The Judge or presiding officer, against whom the General Assembly may be about to proceed, shall receive notice thereof, accompanied by a copy of the causes alleged for his removal, at least twenty days before the day on which either House of the General Assembly shall act thereon.

SEC.—. Any Clerk of the Supreme Court, or of the Superior Courts, or of such Courts inferior to the Supreme Court as may be established by law, may be removed from office for mental or physical inability; the Clerk of the Supreme Court by the Judges of said Courts, the Clerks of the Superior Courts by the Judge riding the district, and the Clerks of such Courts inferior to the Supreme Court as may be established by law, by the presiding officers of said Courts. The Clerk against whom proceedings are instituted shall receive notice thereof, accompanied by a copy of causes alleged for his removal at least ten days before the day appointed to act thereon, and the Clerk shall be entitled to an appeal to the next term of the Superior Court, and then to the Supreme Court, as provided in other cases of appeals.

Read three times and ratified in open Convention, this 8th day of October, 1875.

Letter From California.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.
Sept. 30, 1875.

Editor PIEDMONT PRESS,

DEAR SIR:—I have no doubt but that your readers would be pleased to hear from this part of the United States. I send you a letter which you can publish if you like. The Bank of California, which was suspended some time since, will open again to-morrow (Oct. 1,). The people have great deal of confidence in it, notwithstanding the reports that have been circulated. To show you the confidence that is placed in it I will copy the words of Senator Sharon at a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Bank of California yesterday:—"Gentlemen, I have heretofore stated that I am willing to bring half my fortune into the Bank of California. I have taken steps to make good that promise, and as speedily as the necessary arrangements can be made I shall place $7,500,000 to the credit of the concern.'

That promise, coming from a man whose word is his bond, determines a great future for the Bank of California. I have no doubt but that the people of the East think the late President, W. C. Ralston, was a swindler and that he committed suicide, but such is not the case in San Francisco; although several of the leading papers have defamed his name. (I have no doubt but that they will be punished for it.) He was well thought of here.

On Wednesday, Oct. 6th, the countless friends of the late W. C. Ralston will hold a meeting at Union Hall, in order to determine what steps shall be taken to confute the slanders cast upon the fair fame of the dead public benefactor, and at the same time punish his foul defamers. Every man with the heart of a man beating in his breast will attend the meeting, and show that poor Ralston, though gone, is not friendless.

Speaking of the bank, there is one thing remarkable, and that is, not a single, mercantile failure has yet occurred in all this monetary panic.—The stock brokers also hold their own surprisingly well. No paper has yet gone to protest. This shows the soundness of business men upon this coast.

Emigrants arrive here daily, and are leaving nearly as fast, those who are able. They are disappointed at not finding gold growing on trees as they expected. I would say to all those who have any notion of coming to California to not come without a good trade. If you are a good carpenter, blacksmith, plasterer, bricklayer, &c., you can readily get from $3 to $4 per day, but it is surprising to see the thousands of young men who come to this State having no trades at all, and there are, I will assert, one thousand young men here idle. If a man wants to wait in a restaurant, saloon or hotel, he can no doubt get a place at $3 to $60 per month.

It is quite different here to that in the East; a driver stands as high in society here as the one he drives, for there are no negroes to do the work, and white men do it, except washing, which the chinamen have full charge of, and to do them justice, they are the finest workmen the world ever knew.

There is hardly any such thing as religion in California. There are upwards of one hundred churches in this city, but are rarely ever attended, and you can't find one man out of a hundred that can tell a stranger where they are. Sunday is the best day in the whole week for trade, the places of public amusement are crowded on Sunday, the theatres are better patronized on Sunday night than any other. Bar rooms and the majority of the stores never think about shutting up on Sunday. A great many of the people spend it in fishing and hunting. I am not a religious man, wish I was, but I can say it was a relief for me to get inside of a church on Sunday. There are men who have their regular place to preach in the streets on Sunday.—In one street you can see a large crowd, and on going near you will find a man trying to prove there is no God. Go on a street further and you will see a man trying to prove there is no hell, and no soul in a man, and so on all over the city.

