might take me up. Who knows what he would do! I never intend to take any body's mail out of the office again as long as I live, if BERIAH KNOWALL does not put it there.

Mr. Editor, I believe I shall close up with the history of this interesting man this week, for I can not do him justice; but if in the course of human events it again becomes necessary for me to use my pen I shall then finish out this sketch. So farewell,—farewell BERIAH KNOWALL, thou great and noble HERO.

ENIGMATICAL.

AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY.

MR. BRUNER: As you have very kindly offered to publish notices of our good work, I furnish you with the following:

The annual meeting of the Society was held on the 7th ult. in the Central Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia.

Rev. J. Williams Edie, District Secretary, said in substance: "This Society, in commemorating its fifty-eighth birth day tonight, would send thanks to God for the blessings that have attended it. This Society is wholly non-denominational in its influence. Bishop Melvain, of Ohio, its honored President. None of its publications have ever been objected to on account of a want of Evangelical character. Some eight or ten thousand dollars were lost at Chicago. During the year, 233 new publications have been issued, 45 being volumes. 257 Colporteurs have been doing missionary work; these have held and addressed 10,000 religious meetings and made 278,000 family visits, praying and exhorting. A large number of Sunday Schools established; 13,295 Protestant families found without the word of God, to whom it was supplied by these Colporteurs. The work extends over 34 States and Territories; 3,600,000 pages of books are distributed every year, besides 5,000,000 copies of Periodicals, &c."

Rev. F. E. Shearer, of San Francisco, said: "The blessings of God rested signally upon the labors of this Society; as an evidence of the fact they had only to look at one of the eight centres from which it carried on its work, and we had 3,000 hopeful conversions in a single year, and at another, Chicago, we had for every five hundred dollars expended a hopeful conversion has been noticed." He then spoke of his own field on the Pacific coast, of the natural wealth and spiritual poverty, about one-and-a-quarter percent of this vast population professing Christianity, Mexico and Japan. Dr. S. is one of those men to evangelize this country, apart from our agencies, and the adaptation of our agencies to the work, &c.

Rev. J. Colton Smith, D. D., said: "It was his privilege to be a member of the Executive Committee of this great Society; it was a noble face of the globe that with a net-work of living agencies, and the voice of the Colporteur is heard or the printed pages found. All along the Atlantic and Pacific will be found these agencies. In Germany, Spain, Portugal, France, and Italy, &c., these operations will be found to be going on. We are doing a great work in Mexico and Japan. Dr. S. is one of those men to evangelize this country, apart from our agencies, and the adaptation of our agencies to the work, &c."

Rev. Alexander Reed, D. D., said: "It is about 20 years ago, in Georgia I believe, I was brought to Christ. Being desirous to do for Christ, I took a commission from the Society, visiting the watering and other places. Professing Christians of every name welcomed the books when they saw the imprint of the A. T. S. upon them; and the same imprint disarms the world of prejudice, and if they were able they bought the books; if not they were given them. From that day to this, I have loved the Society, and his God speed in its noble work of evangelization."

Many of the 278 Colporteurs can sympathize with Dr. S., seeing as we do, the frequent and happy results of our humble efforts, and the great need of continuing, we press on through difficulties and crosses, anxious only to be faithful Colporteurs. I received my first commission in Caswell county, N. C., about 17 years since; having been led, as I trust, to Christ through such instrumentalities. I use now to hope for God's blessings upon my humble efforts and my disappointment has been such to my comfort. Now my desire is to see every man, woman and child, supplied with a good Colporteur, who will help us with their influence, contribution and prayers.

Please let me hear from you by communicating with one of the ministers in Salisbury, or address me at Zion, Yadkin county, N. C. Yours very truly,

R. A. MOORE, Agent
of A. T. S., W. N. C.

SALISBURY, Rowan Co., N. C.,
April 1872.

In view of the numbers, both of families and of individuals, who live in neglect of religious opportunities, the undersigned, believing that the visits of a Colporteur, praying and exhorting and distributing pious books and tracts, will, in cases of spiritual destitution, go very far towards supplying the place of regular pastoral labor, earnestly recommend the citizens of Salisbury and of Rowan county, to make such annual contributions to the American Tract Society, as may justify the continuance of an agency among us.

Decoration of the Soldiers' Graves.—We see that the ladies of almost every town in the State are making arrangements to deck our heroes' resting places. Are our ladies paying any attention to the matter, or do they intend to let the memory of our dead Braves sink into oblivion? The 10th of May has been generally chosen for this solemn tribute to the memory of our noble dead, it is a most appropriate day, being the anniversary of the great and good Stonewall Jackson's death. We trust that the ladies will at once take the matter in hand and make the necessary arrangements for the decoration.—Charlotte Despatch.

