

Carolina Watchman LOCAL.

SKETCHERS OF SALISBURY.—We are in receipt of a communication from the Rev. A. W. MAMOUR, in regard to his sketches of Salisbury, &c. It shall appear in our next.

FOR PICKNICK.—Messrs. Barker & Co., have for rent a portable soda fountain, well adapted for uses of picnic parties and others. See Advertisement.

THE ROWAN CENTRAL GRANGE will meet on Friday night at 8 o'clock. Prompt attendance.

On Tuesday 29th, inst. at 2 o'clock, p. m. there will be a public meeting of the Grange at the Court House, where speeches will be made explaining the whole purposes of the Grange. All farmers and persons interested in Agriculture are cordially invited to attend.

By order of the GRANGE. T. W. KEFN, Sec'y.

Mrs. Haigler, wife of Mr. J. S. Haigler, the popular Southern Express agent at this place, died at Morganton on Thursday last. This lady had been living here only a short time, but had made us very friends.

The Canada Thistle is becoming a nuisance in some of the back streets of our town and we respectfully suggest their destruction. The time of year to do it is now at hand. A little later and the seeds will have so far matured as to disappoint any such effort this year.

IMPROVEMENTS.—We are glad to notice that Dr. Hall is again busily at work, filling up the burnt district with new brick stores. If Mr. John I. Shaver, and Robt. Murphy would go and do likewise, there would be no vacant lots remaining in the central or business portion of the city.

MEAT STORE.—Messrs. Barker & Co., have just finished painting, white-washing, and re-arranging the inside of their drug store which now presents a very neat and handsome appearance, well arranged and elegantly managed. Mr. Barker, the head of the firm, by his strict attention to business and uniform courtesy, has justly won the confidence of the public.

MCKENZIE'S FOND.—This famous place, which, according to the Concord Sun, "is to be connected with Salisbury and Calabaria by a canal," is now a sea of tall grass—a meadow prairie—and the mowers with keen blades are laying it in swathbanks. It is estimated that it will afford work for the mowers until frost. The grass is good and the hay sweet. What the value of the yield may be is at present only conjectural. It is believed it will largely exceed the annual product of the mills heretofore run by the waters which covered the ground. If it shall pay the cost of thorough drainage and thus bring the land into good condition for tillage, the estate will be greatly enhanced in value.

We congratulate the Intendent and Commissioners on the degree of success which has attended their efforts to induce cleanliness on the part of the inhabitants of our Town. We think there has been a decided improvement, and feel a great assurance that its results will tell most favorably on the health and happiness of our citizens. We are now in the midst of that time of the year when the intense heat of the weather generates most rapidly the virulent poisons which are supposed to lead the air, carrying disease and pestilence wherever they go. Will not all who are responsible, use a little extra care to enforce the practice of those precautionary measures already recommended to the town by its officials. Nor would it be out of place for the Intendent to instruct his policemen to be constantly watchful in this regard, in order to force up the slovenly and neglectful members of the community. The good health of the town, up to this time should prove an incentive to greater diligence in preserving it, than a cause for remitting effort. The advantages are so invaluable, that no one's neglect should be allowed to jeopardize them. The preventing of one case of sickness in a family will save more time and money, (say nothing of disquiet and unhappiness,) than that family can expend in measures of precaution.

hand-dip nets are still employed; the fisherman finds an overhanging rock, from two to five feet above the water, which will afford him pretty secure footing, and making it a stand for operations, unfurls his net and casts it into the waters above him, pressing it down at the proper depth while the rapid waters carry it down the stream to the full length of the handle. Then drawing it up, he casts it out again, and so on, hour after hour and day after day, according as he finds it profitable. These nets are generally from 3 1/2 to 4 1/2 feet wide at the mouth, and five or six feet long. The handles are from 14 to 16 feet long. The practiced fisherman always knows when a fish is in his net before he brings it to the surface. Years ago it was a very common thing to catch several shad at a single dip. The writer has known seven to be thus taken at a single sweep of the net; and when the fish were running well, almost every dip was rewarded with one or more. The fisherman always had a convenient place to turn them out, either into a box or a hole in the surrounding rocks, a maneuver so dexterously performed as to lose no time.

