MARCH, 11.

Wagons mire down in the streets of Charlotte, and the Observer says it is not a rare thing.

Mrs. A. C. F. Smith, widow of the late negro worshipper, Gerrit Smith, is dead.

Black cat skins have sold as high as $1.75 here. Red Horse Jim Brown is running this line of trade now exclusively.

Trade brightens up whenever the sun shows himself. Tuesday of this week was one of the busiest days we've seen in town, in a long time.

We could make our paper much more interesting if our friends, both in town and country, would inform us of any items of interest which come to their knowledge. We rase up all we can, but we can't find out everything. We appeal particularly to our friends in the country to drop us a line whenever anything of interest occurs in their vicinity. Some people who are to be seen at every twenty five cents slight-of-hand,