"Gone to the Dogs."—Judge Logan's organ, the Rutherford Star, has "kicked the bucket"—"suspended for the present."

This long looked for "suspension" happened at this particular juncture, no doubt, from one or more of three causes: a lack of "spons," the failure of Judge Logan to get the nomination for Governor and an unequalled disapproval of the radical ticket, notwithstanding James Justice pledged the support of his friends—at least to Caldwell.—Car. THE SPEECHES AT GREENS BORO.

On yesterday we referred to the able speeches made by Hon. John Kerr and A. S. Merrimon. Since we wrote those notices we have conversed with a number of delegates, all of whom are loud in their praises of Gov. Vance's speech on the first day of the Convention. It is represented by intelligent gentlemen to have been in all respects equal to the best of this distinguished orator's efforts. That is saying enough. It was unusually forcible, argumentative and eloquent, relieved by occasional displays of that inimitable humor for which he is so distinguished.

Gen. J. M. Leach's speech is also spoken of in such terms of eulogy as must be gratifying to him. He is a gentleman of great power and effectiveness, and stout and one of the most formidable debaters in the State. Many other speeches were made by prominent gentlemen that afforded great satisfaction to the vast concourse of hearers.—Ral. Sentinel.

ANOTHER MURDER IN ROBESON.

The Outlaws Again on War Path.—Cold-Blooded Murder of Col. Frank Wishart.—His Body is Found Riddled With Bullets.

By a letter received by a gentleman of this city yesterday, which was confirmed by passengers on the Wilmington, Charlotte and Rutherford Railroad, yesterday afternoon, we have the sad intelligence of the death of Col. F. M. Wishart, of Robeson county, who was murdered by the outlaws on Thursday morning. We give the particulars of this bloody tragedy as far as they have come to hand. It seems that the outlaws sent a message to Col. Wishart in the early part of last week, endeavoring to make an appointment to meet him on Tuesday, but for some cause or other he declined to accede to their request. They subsequently met him at Moss Neck and requested a private interview with him, behind a certain building there, which he granted, on condition that he should meet Andrew Strong alone, and that Stephen Lowrey should keep a distance. He was informed by Andrew Strong that he and the other outlaws were tired of their present mode of life, and were desirous of agreeing upon some terms of surrender. With this object in view, they wished to meet him (Col. Wishart) privately and freely and fully discuss the matter. Finally, at parting, Strong intimated that they should send him in a few days and urged him, when requested to meet them, to obey the summons.

Thursday morning Capt. Wishart received another message from the outlaws, stating that they had arranged for the proposed interview to take place that morning at a point about three quarters of a mile from Lebanon Church. In response to this, he left Shoe Heel immediately, going as it afterwards proved, into the very jaws of death. Thursday evening his body was found at the spot where the interview was proposed to take place, which, by the way, is near the point where Stephen Davis was killed. His wounds were four in number—one in the head, two in the body and one in the leg—and from their appearance it would seem that he and the outlaws were in close quarters, probably engaged in conversation, when the cowardly, treacherous fiends seized their advantage and made a simultaneous and murderous assault upon their brave and chivalrous but, as the event has proved, too confident antagonist.

Poor Wishart! His sudden and untimely death will be sincerely regretted by a large circle of friends in Robeson and adjoining counties; but who will avenge him? He leaves a wife and three children who reside at Shoe Heel, where the unfortunate husband and father was engaged in merchandizing.—W.L. Star.

KU-KLUX PRISONERS AND WITNESSES.

At the House of Correction, corner of Magazine and Mazyck streets, are confined 60 prisoners and over 80 witnesses, who have been brought down by the Government officials to attend the trials now progressing before the United States Circuit Court.

The prisoners are closely confined, and are guarded day and night by a detachment of United States soldiers, consisting of ten privates, two non-commissioned and one commissioned officer. They seem to be well clothed at present, and yesterday morning the whole batch were vaccinated at the expense of the Government.

The witnesses are kept separate from the prisoners, but otherwise there is no distinction between them. They are all supplied with cooked rations and blankets by Mr. T. A. Howerton, who has the contract for this purpose from the Government. The prison is kept under military rule, with strict attention to the cleanliness of the quarters and the persons confined. The prisoners are allowed to see their friends and relations at certain hours. They are most of them at present in good health, and none are reported as dangerously ill.—Charleston Courier.

A Nuisance.—We learn from our friend Geo. W. McDonald that about two weeks ago, in Paw Creek neighborhood, the dogs broke out in the night and killed thirty or forty sheep. The dogs are largely multiplying in the country, and some law must be passed to abate the terrible nuisance. We have seen a great many families who could scarcely get bread to eat, but we never saw one but what felt rich enough to keep one, two or three worthless dogs, even if the house had no fence around it.
