DEATH AMONG THE CHINESE -- Dead in China is awarded as the punishment for the most trival offences, and frequestly for none at all, except being in somebody's way. A story was told to me as a fact that during the visit of a royal prince, a theft was committed of a chain or watch belonging to the royal guest The unfortunate attendant was caught with the property upon him, and without further ceremony his head was chopped off. The mandarin in attendance imme diately announced the tidings to the prince as a delicate attention, showing how devoted he was in his service. To his astonishment the prince expressed great regret that the man's head had been take en off. "Your bighness," cried the obas quious mandarin, bowing to the ground tablished connection with the latter. A "It shall immediately be put on again !" so little did he understand that the regret was for the life taken, and not the severed head. In times of insurrection or familie the mowing down of human life is like corn-stalks at barvest time, appalling to European ideas. I must coufess 101a nervous shuddering when I stood apon the execution ground at Canton-a narrow lane at Potter's field-where so many hundreds had been butchered per diem during weeks together, the executioner requiring the aid of two smiths to sharpen his swords ; for many of the wretched victims were not destroyed at one fell swoop, but sentenced to be "hacked to pieces" by twenty to fifty blows.

A LITTLE ELBOW ROOM.

Good friend, don't crowd so very tight, There's room enough for two : Keep in your mind that I have a right To live as well as you, You rich and strong, I poor and weak, But think you I presume. When only this poor boon I ask-A little elbow room ?

'Tis such as you, the rich and strong, If you but have the will, Could give the weak a lift along. And help him up the hill. But no-you jostle, crowd and drive. You storm, and fret and fume : Are you the only man alive In want of elbow room ?

But thus it is on life's round path, Self seems the God of all ; The strong will crush the weak to death. The big devour the small, Far better be a rich man's hound-A valet, serf or groom-That struggles 'mid the mass around, When we've no elbow room.

Up heart, my boy ! don't mind the shock Up heatt and push along ! Your skin will grow rough with knocks, Your limbs with labor strong ; And there's a hand unseen to aid, A star, to light the gloom ; Up heart, my boy, nor be afraid, Strike out for elbow room.

And when you see amid the throng A fellow toiler slip, Just give him as you pass along, A brave and kindly grip ; Let noble deeds, though poor you be, Your path in life illume. And with true Christain charity. Give others elbow room.

And spout, and grow, at God's behest If it is planted.

Now fruit it bears, and pleasure gives, To him who placed it 'neath the soil : Each year this tree, long as it lives, Will bring to man, fruit of his toil, Also to ladies.

Till warmth and moisture make it swell,

Likewise take man! To make a friend, Each prejudice must be removed, Ere he can serve that lofty end Of friendship-perfect, pure, and proved. 'Tis done but rarely !

This feeling off of all pre-judging, Shows you at first a "pleasing bait," Unless conceit, that canker, grudging Pleasure, turns fondness into hate. Which often happens.

At length you reach his bivalve heart, As hard and rough, perhaps, as stone. But in its chambers hides the dart, Tipped with Cupid's pow'rful poison, By ladies fingers.

Smile and glance are influential, To cause this bud to sprout and grow, Low, sweet words too, are essential : (At least I always find it so. When I mean business !)

And now its love or friendship gives,

To her whose hand hath sowed the seed : Each year this heart, long as it lives, Will bless the mind that saw its need Of one to cherish.

My moral learn. Just as the peach Can its true value only prove By lapse of years : thus can you reach Eternal friendship and true love,-And love forever.

And tho' the heart may seem a stone At first, yet flint can be subdued . Much more a heart, made to be won, By hearts that are made to be wooed, But not to trifle.