Patent medicine men also join in with the others, and Temperance lecturers, and here they have it. This is the way Sunday is kept in the Western metropolis.

The ladies are all hearty and well made (apparently), but it is very seldom you find one that is really refined and modest, or that will not go to the theatre on Sunday. Fast! did I say? Well just come and see for yourself. No more at present.—Piedmont Press.

THE CONVENTOIN'S WORK.

COMMENTS OF THE STATE PREE UPON IT.

The Winston Sentinel, of Oct. 21, thus nails the lie the Radicals told about the cost of the convention:

The convention will cost about $31,000, which amount will be more than saved in one year by reducing the pay of members of the legislature and limiting the length of the session. The Radicals during the campaign declared it would cost at least $300,000, and probably $500,000. But this is as near the truth as they generally come.

The Charlotte Observer, of October 21, wants the amendments property explained to the people, and has this to say on the subject:

"It is very easy to see that the falling off in the Democratic vote in this state in August last was due to the want of information among the white people as to the issues involved. Long before the Democratic press became aroused the Radical press had thundered into the ears of the masses a perfect cylone of misrepresentation and falsehood, which the majority never heard corrected, as it was noticeable that not one half the white voters turned out at the discussions. Our party should not be caught napping till too late another time. We hope every Democrat who feels an interest in the success of his party will, now while the subject is fresh, take the trouble to see that the amendments passed by the late convention are thoroughly understood by the whole people. All the amendments are a popular character and only need to be understood to be adopted. Let every intelligent, reading Democratic see that his less intelligent neighbors thoroughly understand the amendments now, and there will be no trouble about their adoption a year hence."

SCHROEDER'S AIR-SHIP.

To New York in Three Hours.

[Baltimore Gazette, 19th.]

A number of persons yesterday visited the intersection of Boundary and Madison avenues to see Professor Schroeder's steerable air-ship, with which he proposes to visit different portions of the United States and the Old World, and he explained to all the various sections and workings of the machine. The ladies seemed to be particularly interested, and told the Professor "they would so love to take a trip beyond the clouds in his air-ship." He said to them that he never invited any one to make an ascension for the reason that when they made one trip they always wished to go again.

A number of applications have been received to take passage in the air-ship, and among them the application of Professor Wise, the aronaut, who with Professor Schroeder, is sanguine of the success of the enterprise and a safe voyage across the Atlantic. Schroeder says he has expended years of study and large sums of money upon the invention and its final completion, and many prominent scientists, and especially those of Europe, believe that all that is expected of the ship will be realized.

In 1872 Schroeder states that he made an ascension with a smaller machine, similarly constructed, from Brazil.

Yesterday was the first day that an exhibition was given of the ship portion of the balloon, the propellers, &c. It is constructed of wire about three-six-teenths of an inch in diameter, is eighty-five feet in length, nine feet high, and eight feet wide. Its lifting capacity will be for ten tons.

The balloon portion of the air-ship, which has not yet been adjusted, will be sixty five feet high, eighty-five feet in circumference, and sixty-five in diameter. It is constructed of eighteen hundred yards (three cases) of cambric, from which one thousand four hundred and ninety-six ropes will depend, and hold the ship. The pushing and pulling propellers to be attached to the bow and stern of the ship are ten feet long and three and a half feet in height. These propellers will be covered with canvas, as also the sides and top of the ship.

The ship will be the balloon portion and steering apparatus will be completed about the first of November, proximo, when Professor Schroeder will undertake daily ascensions from the Hippodrome lot. The ship is to be worked by a crew of eight men, and Schroeder says he can readily steer it through the changing currents of the air as well as a mariner does his vessel upon the ocean.

About the 8th of November he expects to start upon his first trip, which will be from Baltimore to New York, a distance of two hundred miles, which he thinks he will make in three hours. He has, he says, made seventy-four miles an hour in a balloon. The air-ship will be exhibited in New York, Washington, and other cities in the Union, and the venture will not be until the spring of 1876. The ship was christened a few evenings since at a meeting of the stockholders the "City of Baltimore."

A Painful Scene and a Touching Confession.