An improvement has been made on this method of late years, where the situation admits of its introduction, which dispenses with the heavy manual labor of the operation. Four nets of very much the same construction, except that they are more shallow, are fastened by their handles at a right angle, and at equal distances a part, in a horizontal shaft, the ends of which rest on suitable bearings for easy turning. This shaft is arranged so as to drop the nets in the desired sluce through which the water is dashing with sufficient force to keep the machine in motion. Two of the nets are thus always in the water, and two are whirling in the air. If a fish is caught, the net brings him over and drops him into a box arranged at the proper place to receive him as he is dropped out. With this simple machine to work for him, the fisherman has nothing to do but to count out and sell his fish as they fall into the box. It is a very good thing in its way, and might have very remunerative when fish were plenty in our waters; but now, at this place, it is of no practical value for the reason that there are no fish.

From this cause more than from any other, the Narrows is losing its fame. The large crowds of men and women who once visited the place and spent days, and even weeks, on its rocky shores, are never seen here now. It was a place for pedlars of every kind, who brought wares and goods, tobacco, whiskey, &c., &c., to exchange for fish, or to sell to those who assembled here during the fishing season. The crowd was always largest about Easter, and persons were then attracted hither from a distance of fifty and a hundred miles. Many an incident of rare interest occurred here in those times, and some of them are yet remembered and recited by the old inhabitants of the country. The wild and rugged scenery of the locality is inspiring to a high degree, and the outward individual manifestations, as ever, dependent on the amount of cultivation and character of the mind affected by it. Positions are easily attained which enable the observer to take in at a glance nearly the whole surrounding country for many miles. The residence of Mr. JOHN F. COTTON, situated on a high hill just at the head of the Narrows, formerly owned and occupied by the late Col. Jack Crump, is perhaps the easiest attainable, if not also the best. From this point the country lying west, southwest and north, taking in the Davidson county hills about Healing Springs and eastward, and those intervening between the observer and Stokes' Ferry, is spread out like a Map. The Yadkin flows down through this rural scene, varying from 300 to 400 yards in width, adding by its silvery light and gentle roar, a most charming feature to the landscape. Here the lover of nature may sit for hours without weariness, feasting his eyes, and adoring the power divine which ordereth all things in wisdom and beauty.

There is another eminence of several hundred feet on the South side of the river, known as Palmer's mountain, (a hill of rare beauty as seen from Mr. Cotton's) which affords the best bird's-eye view of the Narrows to be had. From its top the observer takes in the wide-spread river for miles above, and obtains a more realizing sense of the extraordinary character of Nature's grand feat of collecting and sending its waters over huge stones, bounding, surging, and hissing through a channel only averaging about 70 feet in width. This passage is hardly half a mile in length. It is bordered on each side with a narrow field of gray stones, some of them of unknown size, the lesser piled one upon another and crowding each other so compactly as to leave no room for vegetation, except in little clusters of tough grass and gnarled shrubbery in cracks and holes, here and there. The action of the water on these stones, which stand at an average of 8 or 10 feet above the ordinary height of the river, shows that they at some remote period in the world's existence formed the bed of the stream. The most surprising evidences of this is found in curiously wrought channels or grooves, and holes, in the faces of these rocks, of various dimensions, shapes, and sizes, as smooth and fresh looking as if the work had been of very recent date. In jumping, or crawling, from rock to rock, or creeping between them, (the pedestrian along these shores can go in no other way,) you constantly meet with these fantastic works of the water. Here is a hole, for example, in the face of a large stone, lying with its mouth horizontal, half filled with clear water, and in its bottom, (two or three feet deep,) a bushel or two of polished pebbles of various colors and shapes. You involuntarily exclaim, what a splendid bathing tub! It is three or four feet in diameter, and its walls are almost as smooth as glass. Right by it, and in easy reach; there may be another, five or six inches in diameter, and just the thing to hold your cake of soap.

