and together with various amendments. adopted during its consideration, are pub-Saturday the 10th. The bill makes appropriations for the year ending June 30, 1877, including amount appropriated for increased cavalry force, $27,624,400. And sum of $20,516,756.50.

The discussions in Committee of the Whole on Saturday, afforded opportunisonally revered-not that he had been when they embark. partial towards the sections - but for simply having obeyed the Constitution and the laws. He stands out in bold pontrast with Gen. Grant on this score, for Graat made his will and pleasure override Constitution and laws_whenever they came in conflict. He didn't seem to know or care for either, and so far as he was concerned they had as well not have been on the books. The general bearing of the remarks of all the members who made any allusion to the President evince a high regard for his honest endeavors to discharge his duties faithfully, and some even seemed opposed to any action which could be construed as implying a distrust in him for the future.

A gentleman of abundant leisure cau scarcely find more entertaining reading than is to be found in the reported procoedings of Gongress. They are voluminous, and will require a reader's whole time to keep up with them.
