

Carolina Watchman. OCTOBER, 28.

Persons who have promised us wood, wheat or corn or other articles for fuel, are respectfully informed that we are ready to receive them.

The State Lecturer, J. B. Smith, and Genl. D. H. Hill, will deliver addresses at Oak Forest, Rowan co. N. C., on Monday next, 1st Nov. 1875.

The races come off at Charlotte on the 17th, 18th and 19th of November next. The track at Charlotte is fine, and from all we can learn the arrangements for a grand entertainment are extensive.

NOTICEABLE THINGS.

We transfer to our columns from the "Fair Week Daily," the list of premiums as awarded to the contestants by the managers of our Fair.

The finest horse we saw belonged to P. W. Haireson, Esq. the finest cow, to Capt. J. Beard, the finest brood sow, to Mr. Graeber Miller, the finest six months old pig to Mr. O. W. Atwell, the finest boar to Mr. Wm. Howard, the best lot of pumpkins, to Mr. J. W. Hackett, the finest bale of cotton Mr. S. R. Harrison.

THE USURY LAW, AND THE BANK SWINDLE.

The Supreme Court of the United States has decided that the various National Banks throughout the country are subject only to the penalty prescribed by the National Bank Act, and are not subject to those imposed by State laws.

Our present State usury law imposes penalties on all banks and individuals alike that may be caught violating the law. But if National Banks, so-called, can not be interfered with or punished by State law for extortion and excessive usury, the people should see to it, that the National law be enforced rigidly.

The Raleigh News in referring to this matter says:

The decision of the U. S. Supreme Court, which is not an unexpected interpretation of the law, will have the effect of giving to National Banks in this State a monopoly of the business of money-lending.

The provisions of our usury law, with its tremendous penalties, are not applicable to loans made by them. The mild penalty inflicted by the National Bank Act has never had the effect of restricting them to the rate of interest prescribed by the various State Legislatures, and so the Banks will have a monopoly. Individuals will prefer to place their money in the Banks, as a safer investment than loans to others, and the Banks will loan it out to needy borrowers at such rates as they may choose to ask.

Strange position the News takes. We can't understand why "individuals will prefer to place their money in the Banks, (National, so-called, of course) as a safer investment than loans to others." If they do, it is simply because they do not understand how rotten and unreliable these so-called National Banks are.

Under Liebig's direction, a patient and vigorous staff of assistants made countless experiments in nearly every accessible part of the globe, and analyzed with the utmost care the ashes of many thousand different plants.

The unanimous result of their investigation proved, to a certainty, the natural coherence between vegetable life and inorganic matter; they showed that every plant of the same kind, whatever may be the substance and the composition of its soil, receives the same mineral ingredients into its frame, and cannot live and grow in a place which is entirely devoid of minerals necessary to its existence.

To cite but one example, the tobacco plant chiefly withdraws lime from the earth, under every zone and in every climate; its cultivation, in a soil absolutely deprived of that mineral, is simply impossible, however liberally the other conditions of its existence may be provided for.

These results plainly showing the error which former ages had committed when neglecting and denying the importance of mineral ingredients in vegetable substances, naturally led to a division of plants into several classes, each of which received the name of its principal mineral ingredients; regardless of botanical denominations, they were divided into a few simple classes, according to their predominant contents of lime, kali, silicious earth, etc.

This Liebig's doctrine concerning the influence of mineral matter upon vegetable life was firmly established.

Gov. Hendricks, of Indiana, is credited with saying, on hearing from Ohio: "I'm not surprised, I told you we should be defeated." On a different platform we should have succeeded. Had the Democrats declared themselves for specie payments to be accomplished gradually, and without contracting the currency at present outstanding, they would have rolled up a larger majority than they did in 1874.

The State Fair.

In consequence of some remarks we made last week about Western farmers being ignored by the managers of N. C. State Fair at Raleigh, the local Editor of the Sentinel suggests that the Editor of the Democrat be made a Vice-President of the State Society and also Chairman of several Committees. In reply, we can say that for the past 18 years we have urged our people to attend the State Fair but refused to serve the Society in any official capacity in any way, always urging the appointment of practical farmers on Committees or as Officers.

By the recent election of Officers of the State Agricultural Society shows that the Western counties have been ignored, as usual, in the selection of Officers. We again say, that is bad policy, and will not tend much towards promoting exhibitions at Raleigh and interesting the people of all portions of the State in the State Fair. We have always been a friend of the annual Agricultural exhibitions at Raleigh, and no improper motive can be truthfully attributed to us in regard to anything we say about the management of the State Society.

Col. Thos. M. Holt, the President of the North Carolina Agricultural Society, was presented with a handsome gold-headed cane in Raleigh last week, by citizens of the State, in token of his efforts to promote the interests of the State Agricultural Society. Col. Holt, by his disinterested efforts and hard work, deserves such a compliment.

