noble spirit manifested in his defense under the cir-cumstances, and that in all hours of need you may have the advantage of his wisdom and influence even in the protection of your household so that it shall not fall on mine.

I must close this article as it has greatly transcended the limits designed, but must be permitted to say that we private citizens do not claim the mighty wisdom boasted of by you, but nevertheless with all the wisdom possessed by you and your advisors, we claim some humble rights among which is the right to criticise the acts of our public men. shall not fall on mine. is the right to criticise the acts of our public men, to be candidates for office when we think proper and to express our preferences for those that are and last and not least to beat in-convention and at the hand. This is very like arranging pins on a board and then showing with what celerity they can be knocked down. There is nothing to boast of in that. Whatever his rule may be in the abstract we utterly reputhate it as having any force in this case. Men's actions are governed more by cfreumstances than arbitrary rules. "Circumstances after cases," is a rule universally admitted because it sanctions the sensible idea of a man's being governed by his understanding of those circumstances. His action may not always be patent for the reason that others have not the knewledge of the case that he has, and its accompaniments may often exclude the propriety of such an exposure of the facts and circumstances as would vindicate the justice of the action. He acts as these dictate and assumes the responsibility, be it grave or otherwise. It is idle to dispute his right to assume a responsibility if he thus elects to do it. and wrong in others to condemn what they do not and

But what is all this splutter about! Let us see: Various rumors had reached us of proceedings and efforts in relation to the candidacy for the office of sheriff—intemperate zeal, as we thought—to control the action of the nominating convention. A similar folly. At the time this was done a number of persons were spoken of for the office, to wit: the present inumbent, Mr. John Graham, Mr. John Beard, Mr. D. t. Julian. Mr. Andrew Murphy, and Mr. Isaac Shaver, the latter being the first to announce himself except that of Mr. Waggoner, whom we endorsed as a good officer, and expressed the hope that he might oc re-nominated. We pointed at no one invidiously, done more electioneering than any one else, or be-cause intemperate friends urged him to it, we do not know, assumed that our remarks were intended for him, and came at us mounted, booted and spurred, with a grand flourish of words-words-all unnatural and unbecoming. And as we wrote up our moderate up one for effect. We thought we knew the ring of the speech,-felt sure there was an engineer in the bushes, and landed a pellet-a whistler-to feel for him.

"We think Mr. Julian is ratner hasty in assuming that he was the burden of our last week's article un-der the head of "Sheriffallty." His modesty ought Perhaps, however, he desired to air himself through the newspapers. There is great power in rinter's ink, but it is also a two edged sword. Those who employ it should do it warily. His counselors, where much is at stake, should be wiser than keen. forward in the open field of the above letter and off ers to discuss our right to "feel" for an adversary, because he is a "private citizen." But even that abundity looks like an artful trick by which to push way to attack Mr. Waggoner on a frivolous charge, which is treated as if there were many applicants ed except Murphy. Whereas no "hard-working conervative" was rejected by him. [Moreover, Murphy tells it on the streets that Dr. Keen told him that if he (Keen) was Mayor his (Murphy's) chances for the appointment would be good to extent of his power.] As "a private citizen" discussing his person rights, this "diverson" seemed to him far more germane and proper than our little whistler. we have not the time to follow the Doctor much further.
