

Origin of "No Pent-Up" Utica.

Everybody has heard these lines: "No pent-up Utica contracts our powers. But the whole boundless continent is ours."

But very few people know the author or what poem they occur. The Portsmouth (N. H.) Journal says they were written by one Jonathan Mitchell Sewell, a Portsmouth poet, as an epilogue to Addison's play of "Cato," on the occasion of its performance by an amateur company in that place in 1788.

The spirit of the Revolution entered into every expression. We give a few lines: "And what now gleams with the drawing rays at home. Once blazed in full-orbed majesty at Rome. Did Rome's brave Senate nobly strive to oppose."

The mightiest current of domestic foes? And boldly ran the virtuous law, and dare The desperate perils of unequal war? Our Senate too the same bold deed has done.

And for a Cato armed a Washington. Rise then, my countrymen! for fight prepare. Gird on swords and fearless rush to war!

For your grievous country nobly dare to die. And smite all your venal for liberty. No pent-up Utica contracts your powers. But the whole boundless continent is yours."

Utica, a town older than and in the vicinity of ancient Carthage, was the place where Cato died. This fact, with the above extracts, will explain to the reader the origin of the "No Pent-Up" motto.

It is said that the following arrangement of words, if dictated with any degree of rapidity, will stump the best spellers: "The most skillful gauger I ever knew was a mangled cobbler, armed with a poniard, who drove a peddler's wagon, using a mull-tail stalk as an instrument of coercion to tyrannize over his pony, shod with calks. He was a Gallican Scythian, and he had a phiblically catarrh, diphtheria, and the bilious intermittent erysipelas. A certain sibil, with the sibilant of "Gipsy," went into ecstasies of ecchimation at seeing him measure a bushel of peas, and separate saccharine tomatoes from a heap of peeled potatoes, without drying or singeing the ignitable que which he wore, or becoming paralyzed with a hemorrhage. Lifting her eyes to the ceiling of the capota of the capitol to conceal her unparalleled embarrassment, making a rough courtesy, and not harrasing him with mysing, purring, and stinging, fawning, she gave him a conch, a bouquet of lilies, mimogonites, and fuschias, a treatise on menonias, a copy of the Apocrypha in hieroglyphics, dangerfrees of Mendelshon and Kossisko, a kaldeioscope, a dram phial of peocucuba, a teaspoonful of saghis, for delicate purging, a ferrule, a clarinet, some loecies in a surlingie, a coniferable ellipsis and a tryplatic diereisis. We replied in truchees, not impugning her suspicion.—[New Haecn Palladium.]

Negroism in Congress.

When the negroes of Tennessee demanded the passage of the Civil Rights Bill, the republican Senate, being deeply imbued with the requirement, and the Bill was passed, as a party measure. Thereupon the thinking men of the South at once warned the Republican Party that mixed schools means social equality and the degradation of the poor white man to miscegenation; that our pride of race would not permit us to acquiesce in such an infamy; and that if the Bill became the law of the land the common schools of the South would cease and remain closed forever! They said that their white children and negro children should never intermingle as equals, and that this land of the white man should never be converted into a country of mulattoes and half breeds. As soon as this determination on the part of the South was announced, up rose Mr. Stewart in Congress, and proposed an amendment to our constitution to the effect that if any State should not make proper provision for mixed schools, and if the Civil Rights Bill, then the United States Government should make the necessary provision to establish and maintain common schools for white and black alike throughout each State, and force the State to pay the expenses of the same! See then where those Republicans are going; not only do they propose to force on the poor white children of North Carolina the degradation of negro equality, but they propose to destroy the last right of our people to govern themselves, and make us submit to be governed in our local concerns by the people of New England. Forsooth the New England Republicans declare in this matter, that our tastes, our views, our prejudices, are not to be consulted, but we must bow down before them and accept their decrees as to our local affairs. Tell us about despotism and about tyranny; and we will point forever to this proposed action on the part of the Republican Party as a yet greater tyranny, and still more terrific despotism than aught which can be found in the pages of History.—Crescent.

Dark Rooms—Sunshine.

