THE FAITHFUL SHEPHERD-BOY.

Gerhardt was a German shepherd-boy; and a noble fellow he was too, although he was very poor.

One day, as he was watching his flock, which was feeding in a valley on the borders of a forest a hunter came out of the woods and asked—

"How far is it to the nearest village?"

"Six miles, sir," replied the boy; "but the road is only a sheep-track, and very easily missed."

The hunter glanced at the crooked track, and then said—

"My lad, I am hungry, tired, and thirsty. I have lost my companions, and missed my way. Leave your sheep, and show me the road. I will pay you well."

"I cannot leave my sheep, sir," rejoined Gerhardt. "They would stray into the forest, and be eaten by wolves, or stolen by robbers."

"Well, what of that?" queried the hunter. "They are not your sheep. The loss of one or more would not be much to your master; and I'll give you more money than you ever earned in a whole year."

"I cannot go, sir," rejoined Gerhardt very firmly. "My master pays me for my time, and he trusts me with his sheep. If I were to sell you my time, which does not belong to me, and the sheep should get lost, it would be just the same as if I stole them."

"Well," said the hunter, "will you trust your sheep with me while you go to the village and get me some food and drink and a guide? I will take good care of them for you."

The boy shook his head. "The sheep," said he, "do not know your voice, and"—

Gerhardt stopped speaking.

"And what? Can't you trust me? Do I look like a dishonest man?" asked the hunter angrily.

"Sir," said the boy slowly, "you tried to make me false to my trust, and wanted me to break my word to my master. How do I know you would keep your word to me?"

The hunter laughed; for he felt that the boy had fairly cornered him. He said, "I see, my lad, that you are a good, faithful boy. I will not forget you.— Show me the road, and I will try to make it out for myself."

Gerhardt now offered the humble contents of his scrip to the hungry man, who, coarse as they were, ate them gladly. Presently his attendant came up; and then Gerhardt, to his surprise, found that the hunter was the grand duke, who owned all the country round. The duke was so pleased with the boy's honesty, that he sent for him shortly after, and had him educated. In after-years, Gerhardt became a very rich and powerful man; but he remained honest and true to his dying day.

Honesty, truth and fidelity, are precious jewels in the character of a child.— When they spring from piety, they are pure diamonds, and make their possessor very beautiful, very happy, very honorable, and very useful. May you, my readers, wear them as Gerhardt did!— Then a greater than a duke will befriend you, for the great King will adopt you as his children, and you will become princes and princesses royal in the kingdom of God.—Young Pilgrim.

The following good and true story is too good to be out of print:

Years ago there lived in Warren county a good and pious Minister of the Methodist Church, the Rev. Mr. Burge. His young eight-year-old hopeful, Watty, was mischievously addicted to the habit of pilfering from his mother's closet, sugar from the dish; remonstrance both by the father and mother proved of no avail, and though Watty protested his innocence, the old lady said she would watch for him and chastise him. The Rev. Dr. Cloes, then Presiding Elder of the Conference District, in passing through the section halted at Mr. Burge's to spend the night. He was assigned to a room adjoining the closet, the scene of young Watty's depredations. At the first dawn of day on the following morning, the Reverend gentleman arose from his couch and retired to the closet, a door of which opened into his room, to attend to his morning devotions, and unfortunately for him, knelt near the usual position of the sugar dish. At this moment Mrs. Burge had occasion to visit the closet, and quietly opening the door, discovered "Watty" in the very act as she thought; highly incensed, she administered several severe raps upon the devoted head of the Presiding Elder before she discovered her mistake, adding at the same time, "I have caught you stealing the sugar at last, have I?"

It is unnecessary to add that "Watty" was the only person on the premises that enjoyed "the scene that ensued."—Rail News.

IDEAL GIRLS.—It is a painful spectacle, in families where the mother is drudge, to see the daughters elegantly dressed, reclining at their ease, with their drawing, their music, their fancy work, and their reading, beguiling themselves of the lapse of hours, days and weeks; and never dreaming of their responsibility, but, as a necessary consequence of neglect of duty, growing weary of their useless lives, laying hold of very new-invented stimulants to rouse their drooping energies, and blaming their fate when they dare not blame their God for having placed them where they are. These individuals will tell you, with an air of affected compassion, for who can believe it real, that poor, dear mamma is working herself to death; and should assist her than they declare she is quite in her element, in short, that she could never be happy if she had only half as much to do.

Mrs. DAVIS AND MR. GREELEY—A TRUTHFUL SCRAP OF HISTORY.

The accompanying communication, says the Telegraphic & Messenger, comes from a source of the most unquestionable authenticity, and reflects honor upon the nominee of the Cincinnati Convention.

No true Southerner can peruse it with unmolested eye, and the rebuke to Mr. Voorhees is most withering and complete; Editors Macon Telegraph & Messenger:

Mr. Voorhees, in his recent attack on Mr. Greeley, styled his signing of Mr. Davis' bond "an impertinent interference."

Allow me to give you the true history of that matter as I recently learned it in New York, from a gentleman who knew all about it. Mrs. Davis went to N. York to counsel Chas. O'Connor, Mr. Davis' counsel, as to the best manner of effecting his release from prison. Mr. O'Connor told her that in his opinion there was but one way that it could be done, and that was to get representative men of the Republican party to sign his bond. Mrs. Davis inquired who that man was. Mr. O'Connor replied that it was Horace Greeley. She then asked him if he would not apply for Mr. Greeley and get him to do it. He replied that he had no influence with Mr. Greeley, and that she was the proper person to see him. She said she would go and see him. (She went to his office, sent in her card and was invited into his private office. She said to him: "Mr. Greeley, my husband is confined in a casemate at Fortress Monroe. He has been there for many long, weary months. He is a feeble old man, and he is gradually sinking under his rigorous imprisonment. He will die if he remains there much longer. I came here to consult Mr. O'Connor as to the means of getting him released. He has told me that there is but one way to do it, and that is to get the representative men of the Republican party to sign his bond, and that you are that man. He has advised me to apply to you. He says that you have a kind heart, and that you will do it, if you believe it to be right. My husband is dying. Mr. Greeley, may I hope that you will favorably consider my application?"