It is a matter of but little consequence whether there are any officers selected from this part of the State or not now, since the people of the West hereafter will send their articles and pay their visits to the Salisbury fair.

WESTERN N. C. RAILROAD.

At a meeting of the Commissioners or Directors of the Western N. C. Road was held at Salisbury on the 18th inst. The Directors of the Road as now constituted are W. S. Pearson and S. McD. Tate of Burke, W. W. Rollins of Dancombe, and W. P. Canady of New Hanover. By authority of the Act of the Legislature the above named gentlemen have charge of the Road from Salisbury to Asheville, and the completion of the same.

At the meeting last week Mr. Thos. H. Allen, of this city, was elected Chief Engineer of the Road. Capt. F. M. Wooten (the well-known Conductor and Express man on the Carolina Central) was granted permission to operate his Express business on the Western Road to Asheville, thus making Wooten's Express a continuous route from Wilmington, via Charlotte and Statesville, to Asheville.

We see it stated that Mr. A. B. Andrews, formerly Superintendent of the Raleigh & Gaston Road, has been appointed Superintendent of the North Carolina Railroad.—Charlotte Democrat.

THE LOST ORDINANCE.

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 12, 1875.

It may seem early for a delegate to propose an amendment to the Constitution the day after the adjournment of a Constitutional Convention. The following Ordinance was voted down repeatedly by the Convention, while three-fourths of the members, of both parties continually declared they would not pay the debt: "The General Assembly shall not levy any tax or raise any money to pay the interest or principal of any of the bonds issued in aid of any railroad corporation, or to purchase a site for a Penitentiary on Deep River, in Chatham county, under the authority of the Constitutional Convention, held in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight, or of the General Assembly for the year one thousand and sixty-nine, unless the act making the levy or raising the money be first submitted to a direct vote of the people of the State, and be approved by a majority of those who shall vote thereon."

I propose to the people that the next election, they vote for members to the Legislature who will pledge themselves to have the above rejected Ordinance inserted in the Constitution by Legislative Enactment. JOSIAH TURNER.

Liebig's Great Discovery.

Under Liebig's direction, a patient and vigorous staff of assistants made countless experiments in nearly every accessible part of the globe, and analyzed with the utmost care the ashes of many thousand different plants. The unanimous result of their investigation proved, to a certainty, the natural coherence between vegetable life and inorganic matter; they showed that every plant of the same kind, whatever may be the substance and the composition of its soil, receives the same mineral ingredients into its frame, and cannot live and grow in a place which is entirely devoid of minerals necessary to its existence. To cite but one example, the tobacco plant chiefly withdraws lime from the earth, under every zone and in every climate; its cultivation, in a soil absolutely deprived of that mineral, is simply impossible, however liberally the other conditions of its existence may be provided for. These results plainly showing the error which former ages had committed when neglecting and denying the importance of mineral ingredients in vegetable substances, naturally led to a division of plants into several classes, each of which received the name of its principal mineral ingredients; regardless of botanical denominations, they were divided into a few simple classes, according to their predominant contents of lime, kali, silicious earth, etc. This Liebig's doctrine concerning the influence of mineral matter upon vegetable life was firmly established.

Gov. Hendricks, of Indiana, is credited with saying, on hearing from Ohio: "I'm not surprised, I told you we should be defeated." On a different platform we should have succeeded. Had the Democrats declared themselves for specie payments to be accomplished gradually, and without contracting the currency at present outstanding, they would have rolled up a larger majority than they did in 1874.

An Unfortunate Marker Shot Dead at a Rifle Match.

Those who have observed the recklessness with which numerous firing parties have conducted their rifle matches have, for some time past, dreaded the occurrence of an accident. In many instances the severe rules established by competent authorities for the protection of markers have been entirely ignored, and yesterday the failure to observe the simplest of these rules resulted in the sad killing of a respected citizen named William Lee.

He was shot through the breast, it appears, as he was in the act of emerging from his trench. He had no red danger flag to wave before leaving his shelter thereby warning the firing party of his approach so that they could cease firing. The result was that the man who was in the act of aiming at the fatal moment had no intimation of the appearance of the unfortunate marker, and did not even know that his bullet was a messenger of death until it had sped on its fatal course. So sudden was the shocking casualty that the companions of the dead marker were not aware of what had happened until they saw the diseased lying on the ground.

The Money Issue Saved Allen from Overwhelming Defeat.

The man who supposes that the Ohio election was lost on the anti resumption question is greatly in error. Hayes's majority in the State is less than his majority in Cuyahoga county. So that that county controlled the State. Perhaps our idea of the fact of the case—and as is evidenced by the extracts we published last week from Ohio papers—may be most clearly stated in the general proposition that if the Republicans had had the Democratic platform on the currency question, and the Democrats the Republican platform on that question, Hayes's majority would have been forty thousand. The currency question, in other words, saved Allen from overwhelming defeat.