Here is what the people call "a well." Some call it "the great wash pot." It is about five feet across the mouth. The walls are perpendicular and very smooth. At the depth of 12 or 15 feet you come to water, evidently supplied from the river, for it is in motion; but the communication is not generally seen. The fishermen often sink their nets into this hole, and seem to be surer of their game here than anywhere else near. It is the product of the same agents which wrought the bathing tub and all the other mysteries of that class around you.

There is the "slide rock," a place which is sure to captivate the eye of almost every little boy that sees it. It is a smoothly cut, shallow groove on the face of a large rock lying at an angle of about 35 or 40 degrees. It is about 15 feet long. At the top of the rock the groove is quite shallow and some 12 or more inches in width. It gradually contracts in width and deepens in its descent. The little boy easily runs up the rough surface on each side of it, and seating himself on the smooth place, glides down to the bottom so sleek and nice as to fairly make him dance with joy. Two or three together there would slide for hours, oblivious of time and everything else, unless they should happen to feel the rock on their naked skins and remember that mama would make a fuss about holes in the breeches.

How this groove was made is not so easily accounted for. If it faced down the river instead of up it, we might suppose that some huge stone, borne downward by the river at high tide, had plowed it out. If there were any other stream entering into the river near the place, we might suppose all the surrounding rocks at one time covered with earth and that stream approaching the river over the top of this rock, carrying with it sand and gravel for thousands of years, had worn it out. But these conjectures are excluded by the absence of the supposed facts. Some Geologists must solve the problem. The inhabitants of the neighborhood attribute it to the Indians who once occupied the country, and this part of it apparently most numerous. They believe that the Indians made it, and for the very purpose its name indicates—a "slide rock." If this be true, it is not improbable they caught the idea from their little less intelligent contemporaries the beavers, which once abounded in the smaller streams in the vicinity. "Beaverdam," a small stream, one mile above the Narrows, took its name from the great number of beavers which, in the early times of the white settlers, inhabited its shores, and had their slides on its steep banks.

But I must close this letter, already too long, lest I weary you. Permit me, however, to add, that I have scarcely touched the subjects of interest in this now secluded region. It is almost "out of the world" at the present day, although only 50 years ago its inhabitants were fairly abreast with their fellow citizens of the country at large. Many of them were wealthy and intelligent, and the community at large held as general intercourse with the then business centers as did the people of other portions of the back country. The possession of railroads and the telegraph, with their incidental advantages, have enabled other portions of the country to shoot ahead of this. In fact, progress here seems to have been backward rather than forward; so that, upon the whole, this section now forms a contrast, in some respects, with those which have been in the enjoyment of the great improvements of the present century. There is no deterioration in the intrinsic value of the land. They are rich in many places, and very productive. Fields which have been in cultivation for a hundred years, still yield abundant crops. The greatest need of the country is population. There is room for ten times the present number of inhabitants. The hand of industry would make this one of the most desirable sections in the State. Almost entirely free of malarious diseases, it will compare with any as to healthfulness. The water is excellent an abundant, bursting up in pure springs around the base of the hills. Timber of the best quality and in great variety, is abundant; and so with other of the material blessings of the earth.

Very Respectfully, B.

MERONEY & BRO. Offer extraordinary inducements to their friends and customers this Season. Their SPRING STOCK is larger, more select, and more various than ever before. It was bought for cash, and at a time when goods were very low in the Northern markets. Hence, they are better prepared than ever, to suit all tastes and fancies, and to give better bargains for cash. They made their purchase of Dress Goods for ladies, gentlemen and children, more a specialty than heretofore, and really feel anxious to have their friends call and examine their stock. They think it is elegant; it is certainly pleasing to the eye, and (quality considered) it is unusually cheap.—But.

THEIR ASSORTMENT IS GENERAL, comprising all that they have usually kept, with additional items of attraction. They can meet the demands of the Farmer, the Merchant, the Artist, and many of the Professional man. It is a proverb with every of their customers, "Meroney keeps everything and the best." They desire to call special attention to a new branch grafted this Spring, to wit: A MILLINERY DEPARTMENT. This was designed for the accommodation of their lady customers, and it has been pronounced by many of them as a decided success in its general scope and itemized details. It is under the immediate Supervision of Mrs. Halverson and Miss McMurray, who are ever ready to respond to the calls of their customers. Call and see, and hear prices. MERONEY & BRO. May 8-4t.