Windows were originally intended to let in light and air. Modern housekeepers, however, from the mansions of wealthy to the cabins of the very poor, are in the habit of shutting out the blessed sunshine and pure air. Windows are studiously curtained, double, dark very generally closed. Let the shades run up easily on rollers attached to the sash, and the sash always dropped an inch or two. Sun-light is an element of life. It decomposes and scatters, in connection with pure air, the death seeds. When fevers are epidemic, in large cities, or in wards of hospitals, the sunless rooms and sides of streets report a much larger number of deaths than ever found where sunlight can enter, even for one hour a day. Is it from indolence or ignorance, or sheer thoughtlessness, that the people seem to study how to shut out the sunshine? Blinds and vines curtains, and draperies, are used to bar the entrance of the life preserving sunshine. Death lurks in darkness. Even the potato vine cannot thrive in a sunless cellar.—Journal of Health.

The Scene in the Senate—Submission to the Decree of "King Caucus."

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Pursuant to the caucus decision the Republican Senators came into the Senate chamber this morning prepared to "sit out" the civil right bill. The bill was taken up punctually at noon and the debate on it once commenced. Had the Democratic Senators been so disposed to a final vote, the bill would have been taken early in the day. They knew of course from the bitter experience of the past that their cause was lost in advance, and struggle as gallantly as they might for truth, justice and the prevalence of common sense, they must in the end succumb to the physical odds so overwhelmingly against them. But, as so well said by Senator Cooper, they regarded silence on such an occasion as treason to the constituencies which put them there for one more struggle, hopeless though it be, confident in the conviction that wrong cannot always prevail.

That there was to be another all-night session was evident. As the shades of evening began to wrap the capitol in gloom the electric flash put life into the myriads of gas-burners which encircle the glass roof of the Senate chamber. The scene which then presented itself was familiar to those who have often in these ten years past kept watch and ward through the long hours of the night, when in the violated name of the Constitution thousands of dollars and intended only for patriotic aims and purposes were to be raised through aid by force of mere brute superiority. On the side of the chamber occupied by nothing but vacuities were to be seen while those to whom they belonged were stretching themselves in careless abandon on the luxurious sofas in the rear, or gathering in groups in the retiring rooms, putting their hands and enjoying themselves in untroubled conversation. On the other side of the chamber were the feeble band fighting for the rights of all the people, fighting for the principles on which this government was founded, fighting in vain, no one to help them in their pleading but the spectators in the galleries.

Such was the scene as the hours wore on—the same scene which has been enacted on the floor of the Senate chamber a score of times within the last few years. The great body of the American people who never tire of hearing the cause can scarcely appreciate the manner in which the legislation which so deeply concerns their welfare enacted—that the majority to whom they have entrusted the government of their country governs it not through the lawful means of legislation provided, but through the decrees of a secret and irresponsible caucus. Whenever a vote was to be taken the members of the majority would emerge from their comfortable retreat like brigands from the rocks and bushes, and having answered to their names would as suddenly disappear, to once more reappear to the public eye in a similar class.

Must able and powerful arguments were made by Messrs. Saulsbury, Merrimon, Hamilton, of Maryland, and others. At times not one half of a quorum was present in the chamber, and in utter defiance of the rules of the Senate that no business can be transacted in the absence of a quorum, all points of order made in this respect were arbitrarily overruled.

PROVISIONS OF THE BILL.

The bill is the legacy of the late Senator Sumner, with some modifications, and declares in effect that colored people shall be entitled to the full and equal enjoyment of the accommodations and advantages, facilities and privileges of inns, public conveyances and hotels, theaters, and other places of public amusement, and also of common schools and public institutions of learning or benevolence supplied in whole or in part by general taxation, and cemeteries so supported. It punishes any denial of such accommodations with fine and imprisonment by the Federal courts.

We invite attention to their stock of Cottage Bedsteads, French Chairs, Rocking Chairs, and all descriptions of Dining Tables of all kinds—Warehouses, Washstands, What-Nots, Sofas, Reception Chairs and Parlor Suites, also, many other articles which we are prepared to sell as cheap or cheaper than any House in the western part of the State.

THE NEW FAMILY SINGER SEWING MACHINE.

We claim and can show that it is the cheapest, most beautiful, delicately arranged, neatly adjusted, easily operated, and smoothly running of all the Family Sewing Machines. It is remarkable not only for the range and variety of its sewing, but also for the variety and different kinds of textures which it will sew with equal facility and perfection, using silk twist, linen or cotton thread, fine or coarse, making the INTERLOCKED-ELASTIC-STITCH, alike on both sides of the fabric sewn. Thus, beaver cloth, or leather, may be sewn with great strength and uniformity of stitch; and, in a moment, this willing and never-wearing instrument may be adjusted for fine work on gauze or gossamer tissue, or on sewing of tarlatan, or ruffling, or almost any other work which delicate fingers have been known to perform.
