AS LITTLE CHILDREN.

In pure white robes the children kneel Beside their mother's knee : With bright eyes veiled and fair eads bowed In meek simplicity.

In childhood's broken p erance sweet, With folded palme ney pray That He would grand them through the night Who keps them all the day.

No shrinking fears, no warning doubts, Obscure their childish trust; God is their Father, tender, kind, And care for them He must.

O for the child's unquestioning faith, The love that casts out fear ; That rests secure upon Thine arm, That knows Thee ever near !

Our faltering words but balf express Our sense of varied needs : But God still reads our inmost thought Each faint desire He heeds.

With childhood's firm, undoubting faith, Its reverence and its trust, Let us approach our Father's throne-His children we, though dust.

THE NEW PROCESS OF ANNEALING GLASS .- A number of prominent citizens of New York and Brooklyn were invited recently to visit the La Bastie Glass Works of South Brooklyn to witness the manufacture of glassware under a new process patented by M. de la Bastie of Paris in 1875. This process differs from the manufacture of other glassware in the component parts of material used. After the ware has passed from the workmen's hands it undergoes an annealing process by being thrown into a bath of tallow. The visitors were conducted through the works and the process of manufacture was explained. They were then conducted into tumblers, plates, globes &c., were subject- Do you want to live for ever ?" ed to a test by throwing them carelessly around the floor, driving nails into boards

Many excellent teachers, in our State. are now in want of renumerative employment, and we have the men and the women to increase the number, and enlarge the operations of our schools. We therefore suggest that influential persons look around them and see if schools are needed in their neighborhoods and if the neighbors will agree to call some of these teach ers. The President has taken his seat in peace, and the campaign is certainly over. Good weather is coming and the children need attention. Thousands are growing up in ignorance, and all good citizens should strive to make them wiser and better, and at the same time give employment to good and useful citizens.

Fathers and mothers owe their children the opportunity of improvement, even when the children preversely allow their opportunities to pass unimproved. Look back and consider what you wish your parents had done for you, and then do the same for your own children. If you wish schools had been open to you, open them to your children. If you wish you had received a little compulsory education, then compel your children to imto say that the loss of some people was a they ought to know.