Also, adjoining the above property, a tract of 30 acres, more or less, situated in the town of Birch, which proper cultivation would produce the most satisfactory crops of grain, cotton, and particularly clover, and is beautifully situated for a model farm. There is on this tract a grove of 90 acres. The trees are nicely topped. From the Grove may be had a very fine view of the city and surrounding country. MOCK & BROWN, are now receiving their usual assortment of Spring Goods, consisting of all classes of goods adapted to this section of Country. Their stock is full and complete in all descriptions of Prints, Black and Brown Domestic, Linens at 12 1/2, Dress goods in the newest styles, Ladies' ready made suits, a most beautiful selection of Cassimers and Costing, Pant Jeans of all kinds. Sugar, Coffee, Molasses, and all kinds of Groceries, &c.

Their terms are strictly cash and barter with a few exceptions. Those who are reliable and prompt in paying their accounts it affords them pleasure to accommodate. To enable them to sell goods at close prices, which they are determined to do, this policy has been adopted, when goods are sold on time to indiscriminate parties, heavy losses will occur from the Bankrupt and unassisted parties of the law, and when losses are sustained by merchants, it is a well settled fact that such losses are met and it is reasonable to suppose that the losses to be made up as far as practicable, falls on the honest paying customers. They have determined to stop this way of doing business, by selling at the lowest cash and barter prices and credit no man who is unworthy of it. They are thankful to their daily friends and customers for their confidence and confidence, and hope by selling Good Goods at low prices to secure their continued favors. MOCK & BROWN. March 27—4t.

The startling drawback on nearly all medicine agents have ever been that in their process of purification they have also debilitated the system. To obviate this difficulty physicians long sought for an agent that would PURGE, PURIFY AND STRENGTHEN. At one and the same time. Their research has at last been rewarded by a discovery which fully realizes the progress of the medical faculty, and which is justly regarded as the most important triumph that Pharmacy has ever achieved. This important desideratum is—

Dr. Tuttle's Vegetable Liver Pills. Which purify the blood and remove all corrupt humors and unhealthy accumulations from the body, and yet produce no weakness or lassitude whatever, but on the contrary tones the stomach and invigorates the body during the progress of their operation. They unite the heretofore irreconcilable qualities of a Strengthening Purgative and a Purifying Tonic. Dr. Tuttle's Pills are the most active and searching medicine in existence. They at once attack the very root of diseases, and their action is so prompt that in an hour or two after they are taken the patient is aware of their good effects. They may be taken at any time without restriction of diet or occupation, they produce neither nausea, griping or debility, and as a family medicine they have no rival. Price 25 cents a box. Sold by all Druggists. Principal office, 18 and 20 Platt St., N. Y. 4c.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN JURUBEBA BLOOD PURIFIER. Is the most powerful cleanser, strengthener and restorer of Glandular Obstructions known to Modern Medicine. It is especially adapted to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blisters, Boils, Pustules, Scrophulous, &c., &c. When weary and languid from overwork, and all unclean thoughts and morbid ideas, take the place of energy and vigor, the best remedy is a Tonic to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power. In the heat of Summer, frequently the Liver Spleen do not properly perform their functions, the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines, and a predisposition to bilious derangement. Dr. WELLS' Extract of Jurubeba is prepared directly from the South American Plant, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it cleanses the Vitiated Blood, strengthens the Life Giving Powers, and Renews all Obstructions from Impaired and Inhibited Organs. It should be freely taken, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient Purifier, Tonic and Restorative known in the whole range of medicinal plants. 4c. Marriage Certificates for sale here.

Valuable Land For Sale. Having become the sole Proprietor of the valuable Tract of Land formerly owned by Jeremiah Barringer, and located one mile South-West of Rowan Mills station, and having no more to sell, I propose to sell it. This tract, comprising 65 1/2 acres, is regarded by good judges as one of the very best and most eligibly situated in the county. It is admirably adapted to the cultivation of corn, cotton, tobacco, and the grapes. There is at least 100 acres of bottom, of which about 75 is in cultivation.