Nothing else prevented the fight from being solely upon the Gagehan law, and the public schools, and the Pope, and all sorts of questions of similar import. Upon these issues Allen would have been buried beneath an overwhelming majority. But wisely he kept the currency question above all others, and so saved himself from a disgraceful defeat. Substantially the victory is with him on that question. He was beaten on other issues.

A Bigamist Flees and is Struck Down in His Shelter by Lightning.

An Edenton correspondent of the Portsmouth Enterprise communicates the following: About the last of July the Sheriff of our county arrested one Anderson Bond (colored) indicted for bigamy, the sheriff willing to give him an opportunity to give bond for his appearance at court, placed him in the hands of a deputy, from which officer the prisoner escaped. Nothing more was heard of him until this morning, when being one of a jury of inquest I learned the following facts: The negro on making his escape went home, and told his wife to prepare his clothes as he was going away, and would call for them that night or early next morning. He never called. A heavy rain and thunder storm came up that evening, and he took shelter in a hollow tree, which was shattered by lightning, and there his remains were found. The jury's verdict was in accordance with the facts above.

A Sad Accident by Which a Young Man Lost his Life.

On Friday the 8th inst., about twenty miles below Mount Airy, Peter S. Bowman, a young man, about 25 years of age, was instantly killed, by getting his neck broke. The particulars are as follows: On the day above mentioned, in company with his brother, he started, on foot to a camp-meeting that was in progress about Friendship. While on their way, they came up with a four-horse wagon and team loaded with lumber, and which was going in the same direction they were, and they had an opportunity of riding. So Peter mounted one of the horses with the intention of driving a short distance, however, in descending a slant, the lumber slipped forward against the horses and started them out at a lively pace. By some means Peter became entangled in the harness and pitched foremost between the horses. The team was stopped as quickly as possible, and his brother and driver ran back to ascertain if he was badly injured, when they discovered that his neck was broken and Peter was dead. This is certainly a very sad affair, and should be a lasting reminder to us all that life is uncertain and that death is sure.—Surry Visitor.

A Discouraged Editor.

He was a sad-eyed, meek-faced man, and we supposed he merely wished to give us a news item; but when he commenced telling us about building a barn on his ranch 190 by 280 feet, seven stories high and ornamented with bay windows, we thought it was time to check him, and so we commenced: "Well, we must admit that that is a pretty large barn for this country, but back in the States our father built a barn 325 by 500 feet, nine stories high and furnished with steam elevators;—" "Back in the States," interrupted our listener, "why that wasn't much of a barn for the States. I remember now that when I was quite young my father built a chicken coop 550 by 832 feet. I don't recollect how many stories it was high, but I know there was a cupola on it for the roosters." "About how high was that cupola?" we asked. "I don't know the exact height now, mister, but I know it was so high that the fourteen upper tiers of roosters died from the effects of the light atmosphere the first night."

"One Must Die."

It has been more than a month since Donaldson accompanied by the reporter of a daily Chicago journal, entered upon his balloon voyage to the grave, and yet his terrible tragedy has but lately been revealed in all its horrors to the public. Prof. Donaldson has been most prominently before the people as one of the most daring and accomplished balloon voyagers in the world. Our readers will remember his proposed journey to Europe in the big Graphic balloon last year.

One day last summer the Prof. started for a voyage across lake Michigan. A poor devil of a newspaper reporter started with him. Soon after the balloon ascending a great storm arose; and two days afterwards Donaldson was found in a dying condition, horribly mangled near the lake in the woods, and this is substantially the story he told before his death. "After we got up about two miles the storm came on. The balloon was a poor affair and although I threw out all the ballast, I soon saw there was too much load in her and that she would soon go down into the lake unless something was done. I looked at the Reporter. He was looking at me and I knew he and I were thinking about the same thing. One must die that other might live. The poor devil was as white as a sheet and so full of fear that he crouched down in the basket like a cur. Although I pitied him yet I despised him for being a coward. To seize him and throw him out was the work of an instant, but I can see his horror-stricken face now as he went down to the lake. What moments of awful suspense and terror those were to the poor Reporter as he saw the eyes of Donaldson fall upon him with the glare of a wild beast. To him seconds appeared centuries. All the days of his life and the acts thereof came crowding upon his brain like an avalanche.

Donaldson cool and intrepid surveying him with mingled pity and contempt. A spring, a moment's struggle and the coward is hurled into eternity while yet a little longer and his destroyer goes to meet him. History records no tragedy more complete; and it is one of which we more we think the less able are we to fully comprehend its magnificence and its horror.—Albany Times.