In the Marora (Ill.) News of the 25th of September is an account of the resignation of Elder J. V. Beekman as pastor of a church in that village. For some time past the reverened gentleman's habits have been such as to cause great grief to his friends and bring reproach upon the Church. At the close of the sermon which was preached by a neighboring pastor, Elder Beekman made the following address, which we give as a warning to all men, both young and old, to avoid the sin and shame which have come upon this man:

As a man I have the highest conception as to what the life and character of a minister of the gospel should be. I know that he should lead a consistent and upright life that can be looked to by the community as an example of purity and righteousness. Knowing that my life has not been such in all respects, I desire to tender to this church, for which I have labored so long, my resignation.

You are aware that I refer to my sin of intemperance. This may be my last opportunity of addressing you, and I want to ask you that you will not charge this great shame to the religion of Christ. It teaches better things. Charge it all to my own depravity and sinful nature. To you who have not this habit it is strange that I should thus yield to temptation. I well remember the time when I thought it strange that others drank and ruined themselves with alcohol. I am glad that there are so many young men here this morning that I may lift my voice in warning and beg them to profit by my example. You think now that you are strong and in no danger. I well remember the time when I believed the same. Twelve years ago, when I reached forth my inexperienced hand and took the intoxicating cup, I thounht I was strong; but I developed a habit that now holds me in chains, and in the most awful slavery that humanity was ever subjected to. It holds me in its embrace when I seek my bed for repose; it disturbs my dreams during the weary hours of night and seizes me as its prey when I rise up in the morning to enter upon the duties of the day.

Profit, oh! profit, by my example. See what it has done for me. There was a time when I stood as fair as any minister of the Church in Illinois; there was a time when I had as bright prospects and as cheering hopes for the future as any of my classmates. But now they are all gone because of intemperance. O! that I could bring the whole world to hear my warning voice. Young ladies, you can do much to remove this curse from the world by not countenancing its use among your companions

Brethren, I sever my connection with you as your pastor with a sad heart. It would be sad upon the most favorable circumstances, but much more so as it is. But I shall remain with you in the church and labor in the community for a livelihood; I will come to your social meetings and work with you in the Sunday school, and will do all I can to atone for the great sin I have committed.

God knows I do not wish to injure His cause. Pray for me that I may yet overcome this besetting sin. I trust that I may be able to conquer. But shall I go down under the withering influence, I ask that you remember me kindly. Wherever you meet me and under what circumstances, remember there was a time when you were proud of me. But treat me as you may, act towards me as you choose, I beg that you will remember my wife kindly. Do not give her pain and sorrow because of my wrong doing. Poor woman, she has always suffered enough. I married her a sweet and innocent girl. She has been a patient and faithful wife. Again I ask that you will kindly remember my wife and children.

Shocking Ordeal for a Young Factory Girl.

On Thursday last, at Remington station, on the Cincinnatti and Marietta Railroad, Carrie Dawson, employed in a paper mill, while standing near a revolving shaft, was caught by her hair and the scalp torn from her head, stripping the skin from the back of her neck to the eyebrows. A considerable time elapsed before medical aid reached her, and it was not deemed advisable to attempt to restore the lifeless scalp to its former place. To-day, Dr. A. J. Howe, of Cincinnatti, commenced the restoration of skin to the wounded girl's head by taking a small piece of scalp from the head of her sister, who gave herself freely for her injured sister's relief, while another lady offered skin from her own shoulders to supply what was needed for the forehead. Supplies sufficient to start a growth of new membrane were taken from each of these ladies, and while Mrs. Dawson's condition is dangerous, her physician entertains considerable hope of her recovery and the success of his effort to cover her head with new skin.

Fable of Discontentment.

A canary and a gold-fish had their lot thrown together in the same room. One hot day the master of the house heard the fish complaining of his dumb condition, and envying the sweet voice of his companion overhead. 'Oh! I wish I could sing as sweetly as my friend up there!" whilst the canary was eyeing the inhabitant of the globe. "How cool it looks! I wish my lot was there!" "So, then, it shall be," said the master, and forthwith placed the fish in the air and the bird in the water; whereupon they saw their folly, and repented of their discontent. Of which the moral is sooner drawn than practised—let every man be content in the state in which providence has placed him, and believe that it is what is best fitted for him.