Mr. Greeley arose, extended his hand to Mrs. Davis, and said: "Madam, you may, for I will sign his bond." Mr. Greeley was then a prominent candidate before the Legislature for the United States Senate. Some of his friends heard that he had agreed to sign Mr. Davis' bond. They went to him and protested against it. They told him that they had made a count, and that he would be elected by a six majority, but that if he signed this bond it would defeat him. He replied, "I know it well." They told him that he was one of the owners of the Tribune, and if he signed this bond he would lose thousands of subscribers. He replied, "I know it." They said, "Mr. Greeley, you have written a history of the war, one volume you have out, and have sold large numbers of it. Your second volume is nearly out, and you have large orders for that. If you sign this bond, these orders will be countermanded, and you will lose a large amount of money." He replied, "Gentlemen, I know it, but it is right, and I will do it." He did do it, and I am informed that he lost a seat in the United States Senate and over thirty thousand dollars.

To my mind this does not look like "impertinent interference."

NEW YORK.

New York, May 24.—The National Workingmen's Convention to nominate a President and Vice President of the U. States met yesterday, in accordance with a call from the Workingmen's Central Union of the State of New York. The Convention was called to order at twenty minutes past two by Col. Sedmond of N. Jersey, who was elected temporary chairman. The usual committees were appointed. A call of the roll showed delegates from thirty States, to the number of two hundred. A permanent organization was effected by the election of Col. Gibbons, who on taking the chair, eulogized Grant's recent action in regard to the eight hour law. He reviewed his policy, and said he was the only man who could be trusted by the working classes. A series of resolutions were reported embodying the following principles: Reduction of the national debt; unconditional settlement of the Alabama claims; enforcement of the eight hour law; a low rate of interest as a common national law; encouragement of shipbuilding; giving the U. S. mails exclusively to American built ships, and sympathizing with the various nations struggling under oppression. F. M. McGee, of New York, recommended Grant for renomination; the Missouri delegation recommended Horace Greeley. On taking a ballot, Grant received 204 votes and Greeley five. The nomination of Grant was then made unanimous.—Senator Henry Wilson was then nominated for Vice President by the following ballot: Wilson, 160; Edwin D. Morgan, 25; Colfax 24. Grant and Wilson were then notified by telegraph of their nomination. A committee was appointed to prepare an address to the workingmen of the United States. A motion was adopted to hold a ratification meeting at the Cooper Institute this evening. The session was occupied for a time in discussing a motion relative to strikes.

WASHINGTON.

Washington, May 24.—House.—Election Committee reported confirming Hearndon from Texas in his seat paying constant 2000 dollars per session.

Kerr called up the Senate bill providing for the redemption and sale of lands held by the United States, under the several acts to levy direct taxes, and moved a substitute for such bill, providing that all now owned or held by the U. States, by virtue of proceedings, under

THE EARTHQUAKE.

California newspapers contain voluminous dispatches relating to the earthquake, the axis of which was in the south-eastern part of the State. A Vine dispatch says that fully 1,000 distinct shocks were felt. At Tibbet's Ranch, 16 miles above Independence, 40 acres of ground sank about seven feet below the surface of the surrounding country. Big Owen's Lake has risen four feet since the first shock. Owen's River runs over its bank, depositing shoals of fish on shore; afterward it receded. For a distance of three or four miles through Lone Pine the earth is cracked. One side remained stationary, while the other sank seven or eight feet, leaving a wall of earth, extending over three miles in length, where formerly was a level plain. Innumerable cracks were made throughout the valley. Kern and Owen's rivers turned and ran up stream for several minutes, leaving their beds dry; finally they returned with largely increased volumes of water.—Some of the shocks were preceded by a deafening report, as though the mountains were being rent in two, while others were accompanied by a low, continuous rumble, as of a train of cars running underground. None of the shocks ever experienced anything so frightful in all their earthquake experience. At the last accounts the explosions and heaving still continue, though not so violently.

THE CABINET.

The Boston Post says: "Mr. Greeley's honesty of purpose counts a great deal for him and it is freely suggested that with a well chosen Cabinet he could put the Union on the right track again. With Charles Francis Adams, say, for Secretary of State, there would be no paltering in our foreign policy; with Trumbull as Secretary of the Treasury, there would be no miserly hoarding of gold or fluctuations in the money market; with Hancock as Secretary of War, the records of the Department would not be mysteriously missing; with Cox as Secretary of the Interior, civil service reform would not gasp for life, while if these names were not sufficient, a splendid talent would remain for his unparagoned choice. There are Doobittle, Gowen, Hendricks, Schurz, the silver-tongued, Thurman, whose logic and strength of intellect are familiar in every State, Gov. Parker whose wise policy in New Jersey has excited such commendation, Gov. Seymour of New York, Palmer, of Illinois, English, of Connecticut, Atkinson, Radicott, and others of Massachusetts. The list is a brilliant one, and when Greeley appears as the central figure, the present Administration, with its gold stocks in waiting and its dilittante goldsmanship, does not provoke unlimited enthusiasm."
